TRANSIT UNION
REJECTS OFFER,
FURTHER STEPS

Graduated 13-Cent Rise in Hourly Pay Turned Down — Committee
gotiations.

Further steps to settle the wage dispute between Public Service Co. and its 2500 bus and streetcar operators were considered today by Daniel C. Rogers, chairman of the State Board of Mediation, following the employees' overwhelming rejection of the latest company offer yesterday.

"I called both parties last night after I learned the men had turned down the offer," Rogers said. "I told them I would call on them today to find out what is best to do and when. It would appear that further negotiations will be necessary."

A graduated 13-cent increase in the hourly rate, together with other contract improvements, was resoundingly rejected by a vote of 1853 to 13 at two meetings of the men yesterday at Carpenters Hall, 3606 Cozans avenue.

By Secret Ballot.

Voting was by secret ballot at both meetings, as the company had requested. The offer was presented to the membership of the union by its officers without recommendation as to its acceptance or rejection. The ballots were not counted until after the conclusion of the second meeting attended by day-shift workers.

When Arthur E. East, president of the union, announced the results there was a loud cheer. He then added: "Your negotiating committee is ready and willing to resume negotiations at the earliest opportunity." This statement also was cheered.

East reported there were no speeches from the floor in favor of the new contract offer but several were made against it. He said some objections to the secret ballot had been voiced at the morning meeting attended by night-shift operators, but that it was adopted by a voice vote.

John C. Baine, president of Public Service Co., said the company would await a call from Rogers, who is the agent designated by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to operate the state-strewn transit system.

The company was taken over by the state under the King-Thompson public utility anti-strike law Oct. 11 after the men rejected a public hearing panel's recommendation for a 12-cent increase and voted to strike.

Provisions of Offer.

Latest offer of the company would have given the men 5 cents retroactive to last March 1 when the old contract expired, an additional 4 cents Jan. 1 and another 4 cents July 1, with the contract to run until Feb. 28, 1957. Memorial day would have become a sixth paid holiday. A one-hour pay allowance for selling permits on Sunday would have been restored and operators would have been given 20 cents an hour above scale when instructing beginners.

At the outset of negotiations on a new contract, the union had asked for a 26-cent increase and other benefits. The request was scaled down at one time to 17 cents but was restored to the original figure when the hearing panel began taking testimony.

SOUTH GRAND
3RD ST. HIGHWAY

The first use of expressways by public transportation will start here Monday when busses of the South Grand express line will start using the new Third Street Interregional Highway, Public Service Co. announced today.

A spokesman for the company said the use of the new expressway will save passengers six minutes over the present express bus schedule.

Instead of proceeding over Twelfth street between Gravois avenue and Market street and thence over Chestnut and Seventh street to the terminus at Sixth street and Lucas avenue, the busses will follow the recently opened Third street expressway from Twelfth and Gravois to Third and Market.

From here the route goes west on Market to Seventh, north on Seventh to Delmar boulevard, east on Delmar to Sixth, south on Sixth to Walnut street, thence east to Third and return. Holly Hills and Iron Street branches of the South Grand Express will use the Third street route. Passengers with destinations along Twelfth may transfer at Grand boulevard and Gravois to busses of the South Side Express. This line proceeds north on Twelfth to Washington avenue, thence east to a terminus at Third.

KILLED CRASHING PLANE INTO BANK THAT FIRED HIM

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—A private pilot was killed when his light plane crashed through the window of a branch bank at International airport, showering glass on the man who had fired him from a teller-trainee job only the day before.

Witnesses said Benjamin Fauth, 28 years old, glided his Aerocraft downwind with the engine dead yesterday and suddenly became a sixth paid holiday. A one-hour pay allowance for selling permits on Sunday would have been restored and operators would have been given 20 cents an hour above scale when instructing beginners.

At the outset of negotiations on a new contract, the union had asked for a 26-cent increase and other benefits. The request was scaled down at one time to 17 cents but was restored to the original figure when the hearing panel began taking testimony.

Students Pull Youngsters Away From Tracks as Mo. Pac.
Eagle Approaches.

The story of a rescue of three small children from the path of a Missouri Pacific Eagle train in Webster Groves was going the rounds at Ursuline Academy today, with two of its girl students as the heroines.

It happened Tuesday, but the girls were so quiet about it that the parents of the children they pulled to a safe distance did not hear of it until late yesterday.

The rescuers are Carol Keane, 15 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Keane, 715 Oakland avenue, Glendale, and Carolyn Brauer, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Brauer, 560 Locust court, Webster Groves.

The children were playing beside the tracks as the train, westbound, was about half a block away, the girls reported. They are Cheryl House, 3, and her sister, Karen, 5, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. House, 662 Hollywood place, Webster Groves, and George Treu, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Treu, 630 Woodside place, Webster Groves.

Carol and Carolyn were on the way home from school shortly after 4 o'clock when they saw the children playing on the ballast near the rails, a short distance east of Berry road, apparently unaware of the approaching train. Their homes are nearby.

George and Karen were on one side of the tracks and Cheryl, the youngest, was on the other. The older girls said they feared that the children might become panicky on hearing the train and try to run across so all three would be together.

Carol grabbed Cheryl, took her back to a retaining wall about 12 feet away, and stood in front of her as the engine and coaches rumbled by. Carolyn got the other two farther back and stayed with them.

The freshmen civics class at Ursuline presented a religious medal to Carolyn yesterday. Her fellow freshmen left similar recognition for Carol to her own fellow juniors.

MARGARET CALLS
OF CANTERBURY

LONDON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Princess Margaret paid a surprise call on the Archbishop of Canterbury today—presumably to discuss her romance with Peter Townsend.

This talk behind closed doors between the Princess and the ranking prelate of the Church of England could decide her love affair with the divorced war hero.

The Princess drove to Lambeth palace, residence of the Archbishop, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, and remained in the palace for almost an hour before returning home to Clarence House.

Virginia Police Sending Texas
Children 3 Bikes and Tricycle

HUMBLE, Tex., Oct. 27 (AP)—Two little boys and their sister are getting new bicycles and a tricycle because one of them has faith in policemen.

They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brown—Jerry Wayne, 9 years old; Charles, 12; Janet, 13, and Janie, 3.

Jerry Wayne read that the Roanoke (Va.) police warehouse was stacked with unclaimed bikes. He wrote to Detective Capt. Kermit E. Allman asking couldn't he please have one so his brother Charles could carry newspapers and add to the family income. He also told Allman about his sisters.

Illness prevents the father, a disabled veteran, from driving a truck more than part time. Mrs. Brown can't work. They live in a rural community near this South Texas town.

Mrs. Brown has been entering contests for years trying to win money for a bicycle. Jerry Wayne and Charles picked up bottles along the highway to get money for the postage.

NO FRAUD IN JET PLANE FAILURE, HOUSE INQUIRY
CHAIRMAN SAYS

Holified Asserts Navy
Was 'Caught in Gamble' in Effort to Match Red MIG—
Hearing Ends.

By DAVID R. WALLIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27—Navy procurement officers apparently were "caught in a gamble" in an effort to obtain a plane equal to the Communist MIG, Representative Chet Holifield (Dem.), California, said today at the conclusion of a House Military Operations subcommittee hearing into Navy purchases of St. Louis-built McDonnell F3H-1 Demon jet fighters. The F3H-1 was grounded by the Navy, because the plane's Westinghouse J-40 engines were underpowered.

Holifield, subcommittee chairman, said he found no evidence of "fraud or improper action" in the case, which ended in the grounding of 54 expensive airplanes, which the Navy has said would not be flown.

"Undoubtedly there was waste in this program, as there is in any development of a new plane, or weapon," Holifield remarked to reporters. "I've seen no evidence of fraud, or improper action. Any waste involved in this program was made honestly under pressure of the Korean emergency."

"Navy officers simply were caught in a gamble whether to push ahead in search of a plane equal to the MIG, or wait until assured the new plane would be a success."

Planned to Use Jets as Trainers.

R. Adm. James S. Russell, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, testified today that prior to grounding the F3H-1 Demon last July, the Navy planned to use the plane for transition training of pilots who will fly the F3H-2, which is being built with an Allison J-71 engine.

The training was planned, Admiral Russell said, for two biplanes being built by the Navy at high speeds, ending at Grant and Pardee roads.

The victim gave his name as Gerald Jackson and an address in the 1900 block of Victor street. He was taken to St. Louis County Hospital with shotgun wounds in the right shoulder and hip.

He was shot by Patrolman Donald Cronk as he and two companions fled after the automobile in which they were riding was overturned. Cronk said he had fired one shot in the air and three at the car during the chase, and when the three youths ignored a demand to halt he fired his riot gun in the darkness.

Jackson, who was in a car driven by a 15-year-old boy. The other occupant was identified by police as Paul Pickering, 17, of the 2300 block of South Compton avenue. Police said all three admitted stealing the machine last night.

Cronk said he became suspicious when he saw the boys at Lindbergh boulevard and Gravois road shortly after 5 a.m. When he tried to stop them for questioning, they sped away, giving chase. Cronk said he drove as fast as he could—70 miles an hour—but still the other car pulled away from him. It went out of control on an S curve and turned over, but the occupants were not injured.

Jackson, who was alone in the police car, said Jackson's two companions fled into a wooded area. They came out and surrendered a few minutes later, in response to shouts by Cronk and other county policemen who had arrived at the scene shortly after the end of the chase.

Police said Jackson and the 15-year-old boy had been arrested previously in auto theft cases.

HOT COURT ROOMS
SLOWING JUSTICE,
U.S. JUDGES SAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Hot court rooms account in part for a backlog of federal court cases, a survey of judges indicated yesterday.

Preliminary results of the poll conducted by a judges' committee also brought out the feeling that at least 40 more jurists are needed to catch up with pending court business.

Chief Judge John Biggs Jr. of the Third Judicial Circuit, the committee chairman, told the Washington Evening Star the length of vacations taken by the judges is not a major factor in the lag has stretched up to four years in getting some cases tried. The poll turned up these sentiments:

Judges don't like to try cases in summer in court rooms without air conditioning. It's not only uncomfortable—jurors sometimes pass out.

Attorneys like to vacation in the summer. Their clients and witnesses are less available. They want to vacation, too.

"I think all of us realized it was underpowered for any but the original plane. We were to substitute the J-40-10 model engine later, but it was never successfully developed."

A 16-year-old boy was shot and seriously wounded by a St. Louis county policeman early today after a chase of several miles at high speeds, ending at Grant and Pardee roads.

The victim gave his name as Gerald Jackson and an address in the 1900 block of Victor street. He was taken to St. Louis County Hospital with shotgun wounds in the right shoulder and hip.

He was shot by Patrolman Donald Cronk as he and two companions fled after the automobile in which they were riding was overturned. CONDITION OF ADENAUER
REPORTED MORE SERIOUS

BONN, Oct. 27 (UP)—The condition of West German Chancellor Adenauer, suffering with bronchial pneumonia, was reported more serious today.

His temperature shot up to 103.1 degrees last night, and close aides warned that he faces long convalescence.

A doctor advised Adenauer yesterday not to see his old friend, former United States High Commissioner to Germany John J. McCloy.

Cancellation of that visit aroused such uneasiness in Bonn that a cardiograph and X-rays were taken last night. At the time, it was reported that the cardiograph showed Adenauer's heart action was "fully normal."

Geneva Bar Stocks No Vodka
Because Russians Bring Own

GENEVA, Oct. 27 (AP)—The barman at the Hotel Metropole, headquarters of the Soviet delegation, confesses he has stocked no vodka for the Geneva conference opening today.

"Twice I've filled my shelves with it," said barman Claude, "and twice it has sat there as unwanted as another cold wave in Siberia. I've learned my lesson."

The Russians drink plenty of their national firewater at Geneva conferences — but they don't drink vodka supplied by Swiss bartenders at Swiss prices.

"They bring their own," he said, "by airplanes and by the crate loads."

PLACED ON 2-INCH
EISENHOWER BUST

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—A two-inch high bust of President Eisenhower valued at $250,000 went on display today in a Fifth avenue store. It is carved from a black star sapphire.

The President's bust is part of a series of heads of famous Americans carved in sapphire by artist Harry Derian. The series already includes George Washington and Abraham Lincoln, and a bust of Thomas Jefferson is now being carved.

An executive of Black, Starr and Gorman, Inc., where the heads now are being shown, said they would shortly be sent on tour across the nation and ultimately be presented to some American museum. The huge sapphires are owned by James and Henry Kazanjian, California jewel dealers, who decided several years ago to use them to create the series of miniature busts.

DRIVER SUCCEEDS
RUNNING 1926 CAR

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 27 (AP)—John Luipersbeck yesterday defended and won the right to drive his 1926 Oakland which he says he will run "till it falls apart."

The automobile ran through a red light and patrolman H. M. Snyder said the vehicle's brakes were inadequate.

Not so, said Luipersbeck. The policeman said he tested the brake pedal and it went all the way to the floor. Luipersbeck said the car had mechanical brakes and that the car was not moving when the officer tested it.

Magnate William Kreyenbohn ruled Snyder had made no case against the brakes of the Oakland, which Luipersbeck fondly explained was "part of my family now."

Luipersbeck was fined $15, though—for going through a red light.

PRESIDENT TALKS
JANUARY SPEECH

Gen. Persons, Adams and McCann Discuss State of Union Message.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Oct. 27—President Eisenhower began work today on his State of the Union message, first of three big Administration policy statements which go to Congress next January.

Mr. Eisenhower conferred for 45 minutes at Fitzsimons Army Hospital with Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons, his deputy assistant in charge of liaison with Congress; Kevin McCann, his chief speech writer, and Sherman Adams, chief presidential assistant.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the three men discussed with Mr. Eisenhower "a very rough preliminary draft" of the state of the union message.

The draft included "preliminary legislative recommendations" from several government departments and the President gave his "general approval" to some of its contents, Hagerty said.

It was the longest conference Mr. Eisenhower has held on official business since his heart attack. Hagerty has said previously it is likely to tell whether the President will deliver the message to Congress in person.

A hospital bulletin issued at 11:15 a.m. said: "The President's condition continues to progress satisfactorily without complications. After a good night's sleep of eight hours, the President awoke refreshed and in a jovial mood."

"He told the doctors he was looking forward to a preliminary discussion of topics for his State of the Union message."

The bulletin said Mr. Eisenhower's morning examinations showed that his pulse and blood pressure continued to be normal. For the first time, it added, the President shaved himself, sitting up on the side of his bed. Previously a medical corpsman had shaved him.

Late in the morning Mr. Eisenhower again walked unaided to an easy chair six or seven paces from his bed. He added to the distance this morning by walking to a straight-backed chair another six or seven steps from the bed.

FAURE DEMANDS THIRD, RISKIER CONFIDENCE VOTE AFTER SETBACKS

Premier Defeated Twice on Procedural Questions — Crucial Balloting Due Tomorrow

PARIS, Oct. 27 (AP)—Premier Faure, recent victor in two crucial test votes in the National Assembly, today demanded a third and even riskier vote of confidence.

The result could throw him and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay out of office at the start of the Big Four foreign ministers meeting in Geneva.

Backed into a corner by defeat yesterday on two procedural questions, Faure shut off further debate until tomorrow by demanding a vote of confidence.

The vote will be taken at the session beginning at 10 a.m. Friday, and until then Faure, a master of political maneuvering, has an opportunity to cast about for additional support.

Had a decisive vote been taken this morning Faure probably would have been beaten.

The point that the Big Four foreign ministers were starting their meeting in Geneva today seemed to have caused no hesitancy among deputies who want to throw the government out. The fact that an Algerian vote would cripple France's representation at the international meeting got only passing mention in the debate.

It was the same way last week when the Premier asked for a vote of confidence on Algerian policy. He won that one easily, 308 to 234, after the deputies had a weekend for reflection, though on a preliminary procedural question they had defeated him 305 to 274.

Faure asked for a vote of confidence this time after the deputies voted 289 to 286 to take up a Socialist resolution refusing their confidence.

Earlier, the Assembly refused, 303 to 275, to give priority to a mild government formula "making note" of government declarations on its general policies.

Technically, the vote tomorrow will be on this government resolution. Actually it pits opponents of Faure's plan for a general election December, at least under present laws, against those in favor.

Faure has proposed to cut short the life of the present Parliament, which normally would continue until next June, in order to eliminate some political decisions that have to be made on North Africa.

In the debate orators showered criticism on the Government for a series of French misadventures. These included: the anti-Europeanization vote in the French plebiscite; the referendum in South Viet Nam which tossed out the French favorite, Chief of State Bao Dai; the possibility that Sidi Mohammed Ben Youssef, anti-French sultan of Morocco, may soon be back on his throne.

The debate started over a demand for information on what measures the Government plans to take to meet the heavy expenses of military operations in North Africa.

Pierre Pflimlin, however, painted a rosy picture of French finances and said the deputies need have no fears about tax increases.

Faure made some compromises with opponents of a quick election by agreeing the French government would try to find an acceptable election law. Previously the government had taken a hands off attitude toward the election law, saying it was up to the deputies to find a solution.

Maneuvering Likely.

The election question was bound to cause some tricky maneuvering before the confidence vote. Tossing out the Faure government would end its proposal for a December election.

But under the constitution the Cabinet can dissolve the Assembly and call for new elections if two governments are defeated by a majority of all members of the House within an 18-month period.

Premier Mendes-France was defeated by the required majority of 314 only eight months ago. Faure's opponents therefore were anxious to topple him by an adverse vote which would be less than the majority required to call this constitutional provision into effect.

HOLDUP PROVES NO TV STUNT, $20,000 STOLEN

The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22—What was thought to be a television program "gag" turned out yesterday to be a $20,000 payroll robbery of the Knickerbocker shoe polish.

Three armed men, with handkerchief masks, took over the firm's second-floor offices in Brooklyn, but only by death threats could they convince employees that they meant "business" and were not pulling a stunt in connection with "Masquerade Party," television program the company co-sponsors.

Although on the program guest celebrities—whom a panel must identify—are disguised by makeup and costume, employees somehow assumed that the handkerchief-faced men were masquerading in their own fashion.

ATOM GUARDS TOLD 'SHOOT TO KILL'—AT JACKRABBITS

CAMP HANFORD, Wash., 27 (AP)—Orders of "shoot to kill" have been issued to soldiers guarding the Hanford atomic works from an enemy that has been nibbling at the roots of the super-secret installation.

One man in each battery of the anti-aircraft group was issued a .22 caliber rifle and told to keep shooting until the enemy is destroyed.

The highly mobile intruder is the hungry jackrabbit—in fact, hundreds of jackrabbits. They have nibbled the post's 100,000 rose bushes down to 10,000 and chewed away most of Hanford's grass and shrubs.

TRUCK DRIVER WINS $8634 SUIT AGAINST PEDESTRIAN

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 27 (AP)—A truck driver won $8634 damages in a traffic accident case yesterday from a pedestrian.

Charles B. Maynard, a bread route man, had charged that Mrs. Katherine W. Nitzken, moved around a bus toward the path of his truck. He said he swerved to avoid striking her and crashed into a utility pole suffering head and arm injuries.

Judge Ben F. Ewing agreed the victory of a driver over a pedestrian was rare, something like "a tortoise running over a hare."

ISRAEL'S PREMIER GOES ON WAR PATH IN GENEVA

GENEVA, Oct. 27 (AP)—Premier Sharett of Israel disclosed today his address in Geneva will be 34 Chemin Krieg, which translated into English means war path.

"Someone else selected the address for me," said Sharett, who arrived today to see Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and others about Communist sale of arms to Egypt. "I can assure you it was pure coincidence."

The address is a new apartment building.

3 MORE BALLOTS ON U.N. COUNCIL SEAT INDECISIVE

Philippines Receive 32 Votes, Yugoslavia 24 on 12th Poll—39 Required.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 27—The United Nations General Assembly again postponed further voting in the election to fill the vacant non-permanent seat on the Security Council after three ballots today failed to break the deadlock between the Philippines and Yugoslavia.

On the twelfth ballot of the election which has occupied three plenary sessions of the Assembly, the Philippines received 32 votes, Yugoslavia 24 and India 2. One delegation abstained. Thirty-nine votes, or two thirds of the 58 present and voting, were required for election.

On the first ballot this morning, limited to the two candidates, the Philippines received 30 votes and Yugoslavia 24. There were three abstentions among the 57 votes cast. On the eleventh ballot, which was unrestricted, India received one vote, the Philippines 30 and Yugoslavia 25. Two abstentions were included among the 58 ballots.

Yesterdays' choking smog caused despondent atacks which caused two deaths and sent 350 other persons to hospitals for treatment. Charity Hospital, which treated most of yesterday's asthma victims, said those seeking relief dropped off to a handful today. Thick patches of the dark mist clouded the stretch from the lake Pontchartrain bridge to the junction of highways 11 and 90.

Coughing police patrols on foot guided motorists away from the fringe of the smog, or stopped them before they entered the most smoky sections.

Police at central complaint said several armored trucks carrying Federal Reserve funds were stranded in the smog. One report said there were six of the rolling vaults, carrying a total of $16,000,000.

ADM. MOUNTBATTEN IN U.S. TO MEET JOINT CHIEFS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (UP)—Adm. Earl Louis Mountbatten, first sea lord of the British Admiralty, arrived by plane from Toronto today for talks with the United States Chiefs of Staff and a tour of naval installations.

The Earl and Lady Mountbatten were met at the airport by Adm. Arleigh M. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations.

Mountbatten said his talks with defense officials will concern only "routine business." Burke invited Mountbatten to make the tour of naval installations to view recent American developments especially in the field of nuclear submarines, guided missile ships and jet seaplanes.

ALL ATHENS POLICE CALLED TO BAR RIOTS OVER CYPRUS

ATHENS, Oct. 27 (AP)—The entire Athens police force was called out today to prevent demonstrations against British rule in Cyprus.

Student organizations and the Committee for Union with Cyprus had circulated thousands of leaflets with anti-British slogans. Some were headed: "Throw the British Into the Sea." The leaflets called for demonstrations and street gatherings today throughout the city.

Riot squads took up positions at strategic points, and strong police contingents guarded the British and American embassies and mission buildings.

DESIGNER OF MIG JET GIVEN ORDER OF LENIN

LONDON, Oct. 27 (UP)—Radio Moscow said today the Order of Lenin had been awarded to Artem Mikoyan, designer of the Soviet Mig jet fighter plane.

The broadcast said the order was presented yesterday to Mikoyan yesterday by Soviet President Voroshilov "on his fiftieth birthday and for services in the sphere of new aviation technology."

2-ENGINE ATOM SUBMARINE IS PLANNED BY U.S.

Giant Craft Would Go as Fast as Surface Vessels, Adm. Rickover Discloses.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Navy plans to power its new, giant submarine with two atomic engines, giving the boat a speed equal to the fastest surface ships in a task force.

R. Adm. H. G. Rickover, the Government's top atomic submarine expert, included some new details on the projected supersonic submersible and other atomic submarines in an address to the San Francisco council of the Navy League, the Chamber of Commerce and the Commercial Club.

He predicted that by the 1960s all projected new Navy ships will be atomic powered. Rickover said Congress has authorized the building of six nuclear powered submarines in addition to the original Nautilus and the second A-bat built, the Seawolf.

"Four of these," said Rickover, "will be smaller than the Nautilus and Seawolf. Preparations to build one of them is going on at Mare Island naval shipyard, here in California. Another has already been started at the Electric Boat Co. in New London, Conn., and the other two will be built at the Portsmouth (N.H.) naval shipyard."

"One of the remaining two nuclear powered submarines will be a new attack type with a speed even greater than that of the Nautilus."

"The other will be our largest submarine, and the first one to be designed to be fast enough to operate in conjunction with a fast carrier task force and to provide it with radar information."

Rickover did not specify speed or dimensions of the giant submersible. However, there have been reports that it will displace about 5000 tons, compared with 3000 for the Nautilus.

The speed presumably will be over 30 knots, to match that of the fast carrier task force. A Navy says officially that the speed of the Nautilus is over 20 knots.

The four smaller submarines probably will be about 2200 tons, compared with the Nautilus's 3000 and the 1600 ton displacement of conventional, fleet-type submersibles.

Yugoslavia and the Philippines are aspirants for the seat held by Turkey.

Preference for Philippines.

The political contest between the United States and Russia resulted from the American preference for the Philippines as aspirants for the vacancy, first in opposition to Poland because it was not "peace-loving state" and later against Yugoslavia because of the pledge of support to the Philippines.

Russia has repeatedly asserted that in blocking the election of an east European delegation, the United States is fomenting renewal of the cold war and dampening the "spirit of Geneva," emanating from the summit conference of heads of state in Switzerland this summer.

G.M.C. EXPECTED TO EARN BILLION IN '55, A RECORD

9-Month Profit Reaches $913,000,000, Exceeding Figure for All of 1954.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—General Motors Corp., the world's largest industrial firm, apparently will show net profits of more than one billion dollars for 1955—a figure never before reached by any business enterprise.

Net income for the first nine months of this year reached $913,000,000, beating the record $834,000,000 earned in the full year of 1950.

Disclosing this yesterday, General Motors President Harlow H. Curtice and Chairman Alfred P. Sloan Jr. said that "the automobile industry is experiencing the best year in its history."

General Motors factories in the United States and Canada sold more automobiles—3,622,000—in the first nine months of this year than in all of 1954.

Billion a Month Sales.

Total dollar sales of all General Motors products set a new nine-month record of $9,544,000,000. This nearly equaled the big automaker's total sales for all of last year. Sales in the first nine months of 1954 were $7,219,000,000.

Earnings for the nine months shattered all prior records. After setting aside a whopping $1,063,000,000 for United States and foreign income taxes, General Motors had a net profit of $913,000,000. This compared with $585,000,000 in the first nine months of last year after taxes of $614,000,000.

Net profits for the third quarter came to $322,000,000 against $160,000,000 a year ago.

The report pointed out that the per share earnings are now computed on the basis of a three-for-one split of the common stock. On Sept. 30 each share of General Motors common was split into three new shares. Figured on that basis, earnings for the first nine months were equal to $3.31 a share, compared to $2.19 a share for the like year-ago period. Earnings for the third quarter were equal to 90 cents a share vs. 59 cents a year earlier.

ICELAND WRITER HALLDOR LAXNESS WINS NOBEL PRIZE

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 27 (AP)—The 1955 Nobel prize for literature was won today by an Icelandic novelist, Halldor Kiljan Laxness.

A leftist, he is active in the Communist-sponsored international peace movement, which previously awarded him a literary prize. He has called the North Atlantic Treaty Organization "a society of war lunatics."

Laxness, 53 years old, has been a candidate several years for the prize. He will receive $36,720 at the presentation of Nobel awards Dec. 10.

Laxness writes about the everyday life of the 150,000 persons of his home island in the North Atlantic. His "Independent People" sold heavily in the United States.

Laxness (pronounced Locks) began writing as a boy shepherd. Since 1917 he has been a perennial traveler. He spent some time in Hollywood. He left the United States in 1929, and spent considerable time in Russia in 1932, 1938 and 1953.

locomotives—totaled $3,031,000,000 in the July-August-September period of booming 1955. This compared with $2,153,000,000 in the third quarter of last year.

Automobile sales paced the rise. General Motors sold nearly 60 per cent more cars and trucks from its United States and Canadian plants during the third quarter of this year (1,184,961) than in the similar 1954 period. Nine-month sales of 3,622,000 cars and trucks topped the year-ago period by 1,000,000 and exceeded all of 1954 by 173,000.

Sales of defense items declined to $181,000,000 from $320,000,000 in the third quarter in 1954.

SHARETT HOPES PREVENTIVE WAR WON'T BE NEEDED

Flies to Geneva to See Molotov, Western Envoys—Warns About Egypt Arms.

GENEVA, Oct. 27 (AP)—Israeli Premier Sharett flew to Geneva today and said his country would fight a preventive war if necessary but "I hope to God she will not be driven to this."

Sharett said he came to Geneva to see Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and the Western Foreign Ministers but had no definite appointment with Molotov.

"My task," said Sharett, "is to attract international attention to the very serious danger confronting Israel as the result of acquisitions by Egypt—an avowed enemy of Israel—of large quantities of weapons from Soviet sources."

Asked if Israel would launch a preventive war, the premier replied:

"I hope to God that Israel will not be driven to this—to what might appear to be a shortcut to the solution of our grave problem."

Hesitating a moment, he then added:

"It's not the case of a preventive war. It's the case of meeting aggression."

"It should be the interest of civilized nations everywhere to see that Israel does not have to fight again—as she will fight if she has to."

Israel Tells of Penetration by Egypt, Syria Forces.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 27 (AP)—Israeli military spokesmen says today that Egyptian and Syrian military units had penetrated Israeli territory in two different demilitarized zones and said one Syrian soldier was believed killed.

The Egyptians were reported to have crossed into the El Ajza-Nizana zone near the Sinai border and entrenched themselves.

Another spokesman earlier said a Syrian military unit entered the demilitarized zone near Dan in northeastern Galilee and clashed with an Israeli police patrol, then withdrew. He said the Syrians took the body of one man back with them across the border.

An Egyptian communique charged that Israeli forces in the El Ajza zone are regular army troops, not police as the Israelis claim.

COUNTY COUNCIL VOTES FUNDS FOR TWO ELECTIONS, ASSAILS COLE

Charges Vote Board Chairman 'Milked Every Ounce of Publicity' Out of Dispute Over Lack of Action.

Funds to pay expenses of the special election in St. Louis county last Oct. 4 and also of the special bond election next Nov. 22 were voted by the County Council yesterday.

In making the $70,755 appropriations, council members criticized Election Board Chairman John J. Cole for "milking every ounce of publicity" out of the council's earlier failure to act.

Supervisor Luman F. Matthews also was taken to task for committing "a grievous error" last week in transferring $20,000 from Assessor Phil G. Deuser's contractual services account to his payroll account to permit hiring of extra help in connection with the real estate revaluation program.

Cole had announced Tuesday that some polling place officials would refuse to work Nov. 22 unless they were paid for Oct. 4, and that owners of polling places were refusing to make premises available for the same reason.

Letter to Matthews. The same day Cole wrote a confidential letter to Matthews warning that unless the council voted the necessary funds at its meeting yesterday the Election Board would take legal action today to force the council to act. Matthews read this letter to the council yesterday after having shown it to newspaper reporters earlier.

The county will be reimbursed by the state for expenses of the October election. The "grievous error" charge against Matthews was made by Councilman James A. Singer, Fort, 3rd District Republican, who questioned the supervisor's authority to transfer funds within Deuser's accounts without council approval.

Councilman James H. J. McNary (Dem.), Second District, repeated his earlier criticism that Matthews was "going ahead with his own program" for the property reassessment.

Council's Opinion Ordered. County Counselor Herbert C. Funke was directed by the council to give an opinion at next week's meeting on the supervisor's authority in making such transfers. The council previously passed an ordinance on the subject.

Immediately following the criticism of Matthews, the council proceeded to transfer his action by voting to transfer the $20,000 to Deuser's salary account and the rest of the money in the contractual services account—$70,755—to the county general revenue fund. From this fund the council appropriated $43,250 for October election expenses and salaries of regular employees the rest of this year. A bill was introduced for appropriation of $27,505, representing the remainder of the transferred account, to pay for the Nov. 22 election.

SUIT FOR DIVORCE FILED BY MRS. LEO C. FULLER

Suit for divorce was filed at Clayton today by Mrs. Leo C. Fuller, whose husband is chairman of the board of Stix, Baer & Fuller. They were married March 18, 1951, and separated last Oct. 3.

In her petition, Mrs. Fuller, the former Betty Jackson, alleged general indignities. She asked for alimony without specifying any amount. Both have been married previously. Their home is at 9 Upper Ladue road, Ladue.

PUBLIC HOUSING TO INCLUDE 216 UNITS FOR AGED

Plans Being Drawn for Apartments to Be Built When Funds Are Available.

Architects are drawing up plans for 216 apartments for aged persons to be located in new public housing projects, James Drought, deputy director of the St. Louis Housing Authority, announced yesterday.

Half of the units especially designed for elderly tenants will be in the Joseph M. Darst apartments near City Hospital. The other half will be in the as yet unnamed M-6 project in the DeSoto-Carr area.

In each of the projects one of the tall buildings will be reserved for the aged, and will provide special facilities as non-slip floors, safety bars in bathrooms, shelf and closet arrangements to simplify housekeeping, and ramps to accommodate wheel chairs.

Construction is some time in the future, being dependent on congressional appropriation of additional funds for public housing. In view of the limited funds now available, work on the Darst and M-6 projects has been divided into phases, and only the first half of each project is under construction at present. The apartments for the aged will be in the second phase, for which funds are yet to be allocated.

In planning the city's first public housing units for elderly persons, the housing authority decided it would not be desirable to segregate the aged in separate projects where they might feel cut off from normal life. By being in a project where there are children, but having a building of their own, the older persons will have quiet and privacy without isolation.

A survey by the sociology departments of St. Louis and Washington Universities indicated a definite need and demand for low-rent apartments to accommodate elderly persons. On the basis of this, the housing authority obtained federal authorization to draw up plans for 216 units as a start. More may be provided in later projects.

The plans for the aged were announced in the course of a panel discussion at an institute on problems of retirement held at the downtown Stix, Baer & Fuller department store. Several persons in the audience expressed dissatisfaction when Drought, in reply to a question, said the housing authority might be available to elderly couples, but not to single persons.

Ernest W. Burgess, professor emeritus of sociology at the University of Chicago, said employers have a responsibility to help prepare workers for life in retirement. Companies should have not only a pension plan to supplement social security benefits, he stated, but an educational program to instruct workers in retirement activities.

T. L. Gaukel, district manager of the Social Security Administration, said federal old age and survivors' benefits is the basic assurance for nine out of 10 workers that they will have some income when they are old and that if they die their families will have some protection.

I. Bigford Krasner, of the Jewish Community Centers Association, was panel moderator. The institute was sponsored by the Social Planning Council and Stix, Baer & Fuller.

Baine said the company at the time had not been informed that a strike had been called. On being notified it was a legal strike at that time, the company canceled the discharges, Baine said.

BIG SIGN URGING BOND ISSUE OK IN COUNTY FELLE

A large wooden sign urging passage of the proposed $39,712,000 St. Louis county bond issue, erected yesterday afternoon at Lackland road and Midland boulevard, was knocked down in the night.

The sign, supported by two four-by-four-inch posts, said: "Let's Extend Midland Boulevard Through Here—Vote Yes." Midland ends at this point and one of the projects in the bond issue is for its extension to complete a three-tenth-mile gap.

One post had been broken off and another pulled from the ground. A spokesman for the Citizens Bond Issue Campaign Committee, which authorized the signs, termed the incident the work of vandals.

He asserted the Midland boulevard project is a very popular proposal in that part of the county. About 50 more signs are being erected drawing attention to various bond issue proposals.

'HOT ROD' MOORE TO SEEK WRIT IN SUPREME COURT

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of Robert H. (Hot Rod) Moore from the St. Louis county jail will be presented to the Missouri Supreme Court tomorrow, said today.

Moore was ordered by the St. Louis Court of Appeals last Oct. 18 to start serving a 60-day sentence imposed in Glendale police court in 1953 when he was convicted of a traffic violation. Moore had sought a writ of habeas corpus in the lower court.

The writ in the Supreme Court, Morris said, will be based on the ground that the Glendale court was without jurisdiction because the original complaint had not been sworn to by the arresting police officer and that the Pike county court, which upheld the original conviction, also was without jurisdiction.

MEN SENTENCED TO 2 YEARS FOR POSSESSING MARIJUANA

James Pembroke Jr., 2700 block of Delmar boulevard, was sentenced to two years in prison today by United States District Judge Ruben M. Hulen on a plea of guilty of possessing six marijuana cigarettes. The judge denied a request for probation.

Assistant United States Attorney Robert C. Tucker said Pembroke, 26 years old, was arrested by narcotics agents in the 2900 block of Laclede avenue Oct. 17, when they were investigating another narcotics case.

Tucker said the agents became suspicious when Pembroke took a package from his pocket and threw it into an alley. They discovered the marijuana in the package.

$17,777 U.S. TAX CLAIM AGAINST PAULINE CLOIN

Pay-Off Inquiry Witness Said to Have $34,709 Unexplained Deposits Here.

A deficiency income tax claim for $17,777 has been filed against Pauline Cloin, key witness in the payoff inquiry, by the Internal Revenue Service at Washington.

A letter of deficiency, sent to her last Aug. 8 at 2915A Mackland avenue, claimed taxes due totaling $10,749 for the years 1951-53, plus $7,027 in penalties. The letter stated the deficiencies were based on "unexplained deposits" in two St. Louis banks, amounting to $34,709.

The deficiency claim became known after Miss Cloin filed an answer in the United States Tax Court at Washington last Monday denying that she owes the Government any additional taxes. She attributed the claim to "undue publicity" and termed the action "unlawful, excessive and arbitrary."

The $34,709 in deposits in Southwest Bank and Mercantile Commerce National Bank, she said, represent accumulated savings, deposits of salary, gifts, interest and principal payments on the sale of real estate, repayment of borrowed funds and redeposits. The answer asked the Tax Court to determine that there is no liability on her part.

Miss Cloin was an employee of Mrs. June Alma Lytz, who was shot and killed last April near her establishment, June's Bath & Massage Parlor, 308A North Theresa avenue. The shooting was not connected with the operation of the parlor, or with the alleged payoffs.

Following the death of her employer, the Cloin woman directed police to $14,335 hidden in the Theresa avenue establishment, stating the money belonged to her. After cash was turned over to the Public Administrator, who is handling Mrs. Lytz's estate, Miss Cloin subsequently told of alleged payoffs to police by Mrs. Lytz, touching off investigations by the circuit attorney and the police board.

The grand jury resumed the payoff inquiry at its session today. Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd said several witnesses may be heard. He declined to name the witnesses.

Edwin S. Hambley, personnel director of Swift & Co., was appointed an alternate grand juror today by Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin, to replace Noel N. Williams, who became a member of the jury after the resignation of Charles Ford as foreman.

Elmor, 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lockhart, 2811 North Tenth street, was in serious condition at City Hospital today from neck injuries suffered yesterday when she fell 12 feet from a porch at 2309A North Tenth, landing in a dirt yard.

The accident occurred when Elmor leaned against a defective railing while playing "school" with two other girls, police reported. Investigating officers said a 6-foot section of the railing gave way. None of the girls lived at 2309A North Tenth.

WOMAN SEEKS EX-MATE AFTER DEATH OF CHILD

Mother Swapped Husband With Another — Girl Succumbs in Granite City.

CHESTERTON, Ind., Oct. 27 (UP)—Mrs. Phyllis Heller, who swapped husbands with another woman, tried to find her ex-mate today to tell him that their 7-year-old daughter is dead.

The girl, Karen Johnson, died in Granite City, Ill., Monday while the couples were traveling on separate routes on honeymoon to California.

Mrs. John P. Heller said here that her new daughter-in-law and her son, John, are now driving to Aberdeen, S.D., to bury the child. The father, Richard Johnson, is driving to Fresno, Calif., on U.S. 66 with his new family, Mrs. Heller said.

The mother is trying to locate her ex-husband to tell him to come to the funeral. It was learned that Johnson had applied for a job at the weekly Corcoran Journal in the small community of Corcoran, Calif., about 45 miles south of Fresno. Johnson wired the newspaper last week that he planned to pay off.

Both men were in the same line of work. Johnson was a printer and linotype operator for the Chesterton Tribune and Heller as operator of the Chesterton News, an advertising paper.

Their wives met at women's church meetings and became friends. They introduced each other to their husbands and the two couples became close friends.

Last summer they spent a vacation together in California. Johnson married the Heller woman in 1948. On Aug. 15, both were filed for divorce suits in Valparaiso, Ind., on grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. Last week, on Oct. 18, the divorces were granted. On Oct. 19 the wives married the husbands of their best friends in a double ceremony at Michigan City, Ind.

They were bound for San Diego until Karen's death ended their honeymoon.

The attending physician at St. Elizabeth Hospital in Granite City said today the Johnson child died at 4 a.m. Monday after an infection in her lungs suddenly became worse and plugged the air passages, causing death in a matter of minutes.

Karen was brought to the emergency room Saturday night about to choke to death, the physician said. Her mother reported the child had slept for two hours on the back seat of the Heller car and awoke choking. Her vocal cords had suddenly swelled enough to block off her breathing, perhaps because of an allergic reaction, the physician said.

An emergency operation and the insertion of a metal tube in Karen's throat brought the original difficulty under control. But the infection in the lungs spread rapidly in spite of the administration of antibiotics, the physician said.

Kansas City Attorney Under Inquiry by Tax Scandal Jury

Newcombe Says Grand Jurors Want to Know if He and Other Lawyers Influenced Decisions.

The federal grand jury investigating tax scandals in the Truman Administration is exploring whether Harry I. Schwimmer, Kansas City attorney, and other lawyers were able to influence decisions in tax cases, Wyllys Newcombe, special assistant to the Attorney General, said yesterday.

His statement came during arguments before United States District Judge George H. Moore on motions to quash subpoenas duces tecum issued for Schwimmer's records in the income tax case of Irving Sachs, president of Shu-Stiles, Inc., a wholesale shoe firm, and Laura Taylor, an officer of the firm.

Judge Moore upheld the subpoenas with the reservation that the court itself shall take any action required to protect the confidential relationship of Schwimmer and clients not mentioned in the subpoenas.

Newcombe, in his arguments that the subpoenas be upheld, said the grand jury is seeking something other than information on Sachs and Shu-Stiles. The jury's investigation is into "Schwimmer's role and conduct in the Sachs case to determine whether it was unlawfully handled in Washington through favoritism or political corruption."

"Jurors want to investigate actions of other attorneys in tax cases in Washington," he continued. "We want to know if Schwimmer claimed to have influence and how he handled cases other than the Sachs case. I would respectfully say on the basis of what has been before the jury, that it is investigating Mr. Schwimmer to determine if he was able to influence Government."

He did not name the other lawyers.

Sidney Glaser, attorney for Schwimmer, argued that the subpoenas were too general and would if upheld, break the confidential relationship between attorney and client. The law in this case, he said, provides that only the client may waive the confidential status.

Newcombe said Mrs. Taylor never was a client of Schwimmer, and that Sachs and the shoe firm's representatives had appeared before the grand jury and waived their rights to the confidential relationship

Number of Taxpayers Claiming Undelivered Refunds Tops 1000

102 More Applications Filed in Person—
Additional Requests Made by Mail.

The number of federal income taxpayers claiming undelivered refunds here since publication of their names started Oct. 16 passed the 1000 mark today.

There were 102 applications filed in person yesterday at the Internal Revenue Service office. Additional claims were made in letters to the agency.

Names of 3705 taxpayers having money due are being published by the Post-Dispatch. The refunds range from 2 cents to $981 and are for the years 1953 and 1954. In most instances they were returned to the revenue office by the Post Office as undeliverable.

Claim Procedure.
Claims may be filed by letter or in person at the refund office in the basement of the Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street. Identification is required, preferably copies of tax returns and W-2 tax withholding forms.

NATIONAL SECURITY COUNCIL MEETS FOR THREE HOURS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The National Security Council met for nearly three hours at the White House today. As usual there was no announcement as to subjects discussed. It was the fifth meeting of the top Government security planning group since President Eisenhower suffered his heart attack in Denver. Vice President Nixon presided and remained at the White House for lunch before going to the airport to fly to New York where tonight he accepts a medal from the West Side Association of Commerce.

When Nixon left the White House, a reporter commented to him that a large number of military representatives had attended the council session.
"All I can say is there is no emergency," Nixon replied.

WAY CLEARED FOR MERGER OF AFL AND CIO

Meany and Reuther Announce Agreement on Staff Arrangements After Talks.

By SPENCER R. McCULLOCH
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27—The way was paved today for amalgamation of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations into an unprecedented 15,000,000-member unified labor movement to be created here through convention action next December.

George Meany, president of the AFL, and Walter P. Reuther, head of the CIO, announced jointly last night after a series of unity committee meetings that staff arrangements for the new organization had virtually been agreed upon and that the proposed constitution would go before the conventions without substantial changes. The AFL and CIO are to hold separate conventions here Dec. 1 and 2 and then will convene together on Dec. 5 in what will constitute the first convention of the new organization.

CIO to Name Organizer.
Under terms of the merger, the CIO was enabled to name the director of organization, who is scheduled to lead a concentrated drive to organize the unorganized, especially in areas in which unions are weak, as in some sections of the South.

Reuther announced that the CIO executive committee had agreed unanimously upon an organizational director who presently is an executive of a major union. His name will be disclosed by Reuther in Detroit today after he has had opportunity to learn of his selection, approved by the AFL.

Sentiment of the rank and file appears overwhelmingly in favor of the merger, Meany and Reuther agreed, although it has not been put to a general vote. Many unions have endorsed the amalgamation at their separate conventions.
"If the rank and file had made the decision," Reuther observed, "there would have been a united movement long ago. The difficulty was at the top. The workers have always paid for the decision that caused the split in the ranks of labor."

Meany, too, spoke of what he termed the "tremendous desire" of wage earners to be united under a single banner. He said he had gauged sentiment at visits to union meetings all over the country as well as through representations reaching AFL headquarters in Washington.

Practical Problems.
Both labor leaders conceded there were practical problems to be worked out, including jurisdictional difficulties and conflicts of personal ambitions arising where one executive job is sought by several applicants but they maintained they would be solved gradually within the structure of the merged body.
Reuther said that "no one has a magic wand" to solve immediately such difficulties but he added that if a spirit of self-sacrifice had not been manifested "we would not be sitting here now."

Meany, who will head the new organization, emphasized that autonomy of unions would be protected. The constitution, to be submitted to the conventions, he added, has been altered to specifically contain the word "voluntary" in referring to action on agreements to solve jurisdictional disputes which may be advanced by officers of the new body. Such disputes are particularly acute in the chemical and textile fields but leaders of both movements agreed it was folly to spend "10 times more on raids than on organization."

"Work for the amalgamation is practically completed," Meany said, "and the new organization is dedicated to the welfare of every man, woman and child in America."

Meany said that the new body would engage in political activities to protect interests of trade unionists but would not form a political party or be tied to the kite of any political party.

Criticism by Lewis.
Prior to the joint conference, Reuther replied to recent observations by John L. Lewis, head of the independent United Mine Workers but a CIO founder after seceding from the AFL, to the effect that the new body would possess too much centralized authority.
"I speak for Lewis only as a gentleman in Washington," Reuther said that the only centralized authority under the new constitutions afforded a tool to enable executives to deal "aggressively and without fear or favor with any corrupt influence."

"We make no bones about it," Reuther said, "but centralized authority exists only in the area of corruption, Communism, and racketeering. The rest is autonomy of unions."
"But we intend to preserve the dignity, decency and moral standards of the labor movement," Reuther, in discussing internal problems, observed it would be a "great tragedy" if the CIO Transport Workers Union, headed by belligerent Michael J. Quill should finally decide not to go along with the merger. He made clear the merger would be effected regardless. His union, the powerful United Automobile Workers, has endorsed it.

Change in Attitude.
A changed attitude of labor in modern times is reflected in the difference between the preamble to the AFL constitution, written in the 1880s, and the preamble for the merger constitution. In the first, classes are set against classes. It is declared that a struggle is going on in all nations "between the capitalist and the laborer" growing in intensity annually and working disastrous results to the toiling millions "if they do not organize."

No class warfare is indicated in the approved preamble to the new constitution. Object of the movement is defined as "an expression of the hopes and aspirations of the working people of America."
But, it points out, "at the collective bargaining table, in the community, in the exercise of the rights and responsibilities of citizenship, we shall responsibly serve the interests of all the American people."

PRESIDENT TALKS WITH 2 AIDS ON JANUARY SPEECH

easy chair before returning to bed.

Wants to Spread Work. Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower normally begins work on the State of the Union message early in December, but that the President decided to start earlier this year so he could spread the work over a long period.

Adams, McCann and Gen. Persons returned to Washington from the presidential plane, Columbine, after the conference, Hagerty said.

The President alternated yesterday afternoon between rest and mild exercise.

A hospital bulletin said Mr. Eisenhower walked unassisted from his bed to an easy chair a half dozen times during the afternoon. The chair was placed about six or seven steps from the bed.

In the morning, Mr. Eisenhower made two round trips from bed to chair, for a total of eight up until 5 p.m. each time he rested briefly in the chair before walking back to bed and climbing in unaided.

Benson to Call Saturday.

Hagerty said no official visits were scheduled for tomorrow. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will arrive Saturday for a conference with Mr. Eisenhower on what Hagerty described as "agricultural problems and legislative recommendations."

The secretary has said his department is seeking to find "additional" solutions to the farm price dilemma without abandoning the Administration's program of flexible farm price supports.

Benson will be accompanied by Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, who will confer with the President Monday. Summerfield is a former chairman of the Republican National Committee, but Hagerty said the conversation would be confined to post office topics.

The press secretary said Mr. Eisenhower's physicians, at least one of whom was in the hospital room each time he got up yesterday, saw no signs that the walking tired or strained him.

"But let me qualify that," Hagerty added. "When you've been in bed for a month, it's almost like getting your legs back to work."

Sits Up Unassisted.

It was the second day Mr. Eisenhower has been allowed to walk, and Hagerty said the President himself determined yesterday how many times he wanted to get up. On Tuesday, when he took his first real steps, the easy chair was within one or two steps of his bed.

When the President sat up in bed yesterday, he did so unassisted, another "first." Previously part of the bed had been elevated to help him up from a prone position. At other times in the afternoon, Mr. Eisenhower worked on an oil painting of a California landscape, sitting up in the easy chair and using a plastic easel given him by Mrs. Eisenhower.

The increased amount of walking bore out the prediction of Dr. Paul Dudley White of Boston, the President's chief physician. Last Saturday, Dr. White, a heart specialist, said Mr. Eisenhower would begin walking this week, the fifth week of his convalescence from a heart attack.

Next week, Dr. White said, Mr. Eisenhower should be able to "walk freely." At the end of the week, the physician added, the President would be quite mobile and be able to dispense with his wheelchair for most of the time.

No Comment on 1956.

Despite the President's continued recovery, Hagerty has steadfastly refused to comment on questions about Mr. Eisenhower's plans for 1956.

Told yesterday of a report that the President has made up his mind not to run for reelection next year, Hagerty again declined to comment, saying he had "heard a lot of reports."

The press secretary has said previously Mr. Eisenhower has promised him that when he is ready to talk about his plans, Hagerty will be one of the first to know.

Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower looked at newspapers for the first time yesterday, paying particular attention to the pictures photographers took of him on Tuesday. Previously, some newspapers have been read to the President, Hagerty added.

The President, he said, thought the pictures "turned out quite well" and requested copies of some of them.

George Allen a Visitor.

Mr. Eisenhower had one social visitor yesterday, George E. Allen, Washington (D.C.) businessman and a close friend of both Mr. Eisenhower and former President Truman. Allen chatted with Mr. Eisenhower for 15 minutes.

Adams will attend a Cabinet meeting in Washington tomorrow. He will accompany Summerfield back on Saturday on the presidential plane, Columbine, which will stop in Fargo, N.D., to pick up Benson.

In addition to the State of the Union address, Mr. Eisenhower probably will begin work in the near future on the two other big messages to Congress, the budget and economic report.

All Will Accept 1956 Decision. President's Secretary Says.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Oct. 27 (AP)—Bernard M. Shanley, secretary to President Eisenhower, said last night that the President "knows he will get well," but whether he decides to run again or not in 1956 "all our people will accept that decision."

It was the first time anyone so close to the President has discussed in public the prospect that Mr. Eisenhower may not be a candidate next year. Shanley, who called on the President in his Denver hospital room last Saturday, came here to address a Republican rally in his home county of Somerset.

Touching on the President's illness since 1956, Shanley said: "The President is going to get well. He knows he will get well."

"No matter what the President's decision in 1956 is—whether he will carry the Republican banner or not—certainly all our people will accept that decision."

"You know how each and every one of you feels about the President. Few have done what he has done for us. Now we have a chance to show the depth of our gratitude by carrying on his policies and working to achieve his objectives at all levels of government."

DULLES OFFERS REDS GUARANTEES AGAINST GERMANY

of German unity to the elaboration of a security system.

"In the absence of such a decision, no further progress would be possible."

Pinay rejected any thought that the West would scrap the Atlantic alliance and supersede it with a new all-European security system. He said that so long as the world remains divided "it would be illusion for Western Europe to base its security on a purely European security plan."

Would Be Progressive.

As an inducement to Molotov, Pinay added that the security plan would be carried out progressively, taking account of everyone's "legitimate interests" once the decision is made.

Macmillan repeated that the West was ready to make every effort here to keep the world on the road to peace despite a background of new dangers.

"We must recognize that there are considerable gaps between the positions hitherto taken by the Western powers and by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics," he said.

"We believe that these can be bridged, and we are determined to make every effort to achieve success."

These statements of Western policy set the theme of the first session of a conference widely viewed as the acid test of the friendly spirit produced by last July's Geneva meeting of the Big Four heads of government.

The first meeting ran from 4:15 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. (9:15 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., St. Louis time). The next plenary session was set for 10:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Just before the conference opened word of a new French political crisis jarred Western solidarity. Pinay announced as a result that he would fly back to Paris tomorrow to await the outcome of a vote of confidence in the French National Assembly which might topple the Faure government.

If the government falls, Pinay would return to Geneva as a "lame duck" without power to negotiate.

Pinay's return was more or less of an event in the West's basic stand but in fact it would be the Western "Big Two," Britain and the United States, that would be dealing with Russia in this sequel to last July's summit conference.

Already the danger of war in the Middle East and the Soviet bid for power in that strategic region was beginning to overshadow the main issues of European security and German reunification. The French political situation further chilled hopes for an early end to the cold war.

Earlier in the day the Western powers had agreed in a strategy session to attempt to seize the initiative from the Russians. They decided to present their package peace plan to Molotov at the earliest possible moment, and thus put him on the defensive at the beginning.

The Western Big Three's plan, backed by the entire North Atlantic alliance membership, called for:

1. The reunification of Germany by free elections—a goal the West has sought through all the years of cold war.

2. An offer to Russia, in return, of non-aggression guarantees, as a means of calming any legitimate Soviet fears for security.

Authoritative sources said the West is prepared to go even further once Germany is again unified. It would consider a general European security pact that would include the Soviet satellites as well.

Test of Good Faith.

The offer would be a quick test of Moscow's readiness to negotiate in good faith on this first item.

The West suspected the Kremlin was not ready to negotiate on German unity and the offer would smoke them out quickly at the outset.

The Western Big Three also took up at their pre-conference meeting today the critical situation which suddenly had exploded in the Middle East as a result of Communist arms sales to the Arab states. They decided such discussions should be outside the main Geneva arena.

The seriousness of the Middle Eastern threat was underscored by Israeli Premier Sharett who said "Israel will fight again if she must."

Sharett arrived here from Paris to renew his appeals to the Western foreign ministers for arms and security guarantees for Israel as a result of the Communist arms sales.

West Not Optimistic.

The West was not optimistic that the parley would achieve any substantial results. The two sides were still on opposite sides of the fence as concerned Germany. The main Soviet aim in Europe appeared to be to keep Germany as two separate states and to try to break up the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The arms deals in the Middle East appeared to be part of a plan to break up the Baghdad pact linking Britain, Iran, Iraq, Pakistan and Turkey along the southern borders of Russia.

Both East Germany and West Germany had delegations in Geneva ready to be called into conference if needed, but there was little chance of the session turning into a six-power meeting.

West Germany and the Big Three want no formal dealings with Communist East Germany.

Italy was an interested bystander, too. Italian Ambassador Renzo Bova-Scoppa was sent here as a special observer in line with Italy's desire for a "fifth big power role" in any discussion of the Middle East—which is Italy's own backyard.

EX-NAZI DOCTOR CHARGED WITH STERILITY TESTS

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Jewish Council in Germany yesterday filed a criminal suit against former Maj. Gen. Carl Clausberg, one-time head of the medical testing station at Auschwitz concentration camp.

Clausberg, an officer in Hitler's Nazi elite guard, was released this month from a Russian prison and repatriated to Germany.

In its suit, the council accused Clausberg of "repeatedly inflicting grave bodily injury" on Jewish women inmates used in sterilization experiments at Auschwitz. It said that many of the women were "permanently crippled or doomed to die."

At his Kiel home, Clausberg said he welcomed the suit to clear himself of the charges. He said all the women subjected to the experiments had agreed to the treatment.

$43,500 IN GEMS STOLEN FROM NEW YORK HOTEL SUITE

The New York Herald Tribune—Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. NEW YORK, Oct. 27—Gems valued at $43,500 were stolen from the ninth-floor suite of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Levis, retired Ohio industrialist, in the Plaza Hotel, police reported today.

Police said the suite, rented on a year-round basis by the Levises, was not broken into and there is a possibility that the robber or robbers had a passkey.

The theft occurred yesterday between 3:45 p.m. and 5:20 p.m., when Mrs. Levis left the suite, and 5:20 p.m. when she returned. Police said the jewelry was stolen from a jewelry box on top of a bedroom dresser and nothing else in the apartment was taken.

Levis, retired chairman of the board of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., was in Toledo at the time of the theft.

PRESS AID QUILTS HARRIMAN, TAKES JOB WITH STEVENSON

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 27 (AP)—Roger Tubby, who was presidential press secretary in the last few months of Harry Truman's Administration, will become press secretary for Adlai Stevenson next week. Tubby announced last night that he had resigned his position as information chief of the New York state commerce department. Gov. Averell Harriman said in a statement, "I wish him well. I know that he will do a good job for Mr. Stevenson."

Tubby also is co-publisher of the Adirondack Enterprise at Saranac Lake.

MUST GIVE TOO,
FUND CHIEF SAYS

Chairman of United Drive Says Housewives Will Welcome Solicitation.

Solicitation of residential areas is vital if the United Fund's goal of $8,245,925 is to be reached, William A. McDonnell, general chairman of the campaign, said today.

"Most housewives will welcome the chance to give, even though their husbands also give at their places of employment, because they are expressing their individual sense of community responsibility," McDonnell said.

Residential canvassing will also enable the fund to reach retired persons, he pointed out.

One hundred and six United States Civil Service Commission employees here have pledged $1667, 49 per cent more than was donated by that group last year, it was reported. There are 19,000 other Federal employees in this area from whom donations will be sought.

A check for $1501 was presented yesterday by Charles J. Becherer, chairman of the employe-management group, to Clyde Miller, manager of the Commerce department field service and United Fund district chairman for all federal agencies excluding military in the Federal Building.

A bulletin urging full support of the drive has been sent to all administrative heads of federal agencies in the St. Louis area by John W. Claiborne, president of the Greater St. Louis Federal Business Association.

The first district in the city division to go over its quota in the drive is the south-central district, headed by Mrs. Burt Dodson, 3221A Lafayette avenue, it was reported today. The district's goal of $1426 was exceeded by $35.

United Fund volunteer speakers appeared before nine groups yesterday to describe the importance of giving to the fund.

The groups were: Mandel Manufacturing Co., Reliable Clothing Co., Cathedral Luncheon Club, Kirkwood Rotary Club, North St. Louis Kiwanis Club, Joseph T. Ryerson and Son, Inc., St. Louis State Hospital, Knapp-Monarch Co. and the St. Louis County Junior Chamber of Commerce. The drive ends Nov. 22.

WOMAN PASSENGER HURT
SERIOUSLY IN AUTO CRASH

Mrs. Burdette Wright, 1710 Dolman street, suffered a serious head injury yesterday when the automobile in which she was a passenger struck another car at Page boulevard and Aubert avenue.

Her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Betty Wright, of the same address, was treated at City Hospital for minor injuries and released.

The driver of the car, Donald Cox, also of 1710 Dolman, told police his brakes failed as he approached the intersection. He and the driver of the other machine, Charles Kilgore, 700 block of North Euclid avenue, were not injured. Both were booked for failure to possess driver's licenses.

HOUSING AUTHORITY NAMES
E.C. FARRELL VICE CHAIRMAN

Eugene C. Farrell, chairman of the Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority of St. Louis, was elected vice chairman yesterday of the St. Louis Housing Authority.

Farrell, a manufacturer's agent, lives in the St. Regis Apartments, 4954 Lindell boulevard, and heads the co-operative organization of tenants owning the apartments.

He has been a member of the Land Clearance Authority since October 1953 and has also been a member of the Housing Authority. The Housing Authority is charged with providing low-rental housing facilities and the Land Clearance Authority handles urban redevelopment.

AWARDS TO ARMY WORKERS

Seven employees of the Army's Transportation Supply and Maintenance Command, 901 Washington avenue, have received cash awards totaling $165 for their time and money saving suggestions to improve daily operations. Col. William B. Bunker, commanding officer, announced today.

The awards were presented to: Miss Angela L. Rovira, 3328 Carson road, Normandy; Miss Marge D. Werkman, 3633A Mercantile street; Miss Jane A. Helinski, 4516 Margaretta avenue; Joseph C. Ambrose, 9136 Eastern road, Brentwood; Raymond T. Holland, 4251A North Nineteenth street; William H. Gillespie, 729 Walton avenue, and Norbert E. Bitterman, 9085 Wrenwood lane, Brentwood.

NEBRASKA PUBLIC UTILITY TO BUILD ATOM PLANT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Nebraska's two Senators announced jointly today that the Atomic Energy Commission has approved the application of Consumers Public Power District in their state for authorization to build an atomic power plant.

It is the first such project approved by the AEC for a publicly-owned utility.

The plant is to be near Beatrice, Neb., in the southeastern part of the state near the Kansas line.

COURT UPHOLDS 'HARRASSING' BY LABOR UNION

Rules Such Tactics as Slow-Downs Do Not Mean Bargaining in Bad Faith.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals ruled today that a labor union may use "harrassing tactics" during negotiations with an employer—including work slow-downs—without being guilty of failure to bargain in good faith.

The court's 2-to-1 decision struck down a ruling by the National Labor Relations Board that the CIO Textile Workers Union failed to bargain in good faith with the Personal Products Co.

Judge Henry W. Edgerton, speaking for himself and Judge David L. Bazelon, said labor law did not forbid use of economic pressure in support of lawful demands.

The labor board said the union engaged in slow-downs and unauthorized extensions of rest periods, walkouts or partial strikes and similar tactics during negotiations with the company. The concern is a New Jersey corporation, and has one of its plants in Chicago. Its products include surgical dressings.

Dissenting View. Judge John A. Danaher, who dissented, said the union did not challenge the board's findings that it engaged in "harrassing tactics." He disagreed with the majority finding that such tactics may not be considered as evidence that a union failed to bargain collectively in good faith.

"The majority lay aside the threats of reprisals, the blocking of ingress by cars into the plant by the shop chairman and various other coercive conduct," Judge Danaher said.

Judge Edgerton said for the court majority that courts have held that similar union tactics "are unprotected" in the sense that employers may lawfully discharge employees for using them. He added, however:

"As the board (NLRB) intimated, the union might have called a strike; no inference of failure to bargain in good faith could have been drawn from a total withdrawal of services during negotiations, in order to put economic pressure on the employer to yield to the union's demands."

"As a simple matter of fact, it is equally clear that no such inference can be drawn from a partial withholding of services at that time and for that purpose."

"Aside from some specified conduct, such as jurisdictional strikes and secondary boycotts, we do not find that Congress limited the use of economic pressure in support of lawful demands."

Another Decision Cited. In his dissent, Judge Danaher quoted from another NLRB decision which said "an employee cannot work and strike at the same time. He cannot continue his employment and openly or secretly refuse to do his work. He cannot collect wages for his employment, and, at the same time, engage in activities to injure or destroy his employer's business."

He commented: "I believe that to be a correct statement of the law, and I suspect that the Supreme Court thinks so, too."

If the Government takes that view after studying the opinion, it can ask the Supreme Court to review and overturn the Court of Appeals ruling.

The bargaining involved in the case began shortly before expiration of a contract between the company and the union in October 1952. At the end of the year no agreement had been reached and the NLRB moved in.

Judge Edgerton said the union "did not break off negotiations," and the NLRB "raised no question about the union's having met and conferred with the company and participated in the arguments and persuasion inherent in the collective bargaining process."

The union contested only that part of the NLRB's order holding it had failed to bargain in good faith.

Other parts of the order forbade the union to threaten employees with reprisals for work-

BELL-UNION TALKS RESUME; 'A LITTLE PROGRESS' MADE

Contract negotiations between Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and CIO Communications Workers of America continued here today.

Talks yesterday brought "a little progress," Frank P. Longman, assistant director of the union's District 6, reported. The district represents 51,000 Southwestern Bell employees.

Union members have authorized a strike if necessary to enforce contract demands.

CHRISTMAS COMES TONIGHT

Smart Christmases start now—October is the time for Daddy to fashion those lawn lights that say "Merry Christmas"—shaped like giant angels, candles, or stockings. It's the time for Mom to cook Christmas goodies and stash them in the freezer. Time for anybody to make front-door decorations to be talked about. Time for everybody to read the November issue of The American Home—full of "can't-wait" ideas for the smartest Christmas of all. 25¢ at your newsstand.

PAY-OFF INQUIRY WITNESS IS ARRESTED IN ALTON

James Eugene Davidson, 4300 block of Chouteau avenue, operator of a drug store and a key witness in the circuit court grand jury investigation of alleged police pay-offs, was arrested yesterday in Alton for allegedly carrying a concealed weapon and for a traffic violation.

Davidson's machine struck and slightly injured Alton Motorcycle Patrolman Homer

Wallace at Broadway and Easton street. Following his arrest, he was released at the request of Assistant Circuit Attorney Robert Habenicht of St. Louis, who told Alton authorities Davidson might be needed to appear before the grand jury here today.

Davidson is to be arranged tomorrow at 9 a.m. before Alton Police Magistrate Fred Schreiber. Police said a revolver was found in the glove compartment of his automobile after the accident. Davidson is alleged to have been the intermediary used by Ethel Clift, brothel operator, in making payments to Detective Capt. William Greenspan and Police Lt. F. Lyman Davis, both of whom have been indicted.

Walda Winchell Divorce Off. LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—A second honeymoon in Mexico City was on the itinerary today for Walter Winchell's daughter Walda and hotelman Hyatt von Dehn. The couple dropped divorce plans and headed south of the border yesterday.

DOWD CRITICIZED BY REPUBLICAN IN GREEN CASE

J. M. Whealen Says Prosecutor Failed to Act, Cites Pay Rise Bills.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd was criticized by J. M. Whealen, former Young Republican National Committeeman from Missouri, in a talk last night before the City Young Republican Club at Hotel Kingsway. Dowd is a Democrat.

Whealen said no action has been taken by Dowd to prosecute State Representative John W. Green, who was charged with obtaining $600 under false pretenses in an indictment voted July 8, 1954.

"Green was returned to the Legislature in November and actively supported House Bills 203 and 204, both of which were signed by the Governor," Whealen declared.

Pay Rise Bills.
"These bills called for pay increases for the circuit attorney and his assistants. Was Green's trial withheld because of the importance of his vote on these bills directly affecting the circuit attorney?"

Whealen said Dowd promised prompt and vigorous prosecution of former Aldermen Walter W. Ziegenfuss and Ben Oliver, originally indicted on bribery charges.

"Dowd finally permitted these two to plead guilty to lesser crimes and then recommended a sentence much lighter than the maximum set by law," the speaker asserted.

"One wonders why the knight in shining armor does not live up to advance billing? Does the party dictate all of his moves?"

Cites Charge Against Police.
Continuing, Whealen said: "Dowd has now injured the morale of the Police Department by his broad statement made recently."

"He said that the police officers making $4500 to $4800 a year have been living better than a lot of people making $15,000 a year."

"A pretty general statement, but one not proven and not necessarily indicative of Dowd's implied charges of pay-offs."

"Many policemen on the force during the depression years were able to buy property and make investments, the income of which today may equal or surpass their police pay.

"Must all of the force feel the probing eyes of everyone because a rattled circuit attorney seeks to slash out at everyone to divert attention from himself?"

10 DAYS IN WORKHOUSE, FINE FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Andrew Johnson, 900 block of Kodiamont avenue, was fined $100 and sentenced to 10 days in City Workhouse yesterday by Police Judge Morris Rosenthal, who found him guilty on a charge of driving when intoxicated. Johnson, a Negro, was fined $100 in 1952 for a similar offense.

Ivan Edwards, 5500 block of Ashland avenue, was fined $150 by Judge Rosenthal after being found guilty on charges of careless driving and driving while drunk.

Fred Mitchell, 1400 block of South Seventh street, was fined $125 by Police Judge Robert G. Dowd after he pleaded guilty of careless and drunken driving.

MAN WHO SEIZED GUNMAN IN TAVERN HELD AS ROBBER

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Detectives looking for a robber found him yesterday—in their own police station.

James Moravec Jr., was sitting at a tavern bar when a man carrying a rifle came in, ordered a drink, then fired a shot into the ceiling. Moravec grabbed the rifle and held the man until police arrived.

Then he drove to the police station to help in preparation of a complaint in the incident.

While he was in the station, Detectives Earl Dwyer and John McDonald returned from investigating a $20 holdup which had occurred at a nearby service station a few minutes earlier.

Parked in front of the police station, the detectives spotted a car meeting the description of the one used in the robbery. It was Moravec's. A revolver was found on the seat.

The detectives said Moravec apparently had stopped at the service station en route from the tavern to the police station. He was identified by the filling station attendant.

ARMY TO RETRAIN MEN CHECKING SECURITY CASES

Brucker Worried About 'Defects and Abuses' in Inquiry—Agents Returning to School.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The Army, worried about some "defects and abuses" in its personnel security program, is sending its intelligence agents back to school.

Secretary Wilber M. Brucker announced the plan yesterday. He told a news conference he felt that some Army procedures for handling security investigations "are not up to the standards the Army ought to have."

Orders have been issued to give every field intelligence agent special intelligence training if he has not had such training in recent years.

The schooling will preferably be given at the Army Intelligence Center in Baltimore, Brucker said. Refresher courses were decreed for all officers and men who went through the training some years ago.

Additionally, Brucker directed staff officers to draw up a set of high standards for all personnel handling security matters.

He said the standards should require demonstrated good judgment on the part of the intelligence agents, absence of religious and racial bias, a degree of inquisitive mentality and some experience in law enforcement.

Brucker said he had ordered a review of security operations after studying one case personally and apologizing to Prof. Alfred Y. Kelly of Wayne University, Detroit, for a "mistake" in accusing Kelly of supporting a Communist front organization.

The apology was made last Sept. 9. "Improperly and carelessly performed" investigative work by the Army had led to the charge, Brucker said at that time.

Investigating agents must be indoctrinated in preparing full, fair and complete reports, Brucker said, and they will be held accountable for passing on complete information so that the judge advocate's office will have the full analysis of each case.

Brucker said he will hold the judge advocate responsible in every review of derogatory information, and that the Army's regular legal officers must "not be just scribes (copyists)," but that they must insist on seeing the full source records of every case they pass on.

OUSTED SCIENTIST SPURNS OLD JOB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (UP)—The Civil Service Commission has offered to rehire a young Ohio scientist who was fired in 1954 on "guilt-by-kinship" charges, it was disclosed today.

However, the scientist, Fred A. Karpoff Jr., Willoughby, O., said he would not return to his former job with the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics.

Karpoff told reporters in Cleveland he was "overwhelmed" by withdrawal of the security risk charges but planned to stay in his present post as a metallurgist for Chase Brass Co., Cleveland.

"My suspension was made in haste and fear," he said. "I'm glad that the fear has now been overcome."

The civil service decision was disclosed in a letter from the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights to Senator Pat McNamara (Dem.), Michigan, who had asked the subcommittee to investigate the case.

The subcommittee said Karpoff was dismissed on grounds that his "close and continued association" with his father and mother made him a security risk.

The subcommittee said that "as we read the record, the only substantial charge against the parents was that they had been members of the defunct international workers order for the purpose of obtaining cheap insurance."

Asked whether the women officials' presence was significant of "the Geneva spirit," Ilyichev smiled.

"It's a sign of equal rights,"

MARILYN MONROE TO SIGN
FINAL DIVORCE PAPERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—The marriage of Marilyn Monroe and Joe DiMaggio can be ended officially Monday, and the actress said today she has no plans for remarriage to anyone.

The year and a day wait required by California law for a final divorce decree expires this Saturday. A spokesman for Miss Monroe said she would sign final papers in New York Monday to be returned to and filed by her California attorney.

The filing will be the last step needed to obtain the final decree.

The actress filed for divorce last year, nine months after she and DiMaggio were married. She complained her husband had treated her with "coldness and indifference."

Blair Expected to Announce Governor Candidacy Shortly

Lieutenant Governor Says He Will Not Run for Senator Against Incumbent Hennings.

By HERBERT A. TRASK
State Political Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. is expected to make a formal announcement of his candidacy for Governor within a short time, to halt rumors in party circles that he may not run for the office, it was learned today.

Blair, who has been conducting an active but unannounced campaign for the governorship for several years, has told friends and supporters that he has decided to make an early statement on his candidacy, as soon as he can set up a campaign organization.

The Lieutenant Governor had hoped to postpone making a formal announcement until early next year. However, he has decided to toss his hat into the ring with a formal statement earlier, on advice of some of his backers, to put a stop to talk that he was not going to run for Governor, or that he planned to run for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator next year against the incumbent, Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. of St. Louis.

Not in Senate Race.

Blair told the Post-Dispatch that he expected to make a statement on his political plans shortly, and added: "I'm not going to run for Senator."

Blair said he told Hennings personally last January that he did not intend to oppose him in the Democratic primary, and assured him that he could "completely disregard" any rumors that he might run for the Senate. Hennings is not expected to have any serious opposition for Democratic re-nomination next year.

Another indication that Blair is still very much in the race for Governor is his plans to attend a picnic rally of Jackson county and Kansas City Democrats at Independence on Saturday.

Sermon Support Wanted.

Host at the gathering is Willara Sermon of Independence, leader of the eastern Jackson county Democratic group, who has emerged as the most powerful party leader in the Kansas City area. Many potential candidates for state, congressional and party offices will attend the picnic to seek support from Sermon and his political associates.

For some time Blair has been regarded by Democratic politicians as being out in front in the race for the gubernatorial nomination. His supporters contend the rumors that he would not run were started by his opponents in an effort to stop him.

Such talk, which had been heard frequently in party circles during the summer, was revived recently because of a statement in a Washington "dope sheet" published by the International Brotherhood of Teamsters. It predicted that Richard R. Nacy of Jefferson City, a central Missouri Democratic leader, would support State Senator Edward V. Long of Clarksville for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination instead of Blair.

Repeats Pledge.

Nacy, who declared two years ago that he would support Blair if the Lieutenant Governor ran for Governor in 1956, repeated that pledge this week. "I am still for Blair and will support him for Governor if he runs," Nacy said. "And I will be the most surprised man in Missouri if Blair isn't a candidate for Governor."

Nacy added that he had not committed himself to support Long or any other candidate for Governor, in the event Blair does not run.

Long, like Blair, has had gubernatorial ambitions for many years. Rich considered becoming candidate in 1952, but stepped aside when Gov. Phil M. Donnelly decided to seek a second term. Long also wanted to run next year, but declared that he would not be a candidate if Blair ran.

Long, president pro tem of the State Senate in the last legislative session, is considered a leading candidate to succeed Blair as Lieutenant Governor. He said no one has told him Blair would not be a candidate for Governor, and he again asserted that he would not run for Governor if Blair is a candidate.

Several others are prominently mentioned as possible candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, including Attorney General John M. Dalton of Kennett and State Commissioner of Agriculture L. C.

5 LOS ANGELES POLICEMEN ACCUSED OF ROBBING STORES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (AP)—Five Los Angeles policemen are accused of robbing stores while on duty.

All resigned immediately from the force and then were arrested.

Accused are Lester M. Friday, Charles H. Farnell, Charles F. Brock, Elmer Bolsters and former vice squad officer Frank C. Grossman.

Police Chief William H. Parker said items found at some of the policemen's homes included movie projectors, cameras, auto tires, skin diving equipment, power tools and power lawn mowers. He added that Grossman and Farnell deny the charges but the other three have admitted implication.

ATOM GUN FIRED IN OKINAWA, SCHOOL WINDOWS BLOWN OUT

NAHA, Okinawa, Oct. 27 (AP)—The first firing of a 280-millimeter atomic cannon on Okinawa Tuesday blew 50 windows out of a school house 500 feet away and flying glass scratched four students, it was learned today. The school then closed down for the day.

The cannon was fired with a conventional high explosive shell at Matsuda, central Okinawa.

NO FRAUD IN JET FAILURE, HEAD OF COMMITTEE SAYS

airframe in the first place?" Holifield asked.

"You have to do things like that in this business if we are to keep ahead of other nations," Smith replied. "We use many things in prototype models even though we don't get the desired speed, range, climb or other desired performance."

Smith was questioned about testimony by some Navy witnesses that jet engines had been damaged at the McDonnell plant by careless handling which resulted in bolts, rivets or small tools being drawn into the engines.

"Westinghouse was never notified of any negligence on the part of McDonnell," he answered. "I might add that as far as our records show, there is no indication that any damage from foreign objects had anything to do with any difficulties in flight."

Asked whether there had been laxity in test or inspection procedures by Westinghouse, Smith said there had not. He added he would not have permitted an engine to be shipped if he thought it was not worthy of flight status.

Smith said it was possible, however, that difficulties had developed later in some engines that could not be detected in inspection and test procedures. Turbine blade failures were obviously a responsibility of the manufacturer, he said.

Variance on Crash Causes.

A variance developed in the course of Smith's testimony on the number of causes of crashes, forced landings and flight emergencies, in lists compiled by the Navy and Westinghouse.

Admiral Russell began reading a list of crashes and the Navy's findings, but was cut off on security grounds before completing it.

Before his testimony was halted, Admiral Russell covered four incidents, two resulting in complete destruction of the planes and two others in which planes were repaired. These accidents were attributed to turbine failure and the fourth to a broken fuel line in the engine compartment. Responsibility in the latter case was not fixed as to the engine or airframe manufacturer.

The Post-Dispatch reported last month that failure of the turbine, which furnishes the power for a jet engine's air supply, had been localized as a cause of at least two crashes of early F3H-1 Demons.

Smith, who has been employed by Westinghouse two years, insisted that all J-40 engines turned over to the Navy produced full rated thrust. He said when he was employed by the company one of his specified jobs was to bring the firm up to date in research and test facilities in the jet engine division.

New Engine Developed.

As a result, he said, operations were centralized at Kansas City, where new laboratory and shop facilities were installed and test facilities reviewed. In a 15-month period the firm has developed a completely new jet engine of advanced design for its class which now is well into the test operation period, he said. The program cost the firm about $20,000,000, including the new facilities, the witness said.

He said the company is prepared to continue jet engine manufacturing and expects its new engine to go far toward demonstrating that past manufacturing difficulties no longer exist. There are only five major jet engine manufacturers, and Westinghouse is essential to the welfare of the nation, he said.

Although no orders are yet in hand for the new engine, Smith said Westinghouse hopes it will be purchased for military use after it becomes a proven product.

Smith told the subcommittee his company's records "show no instance in which a crash resulting in injury or death of a pilot could be directly attributed to failure of the J-40 engine." Five crashes of F3H-1 Demons resulted in the grounding of 54 Demon fighters costing approximately $200,000,000. Navy investigators have said that engine failure was a contributing factor in some of the crashes.

In support of the J-40 engine, the witness said that a Douglas "Sky Ray," equipped with the J-40 two speed recorders in 1953. A J-40-powered Demon established a new rate of climb record early this year, Smith added.

CORVALLIS, Ore., Oct. 27 (UP)—Interior Secretary Douglas McKay said today that Democratic charges that the Eisenhower Administration has been giving away national resources are "pure politics."

In a speech at a Republican club lunch here, he said the Interior Department "has disposed of—and not given away—seven small (wildlife) refuges which totaled 6226 acres."

He said the refuges had declined so much "we just could no longer justify the cost of administration."

But he said the migratory bird commission, of which he is chairman, has approved the purchase of 30,189 acres in wildlife refuges at a cost of $645,000. He said the Administration has added eight wildlife refuges and acquired 79,946 additional acres for preservation.

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Mr. Truman Takes Secretary of State Byrnes To Task Over Being Kept in Dark About 1945 Moscow Conference.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.
TWENTY-NINTH ARTICLE
(Publisher of "LIFE")

PUBLIC officials live in glass houses. They are subject at any time to attacks in Congress or in the press. There are few people willing to expose themselves to such hazards, especially those who have been used to private business careers. And government salaries, even for top positions, are small compared with what is paid by business. But fortunately, during the critical years that followed, we did have men who were able and willing to pass up the inducements of private life and business in their devotion to the public good.

Under the Constitution the President of the United States is alone responsible for the faithful execution of the laws. Our government is fixed on the basis that the President is the only person in the executive branch who has the final authority. Everyone else in the executive branch is an agent of the President. The important fact to remember is that the President is the only person in the executive branch who has final authority, and if he does not exercise it, we may be in trouble. If he exercises his authority wisely, that is good for the country. If he does not exercise it wisely, that is too bad, but it is better than not exercising it at all.

Yet our government is so vast that branches of the administrative machinery do not always tie in smoothly with the White House. The Cabinet presents the principal medium through which the President controls his administration. I made it a point always to listen to Cabinet officers at length and with care, especially when their points of view differed from mine.

I never allowed myself to forget that the final responsibility was mine. I would ask the Cabinet to share their counsel with me, even encouraging disagreement and argument to sharpen up the different points of view. On major issues I would frequently ask them to vote, and I expected the Cabinet officers to be frank and candid in expressing their opinions to me. At the same time, I insisted that they keep me informed of the major activities of their departments in order to make certain that they supported the policy once I had made a decision.

If a Cabinet member could not support the policy I had laid down, I tried to work out an understanding with him. But I could not permit, any more than any President can, such difference of opinion to be aired in public by a dissenting member of the Cabinet. In late 1945 and during 1946 there were three occasions when I found myself faced with a problem of this kind.

The first of these involved the Secretary of State. James F. Byrnes could look back upon a career of almost unequalled experience in government. As a Senator, he had been a leader of the administration forces. He had seen service on the highest court of the nation. From there, President Roosevelt had called him to the executive branch, making him, in effect, the assistant president in charge of domestic economy. In political circles it was known that Byrnes had hoped to be chosen as Roosevelt's running-mate in 1944.

Byrnes Had Unique Freedom of Action.

In his executive position during the war years, Byrnes had enjoyed unprecedented freedom of action. President Roosevelt had delegated to him whatever necessary powers could be marshaled to keep the nation's economy behind the war effort. This delegation of Presidential powers had an extraordinary influence on Byrnes. It caused him to believe that, as an official of the executive branch of the government, he could have a completely free hand within his own sphere of duty. In fact, he came to think that his judgment was better than the President's.

More and more, during the fall of 1945, I came to feel that in his role as Secretary of State, Byrnes was beginning to think of himself as an assistant president in full charge of foreign policy. Apparently he failed to realize that, under the Constitution, the President is required to assume all responsibility for the conduct of foreign affairs. The President cannot abdicate that responsibility.

A secretary of state should never have the illusion that he is President of the United States. Some secretaries of state have had such illusions, but they would never admit it. There have been some Presidents, of course, who acted as if they were Secretaries of State. They are not and cannot be, and they will get into trouble if they try.

The primary function of the Secretary of State is to be the President's personal adviser on foreign affairs. He has to run a department which should have skilled and experienced men to get the best information possible on any subject or problem that affects relations with other governments. The President must make the basic decisions, but he must be kept constantly informed of all major developments. A President cannot tolerate a secretary of state who keeps important matters from him until five minutes before a decision has to be made. Certainly a President cannot permit a secretary of state to make policy decisions for him.

The Conference of the Council of Foreign Ministers at Moscow in December, 1945, produced a situation that made it necessary for me to make it plain to Byrnes that he was not carrying out the foreign policy I had laid down and that, in effect, he was assuming the responsibilities of the President.

Hardly had Byrnes left on his trip to the Russian capital when, on Dec. 14, I was asked by Senator Tom Connally if I could see him and the other members of the Senate Atomic Energy Committee. Byrnes, it appeared, had met with a number of Senators the day before and had informed them that it was his plan to obtain Russian concurrence at the forthcoming conference to the proposal to set up an Atomic Energy Commission under the United Nations—the plan on which Acheson, Mackenzie King and I had agreed the previous month.

The Senate committee members were greatly disturbed by the conversation they had had with the Secretary of State. They said they had received the impression that he would discuss, and perhaps agree to, the turnover of certain atomic energy information even before there had been any agreement on safeguards and inspections against the abuse of such information. Senator Vandenberg told me that he feared Byrnes might make such an agreement because the directive under which he traveled—and which had been drawn up on Byrnes' own instructions in the State Department—made it possible for him to discuss any portion of the proposal independently of other sections.

No Intention of Divulging Scientific Data.

I immediately informed the Senators that there was no intention by the administration to disclose any scientific information during the Moscow conference, nor would there be any final commitment there on the turnover of such information.

I instructed Under Secretary of State Dean Acheson to send a message to Byrnes to inform him of this meeting with the Senators.

"The President," Acheson cabled, "explained that you had no intention whatever of disclosing any scientific information in the course of your present mission. It was explained further that you intended primarily to discuss in Moscow the matter of securing Soviet support for the establishment of the United Nations Commission."

Secretary Byrnes replied on December 17th: "I do not intend presenting any proposal outside of the framework of the three-power declaration. . . ."

I heard no more from the Secretary of State until Christmas Eve, when he sent me a message through Ambassador Harriman.

This message told me very little that the newspaper correspondents had not already reported from Moscow. This was not what I considered a proper account by a Cabinet member to the President. It was more like one partner in a business telling the other that his business trip was progressing well and not to worry.

I was in Independence, Mo., on Dec. 27 when the next word from Byrnes reached me. Charles Ross, my press secretary, informed me from Washington that a message had been received from the Secretary of State. Byrnes had asked that the White House arrange for him to address the American people over all networks so that he might report on the results of the conference. What those results were I did not know.

A little after ten o'clock that night, the text of the State Department's communique on the Moscow conference was brought to me. It had been released in Washington, on Byrnes' orders, an hour earlier.

I did not like what I read. There was not a word about Iran or any other place where the Soviets were on the march. We had gained only an empty promise of further talks.

I returned to Washington the next day. Almost immediately upon my arrival, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, the ranking Republican member of the Foreign Relations Committee, who had previously telephoned me at Independence about the Byrnes communique, came to see me. Under Secretary of State Acheson, whom I had called to the White House, was present while I talked to the Senator.

Vandenberg's main concern was with the section in the communique in which the three foreign ministers agreed to take up, "in stages," the question of international control of atomic energy.

The communique listed four points that would deserve consideration, the last point being the provision of inspections and safeguards against abuse of atomic power information. The Senator read this to mean that we might discuss, or consent to, the sharing of atomic information before any safeguards might have been agreed on to protect the nation's interests. I assured him that so long as I was President no production secrets of the bomb would be given away until there was international agreement on a system of inspection.

Acheson and Vandenberg helped me draft a statement for the press. In this statement I wanted to clear up the meaning of the Moscow agreement as it related to atomic energy. I thought that it was most urgent that there be no misunderstanding about our determination to insure proper safeguards.

Byrnes Told to Report 'Posthaste.'

Once this was done, I went to the Presidential yacht Williamsburg for a cruise which was to be devoted mainly to the preparation of a radio address to the nation which I had scheduled for Jan. 3. I had asked a number of my advisers to join me aboard the yacht so that we might have time to discuss problems of domestic policy. We were anchored at Quantico, Va., the next day when Ross received a telephone call from Byrnes. The Secretary of State had just arrived in Washington and wanted to know if everything was set up for the four-network broadcast he had requested.

I was sitting next to Ross as he took this call. "Who's on the phone?" I asked.

"Byrnes," he replied. "I told him what to say in reply, and he turned back to the telephone."

"The President asks me to tell you," he said, "that you had better come down here posthaste and make your report to the President before you do anything else."

By five o'clock that afternoon Byrnes had reached Quantico and the Williamsburg.

We went into my stateroom when he arrived, and I closed the door behind us. I told him I did not like the way in which I had been left in the dark about the Moscow conference. I told him that, as President, I intended to know what progress we were making and what we were doing in foreign negotiations. I said that it was shocking that a communique should be issued in Washington announcing a foreign policy development of major importance that I had never heard of. I said I would not tolerate a repetition of such conduct.

Byrnes sought to put the blame mostly on his subordinates. He said he had expected them to keep me informed. But he now admitted that he should have attended to it personally.

Byrnes left a collection of documents on the conference with me, and I agreed to study them at once. As I went through these papers, it became abundantly clear to me that the successes of the Moscow conference were unreal. I could see that the Russians had given us no more than a general promise that they would be willing to sit down to talk again about the control of atomic energy. There was not a word in the communique to suggest that the Russians might be willing to change their ways in Iran—where the situation was rapidly becoming very serious—or anywhere else.

Byrnes, I concluded, after studying the entire record, had taken it upon himself to move the foreign policy of the United States in a direction to which I could not, and would not, agree. Moreover, he had undertaken this on his own initiative without consulting or informing the President.

Mr. Truman Puts Views in Writing.

I knew that it was time to make things perfectly clear between the Secretary of State and myself. I wanted to do it without delay, without publicity, and in writing. So I wrote out in longhand a letter to Byrnes, and when he came to the White House on Jan. 5, I read it to him as he sat beside my desk in the Oval Room.

"My dear Jim: "I have been considering some of our difficulties. As you know, I would like to pursue a policy of delegating authority

FLEESON— Russell Backs Lone Wolf in Gov. Lausche

Party Man, Rarely Helps Candidates.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

AN effort by one bloc of Democrats to take over the Eisenhower look of progressive moderation for the 1956 campaign has now been made official by Senator Russell of Georgia.

Russell is a major architect of the middle-of-the-road policy pursued in Congress by the Rayburn-Johnson leadership. Russell can convincingly argue for that policy as wise and politically practical. He was somewhat less convincing when he had to suggest a Democratic presidential possibility who embodied it.

The Senator proposed the Governor of Ohio, Frank Lausche. Lausche has been a winner in his state and has shown himself able to attract Republican support for state office. To that extent he fits the conception of a central coalition which Johnson, Russell and other leading Senators apparently want to force on the national convention next August.

But as a public figure and a party man, Lausche is a lone wolf. He holds his cards close to his vest and rarely helps other candidates, rarely tips his hand.

The role of candidate for the central coalition was, of course, being tailored to fit Senator Johnson. His recent heart attack will prevent him from filling it.

The candidate who really would like to pre-empt the role is Adlai Stevenson. It appeals to him as a personal conservative and an intellectual.

Stevenson's problem is that, as the front runner, he is and will continue to be challenged by Gov. Harriman of New York and Senator Kefauver, both further left of center than he is.

Harry S. Truman's presence in the wings is another complication. Truman cannot choose the next Democratic nominee but he can veto him. Whether the man from Independence can resist an open challenge to the proposed new center is already being debated. He is known to feel that the middle of the road is no place for Democrats.

Acheson says, in connection with the airlift, that world leadership is accorded where trust has been given, and that trust is dependent on conduct. The conduct of the United States, British and French governments in response to the blockade of Berlin in 1948-1949 was an example of successful leadership, Acheson writes. ## Acheson Says Democrats Excel G.O.P. as Foreign Policy Leaders

Cites Berlin Airlift, 'Massive Retaliation' —Writes Goal Is to Avoid Choice Between Surrender, Nuclear War.

By GEORGE H. HALL

A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

THE MAJOR GOAL of American foreign policy is the avoidance and prevention of a situation in which a choice becomes necessary between nuclear war and surrender, in the opinion of former Secretary of State Dean G. Acheson.

The United States has been engaged since the end of the war in creating allies and alliances, Acheson says in an article published in Harper's magazine, and must continue in pursuit of this objective for years to come.

The formation of a Western balancing power system is necessary because the destruction of the military power of Germany and Japan removed the counterweights which had for many years restrained the expansiveness of Soviet Russia, Acheson says.

His Underlying Goal.
The creation of such a system fits into and supplements the underlying objective of preventing nuclear war, in Acheson's view.

The article in Harper's is an excerpt from Acheson's book, "A Democrat Looks at His Party," which is to be published next month, and which is likely to stir up political controversy. During the Truman Administration, Acheson was one of the principal whipping boys of old guard Republicans led by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin. Acheson has spoken and written only on rare occasions since leaving office nearly three years ago.

Acheson's thesis is that the Democrats have been able to provide better foreign policy leadership than the Republicans. He explains why he thinks this is so and for illustration discusses two events—the Berlin airlift and the "instant retaliation" policy enunciated by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Acheson says, in connection with the airlift, that world leadership is accorded where trust has been given, and that trust is dependent on conduct. The conduct of the United States, British and French governments in response to the blockade of Berlin in 1948-1949 was an example of successful leadership, Acheson writes. During the 18 months of the Soviet blockade the United States and Britain flew 2,343,315 tons of food and coal into West Berlin.

"A Challenge Resulted."
"I doubt that at the beginning the Russians intended a major challenge to the Western Power," Acheson writes. "Nevertheless, a challenge resulted. When it did, rash action might have landed us and our friends in war. So all of us had the strongest interest in cool judgment, consultation and action which was adequate and restrained. Such a course was followed . . . and was successful."

"On the other hand," he continues, "consider as an act of leadership the announcement by the Secretary of State in January 1954 of the policy of instant retaliation. Without consultation or warning, our allies were informed publicly that a new military policy had been decided upon and was in effect."

"This is almost a classic illustration of the way a leader among free nations should not proceed. For it disregarded the most elementary precepts."

The procedure threatened or appeared to threaten nuclear warfare, Acheson says; it disregarded the precept not to proclaim policies which do not comprehend the interests of our friends, and it violated a maxim that policies must be calculated to bring success in areas deemed important to our allies.

In addition to its other faults, Acheson adds, the new policy was a failure, as shown when the United States failed to take action to save Dien Bien Phu in Indochina from the Communists.

Cites Leadership Role.
For the United States to play its part in the Western coalition requires strong domestic leadership, Acheson thinks. He argues the Democratic party has shown superior capacity to produce and support leadership. Because the Republican party was the party of opposition just before, during and after the two world wars it did not have the intimate knowledge of the new pressures

PEARSON Clue to Why Weeks Shies From Celler

Secretary Might

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON.

WHEN you find silver trays worth $1000 handed out to business men and cabinet members by business advisers around you, it's not difficult to understand why Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, the Boston blue-blood, has been ducking testimony before Congressmen Manny Celler, the boy from Brooklyn.

Cells has finally laid his hot hands on the financial records of the Business Advisory Council, the group which advises the Commerce Department. This is the group whose minutes Weeks would not give to Celler's monopoly committee last summer; regarding which also Weeks was "too busy" to testify last summer.

However, Celler has received the financial records from Weeks and they are interesting. They show:

Two silver trays costing over $1000 each were presented to former Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer of the Truman Administration and former Secretary of the Army Robert Stevens of the Eisenhower Administration. Both are council members.

A $1102 silver service was given to John Biggers, chairman of Liberty-Owens Food Glass Co., also a council member.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

19 Months Apart

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I am sailing to England to meet my husband after 19 months of involuntary separation.

The State Department denied me a passport because I insisted that my political beliefs are none of its business. I am, therefore, traveling on an affidavit of identity, to which the British Government, apparently not afraid that our presence there will disturb the tranquility of that country, has affixed a visa.

My husband is a Ceylonese and we had made his country our home. I had worked for Time, Inc., had been a writer for the (London) Economist and was co-author with my husband of a book on postwar Poland called "Peace on the Vistula" and author of "The Rosenbergs—What Was Their Crime?"

On March 17, 1954, without warning, charges, hearing or writ of habeas corpus, I was seized, turned over to Trans World Airlines and forced to fly from Ceylon to the United States, where I had not been for 10 years. I was deposited at Idlewild Airport on March 19, 1954, in a thin tropical dress.

The Government has since protested its innocence, obviously not intending to admit involvement in as odious an act as a kidnapping and the breaking up of a family. I have, however, confirmation of my allegation: I have brought suit for damages against TWA, charging the airline with false arrest and kidnapping. The chief defense of TWA appears to be that it was carrying out United States Government orders.

Those in and out of the State Department who selected us as a cold war target have thus arbitrarily taken 19 months out of the life of my husband and myself. They have uprooted us both, for Ceylon was our home. The damage they have caused is irreparable.

I believe the State Department intended that my husband and I should be permanently separated for the Walter-McCarran Act, with its racial and thought control restrictions would automatically bar his coming here. It is largely because of the work that has been done and the warm support we have had for our case here and abroad, that our separation is about to be ended.

I am confident that in the long run laws such as the Walter-McCarran Act will be discarded and replaced by my Asian husband will no longer be barred from visiting this country if they so desire. At the same time, we recognize that the victory won in our fight to join each other in England is the first step in our struggle to make our home Ceylon.

RHODA MILLER DE SILVA
New York City.

As to a Killing

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

A one-armed man, with an artificial leg, can be a killer just as well as a person with two good arms and two good legs. Many persons have been murdered by such maimed police characters as the one some of your readers seem to pity. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is an internal security group of which every true American is very proud.

FRED CLASEN, Maplewood.

Plenty Wet in Miami

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your zeal to smear the American Legion or any person or organization that opposes your pet United Nations you resort to a low form of misrepresentation of facts.

I refer to your editorial of Oct. 13 in which you stated that not one drop of rain fell in Miami, Fla., since early July.

Well, the United States Weather Bureau reports show they have had rain in Miami in amounts over .05 inch on 27 days from July 6 to Oct. 12. On five days they had over an inch. The total rainfall in that period was over 13 inches, but you say not one drop.

From now on I'll skip your editorials, for how can anyone ever believe or trust anything you write? Why don't you try something to defend a few patriotic organizations and men who believe in America. I don't know of a single anti-Communist that you have ever defended, but the anti-anti-Communists sure get your love pats.

HENRY H. BODE.

Cheers From the P.-T.A.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The St. Louis Council of Parent-Teacher Associations, would like to call attention to the splendid job being done by the auxiliary policemen of the St. Louis Police Department.

The St. Louis Police Department should be highly commended for furnishing these men to assist the school children across the streets. They are protecting the children of St. Louis and contributing toward the prevention of accidents.

MRS. SAM RYKER, President.

To Help a Good Work

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

There has been much said about the shortage of funds to run our educational TV station, KETC. Why not have the United Fund get donations for KETC?

Many people who have never contributed to this cause would have a chance to show their appreciation for the programs already shown and this would give the management a chance to continue the wonderful work it has started.

MRS. THOMAS DUNN.

Freedom to See

"The Moon Is Blue" is a bright and amusing play that was enjoyed by thousands of theater goers. When it was made into a moving picture, with Maggie McNamara, William Holden and David Niven in the starring roles, it was seen and enjoyed by many thousands more in movie houses. Yet in Kansas the moving picture version was barred from exhibition anywhere in the state by the Kansas Board of Censors.

Some Kansans who did not relish being told what could be seen and not seen on their movie screens took the case up through the courts. When the Kansas Supreme Court upheld the ban, they went on to the United States Supreme Court. Chief Justice Warren and his eight colleagues have now reversed the Kansas ruling.

Announcing the Supreme Court action, the Washington news writers noted that the overruling action came "without comment" or that the Supreme Court "gave only one clue to its reason for reversal."

That one reference, Burstyn, Inc. v. Wilson (343 U.S. 495, 1952), is enough. Citing it, the Supreme Court needed to cite nothing else. For in giving that citation the Supreme Court referred to its invalidation of the attempt to prohibit in New York the showing of "The Miracle," an Italian-made and Italian-exhibited film that Cardinal Spellman strongly opposed in this country.

"The Miracle" decision at once became a landmark in the protection of free expression because in it our highest tribunal most deliberately extended for the first time the free speech guarantees of the Constitution's First and Fourteenth amendments to "expression by means of motion pictures."

Attorney General Fatzner of Kansas says he will ask for a rehearing and that he will base his argument on a Supreme Court decision of 40 years ago. Presumably Mr. Fatzner means the decision in Mutual Film Corp. v. Industrial Commission, a 1915 Ohio case. But if he does, then his precedent is no longer relevant since the decision in "The Miracle" case overruled those portions of the 1915 Ohio decision which said that motion pictures were "not to be regarded as part of the press of the country or as organs of public opinion."

Alluding to those earlier words and recognizing the important part the movies now play in the forming of public tastes and views, the Supreme Court said unanimously in "The Miracle" case: "To the extent that language in the opinion in Mutual Film Corp. v. Industrial Commission is out of harmony with the views here set forth, we no longer adhere to it."

So the censors in Kansas will get no help by turning to an outmoded, at least partially reversed decision now 40 years old. What they might better study are these words in "The Miracle" decision:

From the standpoint of freedom of speech and the press, it is enough to point out that the state has no legitimate interest in protecting any or all religions from views distasteful to them which is sufficient to justify prior restraints upon the expression of those views. It is not the business of government in our nation to suppress real or imagined attacks upon a particular religious doctrine, whether they appear in publications, speeches or motion pictures.

Having said that three years ago, the Supreme Court needed only to refer to its language in "The Miracle" decision in knocking out the attempt to bar "The Moon Is Blue" in Kansas.

The Supreme Court has not ruled out censorship of obscene movies any more than it has removed the restraints against obscene publications. What it has done in these two decisions is to limit significantly the scope of the censor.

Freedom to see is just as precious as freedom to read and freedom to hear. If we are true to our heritage of liberty we will see that all these freedoms enjoy the widest possible latitude and that no one authority is allowed to dictate the public tastes.

The High and the Low of It

Edward R. Murrow's penetrating study of the vice presidency, on KWK-TV Wednesday night over the Columbia network, was undoubtedly one of the finest television programs of the year. It packed into an hour of television time an amazing amount of historical knowledge, illuminated with insight and understanding.

To interlute in this sort of program loud and sticky commercials on which an overblown brunette peddled mascara and eye makeup is something only TV would think of doing.

Not Meant for Parking

There is to be no parking of automobiles, not even temporarily, in the Plaza redevelopment area. This was decided by the Land Clearance for Redevelopment Authority which undoubtedly had the riverfront in mind.

Parking was allowed in the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial area "for the time being." The cars, it was clearly indicated, would have to go as soon as work on the riverfront park, the great symbolic arch and other features of the memorial got under way. Well, the cars are still there, thousands of them.

It would be tragic if even a doubt were allowed to arise about the ultimate completion of the Plaza development, just a suspicion that this area, too, might end as a big parking lot. By refusing to give ground for this, the municipal authorities actually are offsetting inevitable delays and furthering the development of this park and the adjacent apartment buildings. And it would be wonderful if their solicitude—and that of the community—could be extended to embrace a new determination to make the riverfront what it is meant to be.

Who Is Misusing the Planes?

Senator Russell of Georgia has got his dander up in connection with the use of military planes for transportation of certain persons. Angered by the furor over three fellow Senators who were accused by the Defense Department of seeking expensive special delivery service from Europe and then were absolved with apologies, he lashed out at the Pentagon. He cannot be blamed.

There was no evidence at all for the well-publicized accusation that the Senators, McClellan of Arkansas, Stennis of Mississippi and Chavez of New Mexico, all Democrats, wanted two planes dispatched to Europe to bring them home at an estimated cost of $20,000. It may well be that some zealous military officer in awe of anyone in the Very Important Personage category went too far in attempting to do what he—and only he—thought the occasion demanded.

So now Senator Russell, who heads the Armed Services Committee and is a senior member of the Appropriations Committee, is going to clamp down on the Pentagon. He says the Defense Department has "got 35 fellows down there, most of whom couldn't be elected to anything, who can order up a plane and fly anywhere in the world they want to go." Obviously, he has his doubts that these trips are justified. The Defense Department has shown itself to be most extremely economy minded and if 35 persons (or even only one) in the Pentagon are misusing military planes the practice should have been stopped long ago. An official inquiry is in order.

The Outlook at Geneva

As the Big Four foreign ministers gather in Geneva, it must be admitted that expectations are not high. Marquis Childs of the Post-Dispatch staff reports that this round of the East-West negotiations has already been written off as a propaganda contest, in which the Western objective will be to demonstrate that the Soviet Union, in spite of its "big smile," is unwilling to deal with basic issues that divide the world.

At the "summit" conference last summer, President Eisenhower and Premiers Bulganin, Eden and Faure set down three topics for exploration by the foreign ministers. On the first—European security and German unification—the East-West deadlock is so complete that significant progress toward a solution at this conference would surprise everybody. On the second—disarmament—the United Nations subcommittee worked itself into a stalemate which seems unlikely to be ended at this time unless one side or the other makes an unexpected change of policy.

That leaves the third topic—the development of trade and cultural contacts between East and West—and here fortunately there is some hope of achievement. Though they are slow to change their position on strategic and diplomatic questions, the Russians do appear genuinely interested in gradually breaking down the Iron Curtain that has insulated them from the rest of the world. If that is true, there is no good reason why the West should not go along. In fact, the West has long contended that the barriers to communication between East and West were a major source of tension and fear. Any chance to lower the barriers should be exploited to the full.

Even if nothing were achieved on the other subjects, meaningful advances in this third sphere would alone make the conference worth while. There never was much real prospect that all the problems of the world could be solved in a single spectacular settlement. Nor did anybody have a right to expect that the Russians, having taken on a friendlier aspect, would now roll over and play dead, or quietly disappear, or cease to be Communists. They have, of course, done none of these things. They are obviously just as anxious to spread their influence as ever.

Yet this alone need not preclude the development of more normal and peaceful relations. For there is one thing East and West can agree on, and probably do agree on—namely, that the use of atomic warfare for the settlement of disputes or the extension of influence has become both impractical and unthinkable. This means not that the contest between the two worlds has ended, but that it must proceed on peaceful lines.

If that one proposition is thoroughly understood and accepted by both sides, great hope can be held for the ultimate solution of some of the world's major problems.

In the Dim, Ancient Days

In the hoop-la about whether the University of Kentucky coaches signaled a player to feign an injury to gain time for the winning play against Florida or whether the Kentucky boys hit on the moulty stratagem all by themselves, nobody seems to have considered for even a moment that somebody might have been hurt.

It is naive to wonder whether everything might not have been on the level?

We thought that big-time football had gone straight when it outlived the Notre Dame "sucker shift." In the great game of deception, this play was calculated to draw opponents offside if they neglected that fundamental of keeping an eye on the ball. But maybe we were too innocent since nothing was done about faking T-formation quarterback. We should have been more subtle. We should have known that there is deception and deception.

All this reminds us of the ancient days—the dim, ancient days of long, long ago—and of a game between Princeton and the University of Chicago. The score at the moment was Princeton 21, Chicago 18. The Maroons of Chicago had just made a first down well inside Princeton territory. But there was not much time left in which to score and win, maybe just enough for a play or two. So with the clock stopped, an assistant coach on the Chicago bench turned to the venerable Amos Alonzo Stagg—he was always venerable—and asked: "Sir, shouldn't we send in a substitute to call old sure-shot No. 63?"

"That, young man," snapped Stagg, "would violate the spirit of the rule against coaching from the sidelines."

Withering, absolutely withering. But of course it happened in the ancient days, the dim, ancient days of long, long ago.

Yes, Chicago lost, 21-18.

Why We Don't Drink More Milk

A stout Canadian voice in favor of letting the price of milk find its economic level has been heard here. Grant M. Carlyle, president of the National Dairy Council of Canada, believes too big a price has been paid for price protection. What he has to say on this phase of the agricultural surplus may be taken as a thoughtful comment on other phases as well—including pork, just discussed on this page.

Addressing the Milk Industry Foundation and the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, Mr. Carlyle declared a gradual change from the present policy must be found. For continuation of this policy, he said, means "a steadily decreasing consumption."

Mr. Carlyle dislikes the policy also because, he says, it removes incentives for the industry "to improve to meet the challenge of new conditions," "put honest effort into studying methods, costs and markets," and "spend time and money experimenting, and changing, and improving efficiency."

Here, as mentioned earlier in the case of pork, the production payment plan is either the answer or the closest to an answer anyone has reached yet. It would not remove the invitations to apathy which Mr. Carlyle so eloquently deplores, but it would enable price and consumption to find their true levels as he would prefer. Perhaps at those levels the surplus of milk which is occupying so much of the industry's attention at its sessions here would not exist.

Virtually everyone likes milk, and the vast majority do not drink enough of it for good health. Does not this very anomaly suggest that price may have something to do with it?

Candor on the President's Condition Between Book Ends

The Mirror
Public Opinion

Writer compliments Eisenhower Administration for full reports on President's health; it was not always thus; efforts made to hide illness of Franklin D. Roosevelt during last campaign; people are entitled to honest reports on presidential fitness.

Herbert Elliston in The Washington Post

No Administration has been castigated more severely for its secrecy than the Eisenhower Administration. Yet it has turned in a job in public relations during the President's illness which is unique and a model.

All Administrations have hitherto practiced concealment about the state of the President's health. Cleveland, for instance, hurried the President on board a yacht for an operation for cancer of the throat under cover of a vacation cruise.

Full disclosure about President Eisenhower has even gone to the extent of an accounting of the President's bowel movements. Dr. White stoutly defends the detail on the grounds that the American people are bowel-conscious.

I don't know whether Dr. White is right or not, but I do know that the American people are very President-conscious. The whole executive authority of the Federal Government is vested in him, and so they have a right to know everything pertaining to his health.

For contrast with the publicity treatment of Mr. Eisenhower we have to skip Mr. Truman—surely the hardest man ever to be President—and think of F.D.R. Mr. Truman is the latest witness to what Mr. James A. Farley calls F.D.R.'s "dying" condition in 1944. Mr. Truman adds something new.

He implies that in the campaigning Roosevelt had a premonition that he would not live out the fourth term he was seeking. In the circumstances I am confirmed in the belief I held at the time that the nomination was the worst of frauds practiced upon the American people. The pretense that F.D.R. was as right as rain amounted to a conspiracy.

To be sure, there was an honest belief on the part of some familiar that he was "well, but, judging from all the memoirs (except Dr. McIntyre's) that have been written since 1945, the President's courage shared Mr. Farley's. Scandalously the party men overrode Mr. Roosevelt.

Admittedly only the newspaper men at the time took a dim view of F.D.R.'s condition.

A Long Way From W Hollow

From The Louisville Courier-Journal

Jesse Stuart has come a long way since he left home at the head of W Hollow and went out to see the world that lay beyond the hills of his beloved Kentucky. But it is doubtful if anything that happened during his bright journey to fame and fortune brought him more pleasure or a deeper sense of success than the Jesse Stuart Day ceremonies held by his fellow-townsmen of Greenup.

Many honors have come Jesse Stuart's way since the day when, as a gawky but brilliant student at Vanderbilt he won the Guggenheim Fellowship that entitled him to a year's study in Europe. He has been given honorary degrees by colleges. Kentucky has named him poet laureate. Clubs, schools and literary groups seek him as a speaker. His books have been chosen by the Book of the Month Club, and won for him the Thomas Jefferson Southern Award.

Yet there must have been for him a special joy in the moment when his daughter Jessica pulled the cord unveiling his statue on the courthouse lawn of Greenup, a statue bought and presented by the citizens of his home town, co-operating with the local Lions Club and Junior Chamber of Commerce. For it showed that at last Jesse Stuart was not only recognized, but honored and accepted by his fellow-townsmen. It was not always thus. Writers who tell of their native heath have often found themselves prophets without honor in their own home town, and Jesse Stuart, like Sinclair Lewis, or Edwin Arlington Robinson, or any of a high but there was the same old story of sustaining prayer for Churchill's recovery which has been lavished in behalf of Mr. Eisenhower.

It has been suggested that the people are entitled either to periodical reviews on the President's health by a panel of doctors or to a certificate of fitness from any candidate offering himself for the presidency. At least, there should be no hiding of the President's condition while he is in office, even in wartime.

When Winston Churchill (who seemed to be carrying all Britain on his back) became ill with double pneumonia in North Africa in wartime, the details were well publicized. And the people returned the confidence in them. Not only did morale in Britain go to a new high, but there was the same old story of sustaining prayer for Churchill's recovery which has been lavished in behalf of Mr. Eisenhower.

Source of Our Top Leaders

THE BIG BUSINESS EXECUTIVE, by Mabel New, comes (Columbia University Press, $4.00).

Although a number of studies have examined the nature of the business executive function and a few have dealt with the social origins of business leaders, little attention has been devoted to an examination of the total experience and training of top leadership in business and industry. Three generations of executives are included in this study covering the period of 1900 to 1950, about 1400 individuals, presidents and board chairmen of the largest corporations in the railroad, public utility and industrial fields. The time span was deliberately chosen to trace changes both in the kind of men selected and in the nature of the job.

Largely statistical in methodology, this report of a study by a prominent Harvard College economist, substantiates what earlier essays as well as many current expert and non-expert opinions have hinted at, namely: "professionalization of leadership" is occurring in the business field. This professionalization manifests itself most directly in the greater degree of education required for executives.

Engineers, lawyers, and graduates from some field other than business administration continue to predominate among top executive leadership, indicating that academic over-professionalization has not yet occurred. However, an increasing proportion of executives receive a long period of apprenticeship in administration in second-ranking offices which is another test of professionalization. Inheritance of executive position is declining in significance in large-scale business and industry, although it still is dominant in small corporations.

In her conclusions, the author says that the profile of today's executive is still a long way from an "ideal" executive. Even though "ideal" is not defined, it is implied that late age of "arrival," narrow specialization in training, and poor methods of selection of top leadership continue to be prominent and handicapping.

Although this may in turn hint at some partial answers to the question of how best to select executives, it should be noted that little evidence is presented in this report to answer this qualitative question. But this requires more intensive study of the various components of executive functions and an assessment of selection methods which were beyond the scope of the present study.

A recent address by the president of the American Psychological Association, in which he said that psychological and vocational tests are oftentimes no more reliable in predicting job success than personal intuition, suggests that there is much to be learned in this area. With professionalization of leadership occurring in business and industry, it seems important that more and deeper analyses of the process of selection of executives is necessary if continued growth in a high quality of leadership is to be assured.

A Conspiracy Thwarted

THE RETURN OF THE KID, by Joseph Wayne, (E. P. Dutton & Co., 191 pp., $2.75.)

When Sherm Dunn brought a young new wife home to the Box D Ranch, his son Jim quarreled violently with him and went away. Months later Jim received word from Judge Riddle, his father's partner, calling him home and he finds his father has been killed and the ranch is controlled by the young widow who has hired a shifty new foreman and a bunch of tough gunslingers. He suspects the foreman and the young widow of having conspired to kill his father. With all the cards stacked against him and his life constantly in jeopardy, Jim starts his fight to regain control of the ranch. In getting to the bottom of things, Jim finds and brings to justice the killer of his father and the same time learns who are his real friends.

THOMAS L. STOKES

The White House Takes a Cue From Senator Douglas

WASHINGTON. CHANGE in political climate reveals itself in varied and interesting ways. Signs of the diminished confidence of the Republican party as it looks toward 1956 are discernible, for example, in the hurried assembling by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson of a program to check the income drop affecting farmers who are becoming restive politically.

Agriculture is one troubled area creating political anxiety. There is another involving industry, a spotty and localized sore that festers, however, in sections that are important politically in the East, New England, and the industrial Middle West. These are the "distressed areas" as they are called which are plagued by what is known as "chronic unemployment" now of long duration in textile, railroad and mining industries. The states affected are Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Kentucky, eastern Ohio, southern Illinois and Massachusetts, with scattered stagnation in other states in other industries, including chemicals, aircraft, rubber, farm machinery and ordnance.

But his proposals were ignored by the President's Council of Economic Advisers and by the President. In the economic report he submitted to Congress last Jan. 20, the President confined himself to recommendations to strengthen the Commerce Department's area development program, continuation of quick tax amortization for new industries that would locate in distressed areas and distribution to industries in such areas of as many defense contracts as possible.

Up to Localities.

The major burden of solving this problem, the President insisted, must be done by local citizens themselves.

Now we find the Council of Economic Advisers recommending a federally-directed program which, according to the brief description by Chairman Burns at Denver, seems to approach in some respects that proposed by Senator Douglas. The latter, in a statement here, expressed pleasure that the Administration, at long last, is coming around to proposals made long ago by him and other Democrats.

Whereas the Douglas bill would set up an Independent Depressed Areas Administration, directed by an administrator, Chairman Burns would create an agency within either the Commerce or Labor Departments.

Many-Sided Program.

He also adopted the Douglas idea of federal loans to distressed areas on a participating basis with state and local agencies. Such loans would be for study of industrial potentials in distressed regions and also for construction of new industrial plants and facilities.

How much further the Administration plan might go Chairman Burns did not indicate. The Douglas bill embodies many other features, including re-training, re-employment and vocational rehabilitation programs for the unemployed and extension of unemployment benefits for those who accept re-training as urged by Under Secretary Larson.

It also would provide for processing of surplus food for home and institutional use in areas of chronic unemployment, and grants for construction of needed public facilities such as schools, hospitals, highways, water installations and other community facilities.

COMPTON TO RECEIVE ROOSEVELT AWARD

Presentation in New York Tonight by Theodore Roosevelt Association.

Arthur H. Compton, Nobel Prize-winning physicist and former chancellor of Washington University, will receive the Theodore Roosevelt award tonight in New York.

The award, to be presented by the Theodore Roosevelt Memorial Association, will be in recognition of Compton's contributions to science and to the development of American character.

The association also will present an award to former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York. The awards are made annually.

Compton, who has been Distinguished Service Professor of Natural Philosophy at Washington University since 1953, resigned his university position last week to accept the executive directorship of KETC, the educational television station.

He shared the Nobel Prize in 1927 for his discovery of the "Compton effect," an explanation of the behavior of X-rays as rapidly-moving protons.

Compton has served on several Government boards and commissions, including a presidential commission on higher education and was a consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission. He was one of a group of scientists who initiated and directed the first atomic chain reaction.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR JOHN HENRY BELL

Funeral services for John Henry Bell, former commander of the Missouri and St. Louis county organizations of the 40 and 8, American Legion fun-making society, will be at 1 p.m. tomorrow at the Bopp undertaking establishment, 131 West Argonne drive, Kirkwood, with burial at Potosi, Mo.

Mr. Bell, of 619 Norfolk drive, Kirkwood, died Tuesday of complications following a hernia operation at Missouri Baptist Hospital. He was 87 years old. He had been a right-of-way purchasing agent for the State Highway Department since 1928. A Navy veteran of World War I, he commanded the Missouri 40 and 8 in 1948 and Vulture 448 of the county in 1943.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Jessie L. Bell; a son, John H. Bell, and a brother, Francis J. Bell. He was the brother of the late Wilson Bell, former Missouri Secretary of State.

ART MUSEUM GETS HENRY LEWIS WORKS

Buys Oil, 'St. Louis in 1846,' and Is Given Book of 113 Drawings.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON
An oil painting and a book of 113 drawings by Henry Lewis, noted St. Louis artist who died in 1904, have been acquired by the City Art Museum. It was announced today. The painting, bought from a former St. Louisan at an undisclosed price, was paid for with money from the Eliza McMillan Fund.

Donors of the sketchbook are Mr. and Mrs. Rollo C. Kellogg of Clayton. Mrs. Kellogg, the former May Lewis, is the niece of the artist, who attained fame and considerable fortune as creator of a now-lost "Mississippi Panorama" painting three quarters of a mile long.

The famous panorama and the newly acquired painting, "St. Louis in 1846," are interestingly related. "The Mississippi Illustrated," Lewis's book of lithographs based on the panorama, contains a scene nearly identical in composition and subject to "St. Louis in 1846."

Both present a view of St. Louis from a clearing on the Illinois side of the river and depict the city as the gateway to the West. The painting, whose recent cleaning established its identity by revealing a signature and other lettering, shows two covered wagons in the center foreground, with "Bound for Oregon" lettered across one of them.

Men, women and children in a pioneering party are on the river bank. Across the river is the St. Louis skyline, with many steamboats lining the levee below. Thus the painting has both historical interest and artistic value. It measures about 32 by 42 inches.

More Lewis pictures are owned publicly in Minneapolis than in St. Louis, which now has three. Others are the museum's "Street in St. Louis," bought for $500 in 1942 from a New York gallery, and the Missouri Historical Society's "View of St. Louis From Chouteau's Pond."

Lewis's panorama, 12 feet high and the longest picture ever painted, was mounted on spools and slowly unwound in theaters throughout America and Europe. The artist lectured on his traveling done when sketching its subject, the Mississippi valley from the present site of Minneapolis to New Orleans.

While engaged in similar travel in the Middle and Rhine valleys in the 1870s, he produced most of the drawings in the sketchbook. He became United States counsel at Dueseldorf, where he died in 1904 at 85. Last report on his Mississippi panorama was that it was bought by an Englishman and taken to India.

In addition to the drawings made in Germany, the sketchbook contains others of Lake Champlain and of towns in Iowa.

The sketchbook provides a valuable supplement to information about Lewis contained in "The Mississippi Illustrated" collection of Lewis drawings.

With increasing public appreciation of nineteenth-century American art, a continuing search for pictures by Lewis and data about him is under way.

Writing in Antiques in 1952, John Francis McDermott, a member of the Washington University English department, showed that at least 40 copies of "The Mississippi Illustrated" have found their way to America since the book was published in Germany in 1854-1858. Previously it had been thought fewer than 20 copies were available in the United States.

Lewis, born in Scarborough, Kent, England, in 1819, was self-taught as an artist, came to America in 1836 and was employed as a scene painter and stage carpenter at the St. Louis Theater. In three summers, 1846-48, he traveled the entire length of the Mississippi by boat. He is probably the first artist to conceive of a moving panorama of the river, an idea that many other artists copied and helped develop as a predecessor of today's motion pictures.

Harold W. Dubinsky, 1145 Hillside drive, Richmond Heights, was named Reform Judaism's "Man of the Year" at a meeting last night of the Federation of Jewish Reform Temples of St. Louis at Hotel Sheraton.

A plaque, citing Dubinsky for "advancement of religion on the American scene" was given him by Alvin A. Abramson, president of the federation. Dubinsky was chosen to receive the award for his work as president of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, a member of the national executive board of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and a past president of the congregation at Temple Israel.

EDGAR E. RAND FUNERAL SERVICES TO BE TOMORROW

Funeral services for Edgar E. Rand, president of International Shoe Co., will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Rand, 50-year-old St. Louis civic leader, died yesterday of a heart ailment at Chicago, where he had been attending a national shoe convention.

A native St. Louisan, Mr. Rand was the eldest son of the late Frank C. Rand, founder of International Shoe Co. He was a member of Civic Progress, Inc., and was active in many other civic, welfare, educational and business organizations. He lived at 50 Overhill drive, Ladue.

He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Owen H. Mitchell Jr., Mrs. Donald Stephen Wohlman and Miss Helen Rand; three brothers, Frank C. Rand Jr., of New York; Henry H. Rand, a vice president of International Shoe Co., and Norfleet H. Rand, and two sisters, Mrs. Gale F. Johnston and Mrs. William Orthwein Jr.

NAVY DAY OBSERVED HERE IN CEREMONY ON BRIDGE

Exercises in observance of Navy day were held at noon today by the St. Louis Council of the Navy League on Veterans Memorial Bridge.

A wreath of flowers was tossed into the Mississippi river in tribute to naval personnel, past and present. William K. Haverstick, council president, spoke. A color guard from the Naval Air Station at Lambert-St. Louis Field was present.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, on Monday proclaimed today as Navy day, calling on all citizens to "render tribute to our Navy."

A "Navy day" dinner-dance will be held by Navy Post 294 of the American Legion at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at York Hotel.

Veronica Lake Collapses. DETROIT, Oct. 27 (AP)—Veronica Lake, stage and screen actress, collapsed in the lobby of a Detroit hotel today and was rushed to a hospital. At first it was feared she had suffered a heart attack, but a cardiogram taken at Receiving Hospital did not confirm the original diagnosis of possible coronary occlusion. Dr. Norman Goldston described her condition as "good" several hours after her collapse, and the 35-year-old actress was taken to Henry Ford Hospital for additional tests.

STOCKHOLDERS IN CHEERING SECTION

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP).—The stockholder now is beginning to get his share of the bumper crop of corporate earnings. Many wage earners already have been cut in through increased pay scales. Later Uncle Sam will get more than half of the gross profits.

But at the moment the stockholders are in the cheering section.

In just three days, boards of directors of America's prospering corporations have declared 15 increases in dividends, 21 extra dividend payments as an early Christmas present, and 15 dividend payments in the form of additional stock distribution. At the same time regular dividend payment declarations poured in by the scores.

Many more such forms of year-end bounty are expected as directors meet between now and Christmas. Still other boosts in dividends may be made payable after New Year's—under the expectation that individual income tax rates may be eased next year, and increased dividends will be even more welcome if subject to lower taxations.

EVEN IF YOU'RE NOT AMONG THE LUCKY ones getting increased returns from investments, some of this extra money may brush off on you.

to the members of the Cabinet in their various fields and then back them up in the results. But in doing that and in carrying out that policy I do not intend to turn over the complete authority of the President nor to forego the President's prerogative to make the final decision.

"Therefore it is absolutely necessary that the President should be kept fully informed on what is taking place. This is necessary in domestic affairs and it is vital in foreign affairs.

"I received no communication from you directly while you were in Moscow. The only message I had from you came as a reply to one which I had Under Secretary Acheson send to you about my interview with the Senate Committee on Atomic Energy.

"The protocol was not submitted to me, nor was the communication. I was completely in the dark on the whole conference until I requested you to come to the Williamsburg and inform me. The communication was released before I ever saw it.

"Now I have infinite confidence in you and in your ability, but there should be a complete understanding between us on procedure. Hence this memorandum.

"At Potsdam we were faced with an accomplished fact and were by circumstances almost forced to agree to Russian occupation of Eastern Poland and the occupation of that part of Germany east of the Oder River by Poland. It was a high-handed outrage.

"At the time we were anxious for Russian entry into the Japanese War. Of course, we found later that we didn't need Russia there and that the Russians have been a headache to us ever since.

"When you went to Moscow you were faced with another accomplished fact in Iran. Another outrage if I ever saw one. "Iran was our ally in the war. Iran was Russia's ally in the war. Iran agreed to the free passage of arms, ammunition and other supplies running into the millions of tons across her territory from the Persian Gulf to the Caspian Sea. Without these supplies furnished by the United States, Russia would have been ignominiously defeated. Yet now Russia stirs up rebellion and keeps troops on the soil of her friend and ally—Iran.

"There isn't a doubt in my mind that Russia intends an invasion of Turkey and the seizure of the Black Sea Straits to the Mediterranean. Unless Russia is faced with an iron fist and strong language, another war is in the making. Only one language do they understand—how many divisions have you?"

"I do not think we should play compromise any longer. We should refuse to recognize Romania and Bulgaria until they comply with our requirements; we should let our position on Iran be known in no uncertain terms and we should continue to insist on the internationalization of the Kiel Canal, the Rhine-Danube waterway and the Black Sea Straits and we should maintain complete control of Japan and the Pacific. We should rehabilitate China and create a strong central government there. We should do the same for Korea.

"Then we should insist on the return of our ships from Russia and force a settlement of the Lend-Lease debt of Russia.

"I'm tired of babying the Soviets."

Wanted Gen. Marshall for Job.

Byrnes accepted my decision. He did not ask to be relieved or express a desire to quit. It was not until some months later that he came to me and suggested that his health would not allow him to stay on. He agreed to remain through the negotiations of the peace treaties that were to grow out of his Moscow commitments. Throughout the remainder of 1946, however, it was understood that he would quit whenever I could designate his successor. I knew all that time whom I wanted for the job. It was Gen. Marshall, then on a vital assignment in China. In all subsequent relations, until he finally left office, Secretary Byrnes took great pains to keep me posted on what was going on. He would call daily if telephone connections were available, and his dispatches to the State Department would be placed before me regularly.

When Gen. Eisenhower, whom I had appointed Chief of Staff of the Army to succeed Gen. Marshall, was on an inspection trip to the Far East later that year, I told him I had a message I wanted him to give to Marshall when he saw him in China. I said I wanted him to tell Marshall that my Secretary of State wanted to retire from office, and that I wanted to know if Marshall would take the job when it became vacant.

When Eisenhower returned, he reported that he had delivered the message and that Marshall's answer had been—"Yes." When Marshall's mission to China came to an end, I announced his appointment without asking him again. Byrnes and I exchanged a number of friendly and personal letters after he left Washington. It was not until the civil rights issue made him bitter and distant that our contacts diminished.

Tomorrow: More troubles in the Cabinet: Ickes resigns over Pauley appointment and Mr. Truman accepts Wallace's resignation.

Gen. MacArthur Twice Refuses Invitations to Make Trip Home

TWICE, first on Sept. 17, 1945, and again on Oct. 19—I had Gen. George C. Marshall invite Gen. Douglas MacArthur to return to the States to receive the plaudits of a grateful nation. I felt he was entitled to the same honors that had been given to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. And, like Gen. Eisenhower, he could have returned to his post after a brief sojourn here. But the general declined.

The first message sent to Gen. MacArthur by Gen. Marshall was as follows:

"When the situation in Japan permits I suggest that you make a visit home. Undoubtedly a series of welcome celebrations will be proposed. This would amount to visits to several representative cities throughout the United States, including a stop in your state. . . . In Washington, the Congress would certainly invite you to address a joint session and there would be a reception or dinner by the President. Following all this, you will probably want to consider a period of rest. Available is a completely staffed de luxe cottage at Ashford General Hospital which was formerly the Greenbrier Hotel at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia. I believe your return should best be timed with the hearings of the Congressional committees on the postwar national defense. They have indicated their desire to have you testify. . . .

"Please let me have your views concerning such a proposed visit together with your desires. It would be well to consider bringing back in your party some representative enlisted men, as well as officers and naval officers in addition to members of your staff."

On Sept. 19 Gen. MacArthur replied:

"Appreciate very much your message. I naturally look forward to a visit home, from which I have been absent more than eight years. The delicate and difficult situation which prevails here, however, would make it unwise for me to leave until conditions are far more stabilized than at present. I believe a considerable period of time must elapse before I can safely leave.

"I am deeply grateful for the courtesies that have been planned. When I do return, I would hope to bring with me as a group such officers as Krueger, Kenney, Kinkaid, Sutherland, Richelberger, Whitehead, Barber and others. I would not wish to return on such a visit without these men whose magnificent united efforts so largely brought about the defeat of Japan. Such a visit home, symbolizing the contribution to victory made by the commands with which I have been associated, would make me very desirous of avoiding complications in any way involved in appearances before congressional committees on any extraneous issues such as postwar organization or any other matters. It would completely negative the character of the trip, involving me in controversial issues which I do not feel I should undertake at that time and under such circumstances."

On Oct. 19, I instructed Marshall to send this second message to Gen. MacArthur:

"The President has asked me to inform you that he wishes you to understand that he would like you to make a trip home at such time you feel that you can safely leave your duties. Our liaison contact with Congress indicated that as soon as they have something fairly definite about your plans they wish to extend you a formal invitation to return and address the Congress in joint session. I shall do nothing further until I hear from you."

Two days later Gen. MacArthur cabled:

"I am deeply grateful and most appreciative of the general action of Congress and the sympathetic attitude of the President and yourself. Nothing ordinarily would please me more than to accept this invitation without delay. A realization, however, of the extraordinarily dangerous and inherently inflammable situation which exists here compels me to suggest that this visit be delayed. The desperation of the coming winter here cannot be overestimated. I would feel that I were failing in my duty and obligations were I to delegate this responsibility. Be assured that as soon as I feel conditions are safe I shall report myself with a heart full of thanks and gratitude. Please convey this message to the President."

DEAN ACHESON CRITICIZES G.O.P. FOREIGN POLICY

and necessities which comes only from the conduct of affairs, the former Secretary of State writes; Republican interest turned toward the domestic political scene in the party's search for power.

A hospitality to intelligence has been an asset of the Democrats, Acheson says, maintaining that ideas were welcomed and respected in the postwar years from 1946 to 1952. He pays tribute to the late Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan Republican who was an exponent of bipartisanship in foreign policy, asserting Vandenberg had ability of the highest order and that he was a master of advocacy and maneuver.

"But Vandenberg did not have a particularly original or creative mind," Acheson continues. "His instincts were toward caution—to hold back, to examine the difficulties of the course proposed and to restrain the enthusiasts. These were good qualities. They were ideal qualities for a leader of an opposition which had for a part of the time control of the Congress. For he was dealing with an administration that overflowed with ideas. He did not have to be creative or original."

Since 1952, Acheson says, policy has "coasted on the momentum of past initiative. . . .

The stream of ideas, of imaginative thinking had dried up. The power of energetic action seemed to have been lost."

This is so partly because of recurrent Republican efforts to whittle down the power of the Executive and give Congress more say in foreign affairs, a field in which it is not organized to exert leadership, he says.

The power of energetic action has been lost in foreign economic policy because the Old Guard in the Republican party still clings to the idea of a high protective tariff, Acheson believes.

Acheson reacts indirectly to the violence of postwar attacks on the Democrats by Republicans, saying these attacks went beyond policy and individuals to strike at the character and patriotism of the policy makers and even at the government itself.

Booming Economy Gives G.O.P. Hope of Balancing Budget

Tax Revenues Far Above Previous Estimates and Trend Is Still Upward.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 — The Nation's booming industrial economy is giving the Republican Administration fresh hope of achieving one of its major goals—balancing the national budget.

Tax revenues are mounting far beyond previous calculations. Higher government income thus is making a balanced budget more and more likely even without the 3 per cent across-the-board cut in expenditures asked for by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey.

New grounds for Administration optimism appeared last week in Economic Indicators, monthly publication of the Council of Economic Advisers.

The government economists reported that personal income in the third quarter of 1955 was running at an annual rate of 306 billions.

The Treasury bases its estimate of personal tax receipts on this over-all figure.

January Estimate.

Personal income was estimated at only $298,500,000,000 last January, when President Eisenhower presented the budget for "fiscal 1956," the year ending next June 30. Individual taxes then were expected to bring in $32,500,000,000.

When Humphrey reviewed the budget last August, he boosted the estimate of personal tax receipts to $32,800,000,000, basing this on a new estimate of 300 billions for total personal income.

These estimates assumed that personal income would go up steadily and rapidly. The total for 1954 was only $287,600,000,000. In 1955, the annual rate was $293,600,000,000 for the first quarter and $300,500,000,000 for the second quarter.

That means that personal income already had surpassed expectations before the start of the new fiscal year. The new third-quarter figure of 306 billion dollars puts the personal income rate six billions ahead of expectations in the first quarter of fiscal 1956.

Economic indicators estimates that this new high level of personal earnings will result in annual taxes of $34,000,000,000. Assuming that state and local taxes account for $600,000,000 of this, the level of federal personal taxes still would be $600.

000,000 ahead of what the Treasury expected last August and $900,000,000 ahead of what it expected last January.

Council Raises Sights.

The Council of Economic Advisers also raised its sights for corporation profits, foreseeing increased revenue from corporation taxes, too.

Budget-makers predicted last January that corporation taxes would bring in $17,100,000,000 in fiscal 1956. That figure was based on expected total corporate income of $36,400,000,000 before taxes. By August, they anticipated corporate taxable income amounting to $40,600,000,000 and raised their estimate of corporation tax revenues to $19,200,000,000. Although the new Economic Indicators does not have corporation figures for the third quarter of 1955, it adds $500,000,000 to its earlier appraisal of second-quarter profits. The council now says second-quarter earnings were at an annual rate of 43 billions, with total corporation taxes running at a rate of $21,600,000,000. Assuming that state and local taxes take $1,300,000,000 of this total, federal corporation taxes were running $1,100,000,000 ahead of the August estimate even before the new fiscal year began. They were $3,200,000,000 ahead of the January estimate.

Putting these two main revenue sources together, we see that Treasury income would be $4,100,000,000 above January expectations, and $1,700,000,000 above what was foreseen last August.

Coincidentally, this last figure is exactly the deficit that Humphrey was predicting last August. Other things being equal, the one would cancel out the other, and the budget would be balanced.

Income, Profits Rising.

This conclusion assumes no further increases in personal income and corporate profits, but the trend of each is sharply upward. Further increases will mean still more tax revenues.

When Humphrey made his budget review last August, lowering the Administration's prediction of a deficit from $2, Continued on Page 12, Column 3.

The idea behind the introduction of a truly superior bourbon... Four Roses BOURBON

There's a sound idea behind the introduction of Four Roses Bourbon.

Frankly stated, it's this:

The makers of famous Four Roses Blended Whiskey are completely confident that no finer whiskey is being produced... or can be produced. It is—in our opinion—the best there is!

But (let's face it) there are quite a few men who happen to be bourbon drinkers.

So why not offer these men (perhaps you're one of them) the same "best-of-all" quality in a bourbon—FOUR ROSES Bourbon. And not just "another straight bourbon," but a bourbon with real distinction and a real reason for being better.

Your first taste will tell you what it means to have a bourbon under the Four Roses label.

For this bourbon has a flavor and quality that you can't get from just a single whiskey. It can be achieved only by blending several straight bourbons—great bourbons—each with a special virtue of its own.

That's the Four Roses Way. It takes more skill, more care, more patience. But it means a truly superior bourbon... and one that never varies.

If you're a bourbon drinker, be sure to try Four Roses Bourbon today. Look for the green label.

for winter-long anti-freeze protection against freeze-ups, rust and corrosion

Motor experts, men who know cars from A to Z, put their trust in the top-quality anti-freeze—Du Pont "Zerex." 91% of the starting drivers in this year's world-famous Indianapolis 500-mile race use Du Pont "Zerex" in their own personal cars.

Here's one reason:

SEE HOW MUCH CLEANER "ZEREX" KEEPS YOUR RADIATOR

Flask at left held a solution of water and ordinary anti-freeze with an oil inhibitor. Flask at right held a solution of "Zerex" and water. To each was added the same amount of ground rust—just as you might find in your own car's cooling system. Both flasks were shaken, then drained. Notice how a film of rust clings to the inside of the flask on left as it would to the metal surfaces of your car's cooling system. But the flask containing "Zerex" is clean! This demonstrates that Du Pont's special chemical rust inhibitor, which contains no oil, does not form a rusty oil film that could clog your radiator and cause overheating and serious engine damage.

TWO OF 19 U.S. CIVILIANS TO BE FREED BY CHINA

No Word on Other 17 Held in Red Jails — Agreement Was Reached at Geneva.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—The State Department confirmed today that Red China has agreed to free the first of 19 Americans held in Chinese jails—marking the first move by Peking to carry out a promise made six weeks ago.

The two Americans expected to cross into Hong Kong tomorrow are the Rev. Armand Proulx of Lowell, Mass., a Jesuit priest, and Miss Harriet Mills, a student and daughter of W. T. Mills of New York City.

Department press officer Lincoln White told his news conference word of their impending release has been received from the United States Consul General at Hong Kong. He said there was no word, however, of the fate of 17 others still in jail.

The agreement for release of the Americans was reached at Ambassadorial talks which began Aug. 1 in Geneva. The long negotiations over that point, and delay in carrying out the agreement after it was reached, have been the chief snag in those talks.

The United States insisted on some show of willingness to carry out the promise of freedom for the Americans before the United States delegate would go into detailed discussion of the second half of the agenda—"other practical matters at issue."

The United States went into the Geneva talks seeking freedom for 41 Americans. By the time agreement was reached, 16 had been turned loose, leaving 19 in jails and six awaiting exit permits.

Old Talks Continue in Geneva as New Ones Begin.

GENEVA, Oct. 27 (AP)—Ambassadors of the United States and Communist China resumed their 12-week-old secret talks in the Palace of Nations today, one floor below the council chamber where the Big Four foreign ministers' conference opened this afternoon.

United States Ambassador U. Alexis Johnson and Wang Ping-nan of Red China, each accompanied by an interpreter and two advisers, talked for two hours and 45 minutes, but made no announcement on the subject of their discussion. They agreed to meet again Nov. 3.

Today's meeting, the twenty-third, was the longest of the series.

COAST GUARD'S SCREENING RULES HELD INVALID

Court Upholds Appeal of 6 Seamen Suspected as Subversives in Korean War.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 27 (AP)—The United States Court of Appeals here ruled yesterday that Coast Guard regulations for screening suspected subversives off ships are unconstitutional.

The 2-to-1 decision upheld the appeal of Lawrence E. Parker and five other seamen who were screened off ships in San Francisco after outbreak of the Korean war.

The court held that to deny the person screened the names of witnesses against him and details of their testimony was a denial of due process and the ancient right of citizens to confront their accusers.

A 31-page decision was prepared by Judge Walter L. Pope of Montana, who wrote: "In the event of war we may have to anticipate Black Tom explosions on every water front, poison in our water systems and sand in all important industrial machines."

But the time has not come when we have to abandon a system of liberty for one modeled on that of the Communists."

Judge Thomas F. McAllister of Grand Rapids, Mich., concurred with Judge Pope. Appeals Judge William Healy of Idaho dissented.

Parker was a member of the defunct Independent National Union of Marine Cooks and Stewards. He and the other five seamen were screened off ships after the regulations were set down under the Magnuson act of 1950 following the start of the Korean war.

Yesterday's decision did not hold the Magnuson act unconstitutional, but only the regulations of the Coast Guard for screening suspected subversives.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Oct. 27 (AP)—The Florida Supreme Court held yesterday that an individual photographed in the immediate vicinity of a spot where a news event was taking place could not recover damages from a television station for invasion of privacy.

The court laid down this principle of law in dismissing a $500,000 damage suit brought by a Miami Beach man against the Southern Radio and Television Co., operator of television station WTVJ at Miami.

Justice B. K. Roberts, who wrote the unanimous opinion, said he had been unable to find a previous ruling by any state court on the point at issue.

Roberts said in his opinion that the court recognized "that a television newscaster must, like a newspaper reporter, attempt to get before the public 'today's news, today.'"

John Jacova sued the television station for alleged damage to his reputation because of a telecast showing him at a hotel cigar shop counter during a visit by raiding state and federal officers looking for evidence of gambling. The picture was taken during filming of the night's activities of raiding officers.

The telecast pictured Jacova as being questioned by officers who were looking for a big-time gambler. Jacova was not arrested. He contended he had been represented as a gambler and that he had been damaged.

ARTHUR DEAN QUILTS BOARD OF FUND FOR THE REPUBLIC

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—Arthur H. Dean, former United States Ambassador to Korea, said today he has resigned as a director of the Fund for the Republic for "policy reasons."

Asked if this meant he was quitting because of the organization's policies, Dean said, "Yes." He declined to go into details.

The fund, an independent foundation set up to promote the principles of the constitution, bill of rights and Declaration of Independence, has been accused by some groups of left-wing activities.

Dean, a corporation lawyer and head of the United Nations peace team that negotiated the peace terms in Korea, said he resigned Sept. 27 as a member of the fund's 18-member board of directors.

He said he did not want to discuss specific reasons.

COUNTY CHARTER CALLED OBSOLETE

Planning Director Baughman Says Area Needs Board of Public Service.

St. Louis county's five-year-old charter is already obsolete, County Planning Director M. Eugene Baughman said last night at a seminar on "Our Changing Area" at First Congregational Church of Webster Groves.

The legislative tools provided by the charter apply only to unincorporated areas "and are not available to provide the necessary studies and joint action where a problem is common to a region composed of several cities," Baughman asserted.

"The crying need is for county community-wide services affecting the urban area which has become incorporated as soon as it has been developed."

Citing a charter provision which enables cities to contract with the county for certain services, the speaker said his chief use had been for such activities as building, restaurant and plumbing inspections as distinguished from matters like "control and co-ordination of public utility rights-of-way and facilities."

He explained that what is needed is an agency similar to the St. Louis Board of Public Service, with county-wide regulatory authority. A charter amendment would be necessary to create such a body.

The proposed $39,712,000 bond issue, to be submitted to voters Nov. 22, "is only the first of a series of bond issues required to provide the public improvements necessary to meet the impact of the county's growth," he said.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH FRANCE BECOMES EIGHTH NATION TO RECOGNIZE DIEM

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, Oct. 27 (AP)—France recognized Premier Ngo Dinh Diem as new chief of state of South Viet Nam today but noted it expects the republic to respect its engagements with France.

The French high commissioner, Ambassador Henri Hoppenot, told Foreign Minister Vu Van Mau in a written note that France "as in the past attaches the highest price to the maintenance of friendly relations between the two governments in the mutual respect of their respective engagements."

France was the eighth country to accord recognition to Diem's election victory over Emperor Bao Dai. The others are the United States, Britain, Australia, New Zealand, Japan, Thailand and Italy.

The French have been annoyed with Diem because Viet Namese civil justice insists on trying two French officers accused of possessing explosives at the time terrorism was at its peak in August. Hoppenot says the men should be turned over to French military justice.

U.S. COURT ORDERS SEIZURE OF 500 CASES OF CIDER

Government seizure of 500 cases of cider was ordered today by United States District Judge Ruben M. Hulen, on grounds that decomposed apples were used in its preparation, under unsanitary conditions, in violation of the pure food, drugs and cosmetic law.

The cider was shipped Oct. 11 by the Alton Vinegar Co. of Alton, to the St. Louis Vinegar and Cider Co., 827 South Eleventh street.

Judge Hulen issued an attachment order and made it returnable Nov. 18.

SOUTH DAKOTA GOVERNOR URGES RIGID SUPPORTS

Foss Says Flexible Price Floors Fail the Farmer—Other Witnesses Testify.

BROOKINGS, S.D., Oct. 27 (AP)—Gov. J. P. Foss urged a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing today that Congress restore and maintain high, rigid farm price supports "until we can figure out a better program" for stabilizing agriculture.

Foss, a Republican, said the program of flexible supports is failing the farmer.

The Governor told the committee—which is touring the country seeking recommendations on how to improve farm prices—that his actions show "you have seen the handwriting on the wall" with regard to what he termed agricultural distress.

Foss said that one of the troubles in the situation is that too many people "are not upset by the decline in farm income."

"They ask why we upset when farmers make up only 13 percent of the population."

The first farmer witness at Foss' hearing was Harold Golsch, vice president of the South Dakota Farmers Union, the dominant farm organization in the state.

Also a Republican State Senator, Golsch set forth a program calling for full parity prices for all products produced by what he called "family type" farms.

Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they must pay.

Golsch would utilize production payments of the Brannan farm plan, loans and production controls to achieve such prices. He also recommended payments to farmers on land taken out of production under control.

He said the "constant lowering" of price supports on farm products has not cut farm production in South Dakota "as we had been told it would."

Golsch also called for "sympathetic administration" of farm programs, declaring this to be as important as the program itself.

Farm Bureau Man's Stand.

On the other hand, President Albert Keffeler of the South Dakota Farm Bureau, said his organization does not want the Senate committee to follow action of the House Agriculture Committee in voting to restore Truman Administration high supports.

Speaking only his personal views on this point, Keffeler urged legislation that would bar sale of any Government-held farm surpluses in competition with farmers in the domestic market.

"A good supply of surplus grains," he said, "could be buried in the ice in the Northland where it would keep indefinitely to be used at such time as our people are in need."

Keffeler suggested that the Government put a "force of salesmen" at work selling present surpluses in other countries.

Senator Francis Case (Rep.), South Dakota, not a member of the committee, appeared to recommend a program that would fix by law the price of corn, wheat and cotton used for human consumption in this country to full parity.

Such a program, he said, would comply with minimum wage laws designed to protect workers' wages.

The committee—which plans to go to all major farming areas of the country to hear ideas on how to restore agricultural stability—found support also for the idea among witnesses scheduled to appear at a hearing here today.

"Perhaps the biggest boost given the plan by industry men made at Des Moines yesterday by President Howard Hill of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation and H. E. Flusher of the Missouri Farm Bureau."

They told the committee that the present decline in farm prices reflects overproduction. They said the only cure is to limit output, but they declared present programs continue to promote a pileup of costly surplus.

Gives C. Figures.

Hill said that his suggested program would cost upwards of a billion dollars a year but that this amount would be no more than the cost of present farm programs.

Senate committee members indicated they are weighing the plan seriously.

Indorsers Hill Plan.

Slusher told the committee that he endorsed the recommendations made by Hill.

"I think what he suggested is what might be called a 'new look' on the farm problem," Slusher said.

E. A. McPheeters of Agency, Mo., said farmers in his area want a Department of Agriculture that thinks in terms of farmers rather than in terms of packers and food processors.

Talks on Russia

RUSSIAN LIVES ROCK OUTPUT SAID TO LAG

American Who Visited Soviet Union Addresses Milk Industry Group.

Russian livestock production has lagged behind other aspects of agriculture under the Soviet system, but Russian farmers generally are far better off than they were under the Tsarist regime, W. V. Lambert, who headed the American farm delegation to Russia last summer, said here today.

Lambert, dean of the College of Agriculture, University of Nebraska, addressed the Milk Industry Foundation at Hotel Jefferson. He said the United States could not afford to ignore advances being made behind the Iron Curtain.

Life on the collective farms is poor by American standards, he said. Homes have neither plumbing nor electricity, and rural living conditions are those that prevailed in the U. S. at the turn of the century.

But the Russian farmer, he continued, "does not see himself through American eyes. He concludes he is better off than his father, and all the wishful thinking from Maine to California won't change that opinion."

As to livestock, Lambert said the total number of cattle in the Soviet Union was 58,400,000 in 1916, before the revolution, and only 56,600,000 in 1953. He said Russian cows now average 2000 gallons of milk annually, against an average for the United States of 5447 gallons.

Vastly accelerated efforts to raise corn for cattle feed, in an effort to increase beef production, are in progress, Lambert told the audience, but lean beef still brings $2.35 a pound in government-owned stores, and fats are very scarce.

Cheered by Crowds.

Lambert described how he and the other 11 Americans in the entourage had been cheered by crowds during their 10,000-mile inspection. He said they saw nothing to support the conclusion that "people are uncommonly unhappy or on the brink of revolution."

He said the Americans were under no illusion that they had seen everything, or that the farm exchange visit would alter basic Soviet ideology. He emphasized his conviction, however, that such exchanges of ideas and information were worthwhile.

Benson Letter.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson, in a letter read to the Milk Industry Foundation's convention this morning, said the United States has a milk shortage, rather than a surplus, if all citizens consumed the amount required by minimum dietary standards.

His letter was addressed to F. Benson, president of the Foundation.

The Secretary of Agriculture said increased consumption of fluid milk had been a factor in enabling the Government to halve its purchases of surplus milk this year, as compared to 1954.

Year's Purchases.

In the dairy marketing year that ended last March 31, the Government bought 211,000,000 pounds of butter, 153,000,000 pounds of cheese, and 523,000,000 pounds of nonfat milk solids, Benson said today.

Stocks in Government hands were now being disposed of at a rapid rate.

Benson said the nation's 15,000 milk dealers should be commended for their efforts to increase fluid milk sales. Sales were up more than 4 percent in the first half of this year, he said, representing an increase of 2 1/2 billion pounds.

"One important fact ought to be obvious to all of us," Benson said. "In reality, there is no milk surplus in the United States. If we were to consume the amount our minimum dietary standards require, there would be a shortage."

36 Per. of Nation's Food.

The Milk Industry Foundation is an international association of milk processors and distributors. About 2000 persons are attending the meeting, which began yesterday and ends tomorrow.

Baldwin, who read Benson's letter, pointed out that the dairy industry supplied the nation with 30 percent of its food for 20 percent of its food expenditures. He said the price of dairy products had increased less than the average of all other foods.

"For this reason," Baldwin said, "the dairy industry has done far more to keep up the standards of the low-income groups than most others."

outromise the Democrats."

It said Benson "stood firm" and was backed by Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, Secretary of Treasury George Humphrey, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and "the rest of the cabinet" while Vice President Richard M. Nixon "stayed on the fence."

Boom Gives G.O.P. Hope Of Balancing the Budget

400,000,000 to $1,700,000,000, he said.

"Barring basic change in the international situation, the anticipated combination of reduced Government expenditures and of rising revenues resulted from widely shared increasing prosperity should bring a balanced budget into sight within the year. Still further progress would justify lower tax rates."

The higher revenues are coming to pass. Not so the reduced expenditures. Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson apparently obtained the President's approval last week for total military spending of $34,500,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year. This would be $500,000,000 above the figure used in both the January and August budget estimates.

Wilson's Argument.
Wilson's telling argument against Humphrey's demand for reduced spending is believed to have been that any reduction would cut into actual combat strength. The Administration may also have felt that an announcement of the $34,500,000,000 figure would put the United States in a good bargaining position for the Big Four foreign ministers' conference opening at Geneva next week.

Republicans also are finding it more difficult to cut non-defense spending than was indicated by some G.O.P. campaign orators when the Democrats were in power. Despite economy efforts, the August budget review showed about 25 categories of non-defense spending estimated higher this year than last. Reductions were anticipated in only eight categories.

Ironically, the President's heart attack will make its own small contribution to increased Government revenues. Heavy sales on the stock market, when most issues were at record highs, resulted in profits that are taxable at 25 per cent as capital gains, if not at a higher rate where the stocks were acquired within six months.

One large blot on this otherwise rosy picture is the steady drop of farm income. The economic advisers' latest report puts farmers' net income at $10,200,000,000 for the third quarter, compared with $10,800,000,000 for the second quarter and $11,500,000,000 for the first. The figure stood at $16,800,000,000 in 1947 and has been dropping with hardly an upturn ever since.

Net income per farm reached $3135 in 1948. In the third quarter of 1955 it slipped to $1957, the lowest point since World War II. Farm production expenses have remained almost constant in recent years.

Significance in Budget.
Farm income has far greater significance in the federal budget than the relatively small amount of farmers' taxes. Dropping farm income sends the cost of government farm price supports up almost automatically. They also increase the political pressure on an Administration to devise a still more generous formula for farm aid. Furthermore, a sagging farm economy can touch off economic difficulties throughout the nation.

Humphrey made it clear after his talk with the President at Denver that there will be no tax cut until the budget is balanced. When that time does come, the Administration will face an important decision—whether to cut taxes or apply the saving to the national debt.

Humphrey has suggested that reduction of the national debt could wait for a while and that a tax cut would be valuable as a spur to business. Tax cuts, however, have an inflationary effect, and debt reduction is de-

... don't spill a drop. It's St. Louis' own . . . Conrad's Laurel Springs! Each golden bottle filled to the brim with "the whiskey you'd offer a friend."

No wonder Laurel Springs is such a hometown favorite . . . it's family-tailored especially to please St. Louis tastes. The old-fashioned, time-tested formula that gives it such fine flavor has been a part of the Conrad family tradition since 1874. And since we produce only a limited quantity you can always count on every drink, every bottle being the same uniform high quality.

Mild, yet full bodied, this smooth, mellow bourbon has aroma and taste that make your every sip a pleasure.

Set one of those trays down here, waiter . . . let's try Laurel Springs tonight!

Available now, during the holidays only, in a special carafe decanter (copy of a costly early American antique) at no extra cost.

Food a Big Part of Halloween Fun

Don't Forget Goodies for Ghostly Visitors: Ham Excellent Choice for Parties.

By DOROTHY BRAINER
Post-Dispatch Food Editor

DOUGHNUTS and popcorn, chewing gum and candy, marshmallows and raisins, bright yellow pumpkins and shiny red apples—these are the things marketing lists are made of this week.

These are the gay foods that will bring happy smiles to the faces of fun-loving souls on Halloween. These are the items that will appear on party tables, or will be placed in eagerly outstretched hands of young goblins lurking on the doorstep. You might as well think of Christmas without holly as to think of Halloween without doughnuts.

Popcorn is an ideal answer to the trick-or-treat problem. It is a sure success with small fry, inexpensive and easy to prepare.

Chewing gum is another good bet for small spooks and giggling goblins. Neatly wrapped and convenient to handle, it gives the pint-sized pranksters a treat without upsetting small digestive systems.

These shiny red apples will be no problem. This is the season for them, and they are here aplenty. Take your choice of many varieties, including the over-popular Jonathans and Delicious of fine quality, plus many cooking apples.

Pumpkins, big and little, await your choice. There are red cranberries and pomegranates to lend color to your table; juicy grapes with Tokays, seedless and Ribiers predominate.

Shipments of California oranges are a little lighter, but apples are heavier from Florida and Texas. You may find that the ruby red and pink grapefruit show a little better maturity than the whites right now.

Sufficient lemons and pears to meet demands and a few lingering honeydew, Casaba and Persian melons round out the fruit picture.

Remember: tie a string around your finger so that you don't go home without some golden cider.

NOW let's take a look at the vegetable situation. If you are counting pennies you have a wide choice of reasonably-priced items this week. These include broccoli, crisp and fresh; brussels sprouts, carrots, cabbage of outstanding quality plus some red cabbage. Add Long Island cauliflower to the list (and Long Island sends us some of the best 'flower we get), celery, southern Puerto Rican yams, rutabagas, bulk turnips, parsnips, potatoes, onions and homegrown mustard, turnip tops and spinach.

In the moderate-to-high-priced bracket we find eggplant, string beans, beets, peppers, various squashes, iceberg lettuce, homegrown oyster plant, kohlrabi and tomatoes. Incidentally, there are some interesting decorative squash in irregular sizes, including some tiny ones, which are fine for decorative purposes.

IN the meat department, what comes to your mind when you think of Halloween? Chances are 10 to one that the first thing you think of is the rood old hot dog. And a good thought it is, if you want to give a party without straining the budget.

The ways in which franks can be served are almost countless. Sprinkle skinless franks with brown sugar, add a little prepared mustard and broil. Or split, fill with cheddar cheese, wrap in bacon and broil. Crushed pineapple with just a smidgen of prepared mustard makes another delicious filling.

Ham is an excellent choice for your Halloween party. Prices at which it is being sold are really remarkable, and what better or easier main dish for a buffet?

It is pork all the way down the line in the parade of meat values this week. The promised big supplies have arrived, and you can get some real buys.

Also look for bargains in broiler-fryers; some markets also have hens at reasonable prices in case you would like to feature chicken salad in your menu.

SCOUTING THE MARKETS: An entirely new type of canned peaches is just appearing in St. Louis stores.

A recently developed method of pitting cling peaches gives them pretty, shaggy pink centers that closely resemble freestone. And the fact that the pit is lifted, not cut, means that you get the extra-good flavor which is concentrated near the pit.

Apple Faces. It takes only a minute or two to dress up apples with grinning goblin faces. Use a sharp knife to remove a thin layer of apple skin to make the eyes, nose and mouth of the goblin, then brush the cut surfaces with lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Or use tiny gum drops to form the features.

Squash 'Dragon' for Party Tables

Here is a conversation piece for your Halloween table. A crooked neck squash becomes a fearsome dragon with the addition of bacon strips for a tail, a slice of stuffed olive for a leering eye. The dragon doesn't breathe fire, but flames from canned heat concealed in the "body" make its possible to toast franks or marshmallows. For the jack-o'-lantern cookies, crisp refrigerator cookies (ginger, nut or vanilla) are covered with orange frosting; faces are drawn on with a toothpick dipped in melted sweet chocolate.

HALLOWEEN has a special place in the hearts of Americans because it is "strictly for fun" and we are, happily, a fun-loving nation. There is no religious or patriotic significance to the holiday; it is dedicated purely to fantasy. Black cats and goblins, witches and wraiths reign over the realm, and it is everyone's night to howl.

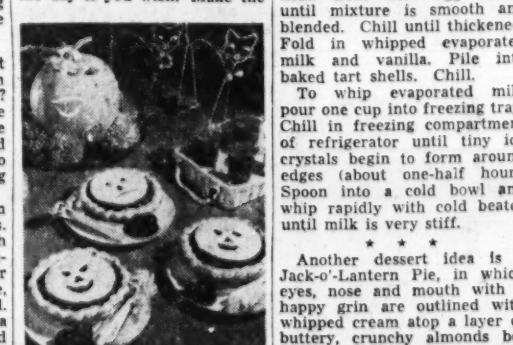

It would be a dreary household indeed where no notice was taken of such a delightful day. And, of course, "fun foods" are the best way to get into the spirit of the thing.

If you plan a party you will be willing to go to some trouble to serve fancy foods. But if you don't plan a special celebration you can still give the Halloween touch easily and inexpensively, to the dishes you serve your family.

For example, you might delight the youngsters by floating tiny cheese pumpkins atop their tomato soup. Just cut little rounds from thin slices of orange cheese; cut a "funny face" or eyes and mouth in the cheese rounds, and float the pumpkin faces on a big bowl of hot tomato soup.

Or dip frozen flaked beef steaks in beaten eggs with a little salt and water added. Dip in bread crumbs seasoned with pepper, deep-fry until a rich brown (about two minutes on each side). Drain on absorbent paper; decorate each one with stuffed olive slices for eyes, a small radish for nose, and curled carrot strips for grinning mouth.

For party fare, make these olive-burger pies with false faces. The individual pie shells and tops may be baked early in the day if you wish. Make the 'burger mixture, too—then heat them both at the last minute before putting together and sending to the gally decorated table.

(Olive-Burger Pies)
One cup ripe olives.
One large onion.
One pound lean ground beef.
Two tablespoons drippings.
One eight-oz. can tomato sauce.
One-half cup water or broth.
One teaspoon salt.
One teaspoon mustard.
One teaspoon chili powder.
One-fourth cup sweet pickle relish.

Four individual baked pastry shells and tops.
Pastry:
Two cups sifted all-purpose flour.
One teaspoon salt.
Two-thirds cup shortening.
One-fourth cup cold water.

Peel and slice onion and cook with beef in drippings until meat is lightly browned. Add tomato sauce, water, salt, mustard, chili powder, pickle relish and olives. Stir to blend ingredients. Then simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until meat is done. Spoon into individual baked pastry shells and top with baked pastry rounds. Garnish with carrot and celery sticks and ripe olives and serve at once.

Pastry: Sift flour and salt into a bowl. Cut in shortening. Add water gradually. Gather dough into a ball and divide into four equal-size pieces. Then cut off about one-third dough from each piece (this will divide pastry into top and bottom crusts for four pies). Roll larger pieces of dough to fit individual pie pans about five and one-half inches diameter, one and one-fourth inches deep. Build fluted edge. Prick bottom and sides. Roll smaller pieces of dough into four-inch rounds. Cut faces in each one. Bake shells and tops in a very hot oven (450 degrees) for 10 to 15 minutes or until golden brown.

For dessert, the individual fluted tart shells might be filled with a creamy chocolate filling, then topped with an orange-colored marshmallow to form these Little Punkin' Chocolate Tarts.

Bake eight to 10 plain or fluted tart shells. Cool. Use filling recipe below, allowing two-thirds to three-fourths cup filling for each tart. Top each with an orange-colored marshmallow; add a piece of green gumdrop for a pumpkin stem.

Filling:
One envelope (one tablespoon) unflavored gelatin.
Three-fourths cup sugar.
One-eighth teaspoon salt.
One egg yolk, slightly beaten.
Three-fourths cup milk.
Three squares unsweetened chocolate.
One cup evaporated milk, whipped.
One teaspoon vanilla.
Mix gelatin, sugar and salt in top of double boiler. Combine egg yolk and milk and add to gelatin mixture. Add the three squares of unsweetened chocolate. Cook over boiling water until chocolate is melted, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat. Beat with egg beater until mixture is smooth and blended. Chill until thickened. Fold in whipped evaporated milk and vanilla. Pile into baked tart shells. Chill.

To whip evaporated milk pour one cup into freezing tray. Chill in freezing compartment of refrigerator until firm around edges (about one-half hour). Spoon into a cold bowl and whip rapidly with cold beater until milk is very stiff.

Another "dessert" idea is a Jack-o'-Lantern Pie, in which eyes, nose and mouth with a happy grin are outlined with whipped cream atop a layer of buttery, crunchy almonds beneath which is a luscious filling made with cream and raisins. This pie is a variation of the popular chess pie, as good today as it was in the days of the hoe-down and Virginia reel.

Jack-o'-Lantern Pie.
Three egg yolks.
Two tablespoons flour.
Two-thirds cup brown sugar (packed).
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-third cup melted butter or margarine.
One cup table cream.
One cup light or dark raisins.
One cup chopped or ready-diced roasted almonds.
One nine-inch unbaked pastry shell.
One-half cup whipping cream.
Beat egg yolks thoroughly. Combine flour, sugar and salt; blend into eggs along with butter and table cream. Rinse and drain raisins and put in pie shell. Pour in brown sugar mixture and top with almonds. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) about 50 minutes or until set in center. Cool. Outline Jack-o'-Lantern face with whipped cream.

Thrifty Nifty
Individual casseroles of aluminum foil, nice for parties: Make by using aluminum foil double. Flute edges. Bake on cookie sheet.

APPLES TRADITIONAL TRICK-OR-TREAT FARE

CAN you imagine Halloween's without apples? Apples floating elusively in a tub of water for the ages-old game of "bobbing"; apples dangling temptingly from a string; apples to be coated with a transparent or a caramel coating.

Bright, shiny apples piled high in a wooden bowl, to be munching with raisins and nuts. And, of course, to be given to ghostly visitors.

A decorative and inexpensive holder for appetizers can be made simply with a plump, shiny-red Delicious apple. Impale cheese squares, raisins or bits of meat on a toothpick, then thrust the other end into a polished apple until it resembles a pin cushion.

For a delicious snack, serve the apples unpeeled and cut into thick slices with your favorite cheese or a cheese dip. Soft cheddar cheese may be molded into small pumpkin shapes, or try this Roquefort-Cream Cheese Spread that is especially good with fresh apple slices.

Roquefort-Cream Cheese Spread.
One three-ounce package of cream cheese.
One-half cup firmly packed Roquefort cheese.
Three tablespoons mayonnaise.

Soften cheese to room temperature and place in small mixing bowl with mayonnaise. Blend together thoroughly. Turn into container in which spread is to be served, cover tightly and place in refrigerator until cheese is firm again. Yield: about three-fourths cup cheese spread.

Homemade grape juice, combined with equal parts of orange juice and ginger ale makes a foamy, brightly colored drink that children love. Add a scoop of fresh fruit sherbet if you want to make a party of it.

Apples fit into the Halloween picture in many ways—in games, in decorations, and in menus. Here slices of unpeeled apples are served with little cheese pumpkins. They would be equally delicious with a Roquefort-Cream Cheese Spread.

foamy, brightly colored drink that children love. Add a scoop of fresh fruit sherbet if you want to make a party of it.

Hot Calypso Cider.
Two quarts cider or apple juice.
One-fourth cup brown or maple sugar.
Two tablespoons aromatic bitters.
Three slices orange.
Three slices lemon.

Heat cider with sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved. Add orange slices and lemon slices. Let simmer 10 minutes. Add bitters, stir and serve. Yield: about two quarts cider.

If you prefer a cooling drink, try this one made with fruit juices and frozen lemonade. Frozen lemonade, incidentally, is a handy punch base in all seasons. There is a zesty tang to this

SOME VARIATIONS OF 'WITCH'S BREW'

OF course you will want a "witch's brew" for your party—a beverage to be ladled inside a punch bowl placed inside a big pumpkin. (Be sure the bowl is braced, if needed, so that it rests firmly.)

DEFENSE PACT SIGNED BY EGYPT, SAUDI ARABIA

CAIRO, Oct. 27 (AP)—Egypt and Saudi Arabia signed a military defense pact today. It is reported to call for a unified command of their armies.
Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser signed for Egypt and Crown Prince and Premier Emir Faisal signed for Saudi Arabia.
Informed circles say the pact follows closely the pattern of the Syrian-Egyptian treaty signed last week in Damascus. The new pact was reported to call for the setting up of a permanent joint command, a joint defense fund and a joint war council to co-ordinate military planning. Informants say Egypt and Saudi Arabia will share equally the expenses of the joint command.

After the signing Emir Faisal, who is a brother of King Saud, said "I am happy to announce my pleasure on behalf of King Saud and the Saudi kingdom for this joyful moment."

TRANSFER OF ARMY RECORDS GETS UNDERWAY HERE

Transfer of records of persons separated from armed forces of the United States from the Military Personnel Records Center, 4700 Goodfellow boulevard, to the new establishment, 9700 Page avenue, Overland, is under way.

Col. David H. Arp, commanding officer, said the work of moving 70,000 filing cabinets is being done by Gerold Moving & Warehousing Co., East St. Louis. He said the 1500 employees of the center will move into the new six-story $12,500,000 building as records are transferred.
The new concrete and glass building has 1,240,000 square feet of usable floor space. Construction was begun Oct. 9, 1943, and completed this month.

FOURTH PAPER FIRM TO INCREASE PRICE

Higher Advertising Rates and Prices of Newspapers Predicted.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—A fourth major producer said yesterday that it intends to increase the price of newspaper to United States newspapers.

Sir Eric Bowater, president of the Bowater Paper Corp., declared his company plans to increase the price "at a time of our own choosing," but did not specify the amount of the increase.

His statement came as Cranstons Williams, general manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, asserted the forthcoming increases in newspaper prices leaves newspapers with no choice but to increase advertising rates and the prices to subscribers.

Canadian International Paper Co. Tuesday announced a hike of $1 a ton, effective Nov. 1, bringing the price to $130 a ton, delivered in New York. The increase followed a $5 a ton increase announced last week by St. Lawrence Corp., Montreal, and a similar $5 boost Monday by Abitibi Power & Paper Co., Toronto. The St. Lawrence and Abitibi increases brought their New York price to $131 a ton.

Other top Canadian newspaper companies which have remained silent on their plans include Consolidated Paper Corp., Price Brothers & Co., Powell River Paper Co., Anglo-Canadian Pulp & Paper Mills Ltd., and Great Lakes Paper Co. The pattern usually has been for the industry to follow with a general increase in price. One manufacturer has increased the price.

MISSOURIAN PARACHUTES FROM DISABLED B-29 ABROAD

Maj. Benjamin S. Hilkeman, a former resident of Jefferson county, was one of 11 crew members who parachuted to safety from an Air Force B-29 Superfortress that developed engine trouble Tuesday night on a flight over England, it was learned here today.

The bomber, attached to the United States Fifty-third Weather Reconnaissance unit at Burtonwood, England, was reported to have crashed after being abandoned. Maj. Hilkeman, 35 years old, is the son of Mrs. Benjamin S. Hilkeman, of Murphy, Mo., three miles south of Fenton in Jefferson county.

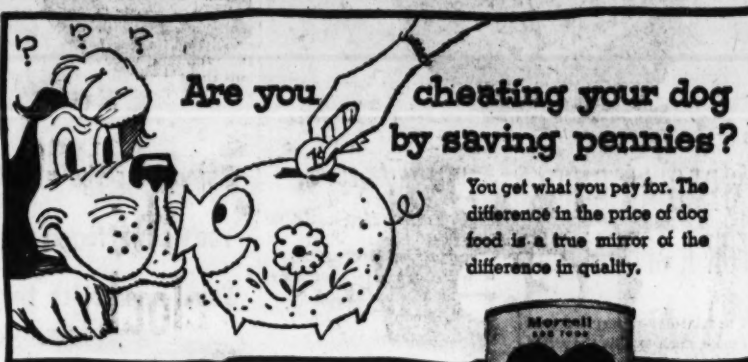

A pilot in World War II, Maj. Hilkeman was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal when serving in the Pacific Theater. He was in the Air Force from 1941 to 1945 and later was recalled shortly before the Korean conflict. He was graduated from Roosevelt High School and attended Harris Teachers' College. He is married and has two children.

MAYOR GRATIFIED BY GAINS AT HOMER PHILLIPS HOSPITAL

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker expressed gratification today with improvements made at Homer G. Phillips Hospital after an inspection visit to the institution.

He found the interior and exterior of the building had been painted, many of the old lighting fixtures replaced with new fluorescent lighting and many hitherto bare concrete floors covered with asphalt tile. The improvements had been made since Tucker's last visit about 18 months ago.

In addition to $150,000 spent on the building itself, another $600,000 has been used for new equipment. Overcrowding has been relieved by a tighter admission policy and more intensive investigation of patients' economic status before admission. About 1800 fewer childbirths were handled last year than the year before as a result of this policy, the Mayor was told.

STROBEL DENIES HIS FIRM GAINED BY HIS U.S. JOB

Official Recalled For Testimony Tomorrow at Conflict-of-Interest Hearing.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (AP)—Peter A. Strobel, manager of the Government's billion-dollar public buildings operation, has strongly denied to House investigators that his New York engineering consultant firm ever profited from his influential official position.

However, Strobel was recalled for further testimony tomorrow before a House Judiciary subcommittee investigating possible conflict of interest between his public role and his 90 per cent partnership in the firm of Strobel & Salzman.

The subcommittee also summoned Joseph B. Moody, counsel for the Public Buildings Service which Strobel heads as $14,500-a-year commissioner in General Services Administration, the Government's house-keeping agency.

The Public Buildings Service directs all federal building management activities and does such things as selecting architects and contractors for new buildings, negotiating contracts for government lease-purchase of privately-built buildings, and supervising federal real estate.

Didn't Seek Private Gain.
Strobel, a mild-mannered witness, yesterday told the subcommittee he "did not come to Washington for private gain," and that he severed his management connections with his firm when he was appointed public buildings commissioner in July, 1954.

He also said he never made any secret that he retained a 90 per cent profit interest in his firm, which he declared "is about all I have." He said he had cleared that arrangement with Edmund F. Mansure, GSA administrator.

After extended questioning, Chairman Emanuel Celler (Dem., New York), agreed "there may not have been any violation of the conflict of interest statutes," but that there was a "question of delicacy" as to whether Strobel should have recommended one of his firm's clients to do architectural work on a remodeling job for the Immigration and Naturalization Service in New York.

Strobel testified his firm now has 32 clients, and that two of them—Serge Petroff and Chapman, Evans and Delehanty—won architectural alteration jobs for the Public Buildings Service.

'Rush' Job.
He said he recommended the Petroff firm for the immigration service job because it was "rush" work, and he knew that Petroff could deliver "on time." On the other job, Strobel said he was not aware until "four or five weeks after" that it had gone to Chapman, Evans & Delehanty.

Strobel told the committee that he has not "in any way used or sought to use my official position to further the interests of the firm," and that the two awards to his firm's clients did not profit himself or his firm.

He also testified "a friend," identified as Harry Smith, a

New York business man, "led me to believe" it was all right for Strobel to retain his partnership interest in Strobel & Salzman.

Strobel said he understood Smith would clear the question with Attorney General Herbert Brownell and the White House. But in response to questions, Strobel could not say whether this was ever done.

U.S. OFFICIALS TO ADVISE CITY ON NEW WORKHOUSE

Two Washington officials of the United States Bureau of Prisons will be here tomorrow and Saturday to advise city officials on plans for a new Workhouse, for which $3,000,000 was authorized in the bond election last May, at the request of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

They are Myril Alexander, assistant chief of the bureau, and Robert Barnes, its senior architect.

Tomorrow they will confer with the Mayor, the City Plan Commission, Workhouse Warden Harold E. Baynes, and Mrs. E. G. Brungard, director of public welfare. Saturday they will tour prospective sites.

Serve Rice

'round the clock

So good...so many ways

Rice is at home in any dish—at any meal. And it borrows the flavors of costlier foods so cleverly that even small food budgets behave like big ones when rice is on the menu. To make meals in a jiffy at pennies a portion, serve rice 'round the clock... round the calendar.

TRY THIS QUICK 1-2-3 METHOD:

Put 1 cup rice, 2 cups water, 1 teaspoon salt in a pot with a tight-fitting lid. Bring to a hard boil, reduce to a simmer and cook according to instructions on the package. No washing... no peeling... no watching... no waste. Just tender, fluffy rice every time.

... STRETCH YOUR ... BEEF AND ASPARAGUS WITH RICE ...

MEAT BUDGET WITH THIS RICE AND BEEF RECIPE

1 1/2 pounds round steak	1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 cup salad oil	1 1/2 cups beef stock*
1 clove garlic, minced	1/2 pound mushrooms, sliced
3 tablespoons minced onions	1/4 cup cornstarch
1 12-ounce package cut asparagus	1/2 cup water
2 teaspoons salt	3 cups hot cooked rice

Cut meat into strips about 3 inches long and 1/2-inch thick. Heat 3 tablespoons of the salad oil in large skillet. Add meat, garlic, and onions. Cook quickly over high heat, stirring constantly, just until meat loses its raw appearance. Add asparagus, salt, pepper, and beef stock to skillet and bring to a boil. Lower heat; cover and simmer 8-10 minutes, or until asparagus is just tender.

It should not be overcooked. Brown mushrooms in remaining salad oil. Blend cornstarch with water. Add to beef-asparagus mixture together with mushrooms. Cook until thickened and clear. Serve over the hot rice. Makes six 1-cup servings.

*Bouillon cubes dissolved in hot water may be substituted.

HUSTLING CHINESE LAUNDRY GETS SHIP DATA, 2 HELD

YOKOSUKA, Japan, Oct. 27 (AP)—A United States Navy chief petty officer and a Chinese laundry man were held today in an investigation of the leakage of confidential warship movements to an enterprising laundry.

Several other Navy men were under investigation but are not held, the Navy said.

Charles W. Barlow, Navy chief quartermaster from Charleston, W. Va., "is being held for investigation by Navy authorities for alleged violation of security regulations," the Navy announced.

"The investigation has to do with suspicion of passing classified information concerning ship arrivals to two Chinese laundry men, who used the information to gain an advantage over their competitors in the ship-to-shore laundry business," it added.

Japanese authorities in Yokohama arrested laundry man Ku Yuan-pin at the United States Navy base here. The other laundry man, Wei Hsi-yu, was cited for failure to register as an alien.

Gen. Kuter in Formosa.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Oct. 27 (AP)—Gen. Lawrence S. Kuter, Far East Air Forces commander, arrived yesterday from Tokyo for conferences with Gen. Wang Shu-ming, Nationalist Air Force chief, and other high Chinese and United States air officers.

SAYS HE PAID COOPER $2250 FOR $1869 CAR

Attorney and Used Auto Dealer Testify in Perjury Trial.

Additional Government witnesses told today of paying cash premiums to obtain hard-to-get automobiles, at the perjury trial of Carlisle Cooper, business associate of automobile dealer Adolph C. (Andy) Burger. The Government expects to complete its case today, in the court of United States District Judge George H. Moore.

The Government rested its case this afternoon. The last three witnesses told of paying more than the list price for Fords in 1947, to a man they knew as "Cooper" at the Burger agency.

Edward W. Olaszewski, executive secretary of the American Packing Co., said he paid $165 over list; Fritz Mann, sales representative of Lennox Manufacturing Co., $200, and Erwin Beatz, a newspaper distributor, $300.

Cooper, vice president of Andy Burger Motors, Inc., is charged with giving untrue answers under oath when questioned by Internal Revenue Service agents about income tax returns made for Burger and the motor company for 1945 through 1948. The questions pertained to reports that purchasers in the postwar shortage period paid cash premiums above invoice prices in order to obtain automobiles from the Burger firm.

Myron D. Hopper, president of the Midland Optical Co., 1222 North Seventh street, told the jury he bought two automobiles from the Burger firm in 1947, paying $300 above list price to Cooper on each machine.

Edward A. Ockel, operator of the Music Record Shop, 2626 Olive street, testified that friends directed him to Cooper in January 1947. He quoted Cooper as telling him that he could get an automobile by paying $350 over the list price.

Harold O. Piening, an attorney with offices at 506 Olive street, testified yesterday that in 1947 he paid $2250 for a Ford machine which had a listed price of $1869. Piening testified the transaction was handled for him with Andy Burger Motors by John Kuhlmann, a used automobile dealer.

Kuhlmann, 5317 Geraldine avenue, told the jury he cashed Piening's check at a bank obtaining $2100 bills and a $50 bill, which he gave to Cooper.

Cooper and Burger were indicted jointly in December 1953 for allegedly evading income taxes of the Andy Burger firm. M. Ray Crocker, vice president of Community Motors, Inc., of which Burger is president, was charged with perjury in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury last January. These cases are pending.

a trick and a treat by CLABBER GIRL

Baked
Apple
Doughnuts

Here's a trick that makes a treat... baked apple doughnuts that have the airy lightness of a puffy deep-fried doughnut yet are baked in muffin pans. The flavored freshness of new fall apples plus flavor-fresh Clabber Girl make for a fine example of fresh ingredient baking.

BAKED APPLE DOUGHNUTS

Yield: 12 doughnuts

1 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons Clabber Girl Baking Powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup shortening

Sift together flour, Baking Powder, salt, nutmeg, and 1/2 cup sugar. Cut in shortening until mixture is fine. Mix together egg, milk, and apple; add all at once to dry ingredients and mix quickly but thoroughly. Fill greased 2 1/2 x 1 1/4-inch muffin pans 3/4 full. Bake in 350° F. (moderate) oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pans. Immediately roll doughnuts in melted butter or margarine, then in sugar and cinnamon which have been mixed together. Serve warm.

STATE TO SEEK $304,000 IN NEW FIRE RISK SUITS

Action to Complete Ownership of $907,000 Unclaimed in Rate Scandal of 1930s.

By the Post-Dispatch Jefferson City Correspondent.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 27—Attorney General John M. Dalton said today 22 more law suits will be filed in circuit court in Jefferson City, to complete legal ownership by the state of $907,000 still unclaimed by Missouri fire insurance policyholders, in connection with the notorious fire insurance rate compromise of 1935.

Circuit Judge Sam C. Blair of Jefferson City ruled last week in 118 separate state suits under the Missouri escheat law, that $603,000 due such unlocated policyholders must revert to the State Treasury.

Those cases are being appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court, Dalton said, in order to obtain a higher court ruling on constitutionality of the law, governing actions by which the state may take title to unclaimed funds.

The 22 new suits will deal with recovery for the state of another $304,000 of unclaimed premium refunds due other groups of policyholders in the 1935 compromise, who could not be found to receive refunds due them.

The $907,000 total now is in the possession of the United States district court in Kansas City, Mo., pending completion of the state recovery litigation. After final rulings in the pending cases in the state courts, it was said, the federal court will be asked to order the final transfer to the state treasury.

Presumably this will be the closing litigation in a multiplicity of suits, a bribery-purchased rate compromise, ouster and criminal proceedings, and other litigation, which grew out of stock fire insurance company rate increases in Missouri, starting about 1930.

While litigation over legality of a 16 1/2 per cent rate increase by the companies was pending, a compromise was entered into by the companies and the then State Insurance Superintendent R. Emmet O'Malley of Kansas City, by which 80 per cent of the $12,000,000 in impounded rate increase funds, representing increased rates collected during the litigation, was to go to the companies, lawyers and for litigation costs.

The other 20 per cent was to be returned to the policyholders who had been fighting the higher rates. The proposed rate increase was to be cut in half.

The courts found subsequently that a $460,000 fund raised by the companies was used in obtaining the compromise agreement. Of this fund, $315,000 was paid to the late "Boss" T. J. Pendergast of Kansas City; $62,500 to O'Malley, a political henchman of Pendergast, and $82,500 to A. L. McCormack, a St. Louis insurance agent who had acted as a go-between in the compromise negotiations.

In later litigation the United States District Court in Kansas City set aside the compromise, and ordered all of the $12,000,000 returned to the policyholders.

Transfer of the $907,000 balance to the state treasury when finally ordered by the courts, will not slam the door on the right of unlocated claimants. Under the escheat law a claim may be filed within two years after the money goes to the state treasury, before it finally becomes the property of the state.

Pendergast and O'Malley served federal prison terms for evasion of federal income taxes on the slush fund payments. The Missouri Supreme Court in an ouster proceeding in 1946 held that 122 insurance companies had knowledge of and participated in the bribery which brought about the compromise, and fined them a total of $2,092,000.

AMERICAN STUDENT FINDS METEORITE IN GREENLAND

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 27 (UP)—A meteorite weighing 106 pounds has been found by a California student in the wastes of northwest Greenland, it was announced today.

Dr. Johannes C. Troelsen, of the Danish Mineralogical-Geological Museum, said the "sensational" find was made by James Conel, of Burbank, Calif., while he was assisting an American geologist in Thule, Greenland.

The meteorite has been shipped here for presentation to the Danish museum. Explorer Robert Peary found a 40-ton meteorite early in the century in the same territory, and a three-tonner was discovered by Danish explorer Knud Rasmussen some years later.

CITY DEMOCRATS ATTEND RECEPTION FOR HENNING

Members of the Democratic City Committee attended a reception honoring United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. yesterday at Hotel Jefferson. The reception was given for Hennings by Mark R. Holman, Democratic National Committeeman for Missouri. Several party leaders predicted Hennings would have the unanimous support of the city committee members next year, when he is expected to be a candidate for re-election. Hennings had virtually the unanimous support of the St. Louis ward leaders in the 1950 primary, when he won the Democratic nomination for Senator over Emory W. Allison of Rolla, who was backed by former President Harry S. Truman.

TWO BROTHERS KILLED AS AUTO HITS TRUCKS

Fatal Crash Near Wentzville—Woman
Dies in Collision
Near Steele.

Two brothers were killed last night when their automobile struck the rear of a tractor-trailer, then swerved across the highway and ran head-on into a second tractor-trailer on United States Highway 40-61, a mile and a half south of Wentzville.

They were Luther Ball, 28 years old, driver of the automobile, and George Ball, 26, both of Chesterfield. A passenger, Alonzo Ellis, Maryland Heights, was slightly injured. All are Negroes.

State highway patrolmen said Luther Ball apparently misjudged his distance in attempting to pass the first truck. It was driven by Wesley Harrell of Joplin, Mo. The second truck was driven by R. O. Johnson, Bemis, Tex. Neither truck driver was hurt.

In another accident last night, near Steele, Mo., about 165 miles south of St. Louis, Mrs. Irma Brown of Steele was killed and Mrs. Wilma Williams, also of Steele, was seriously injured when their automobile collided with a tractor-trailer on Highway 61.

Mrs. Williams was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial Hospital. Her daughter, Della, 8, also a passenger, escaped unhurt. Mrs. Brown was 44.

Patrolmen said the truck driver was Earl Schott, 1918 Palm street. He told officers that Mrs. Brown's car slowed at an intersection as if to stop, then suddenly shot ahead. He said he was unable to avoid the collision. Schott was en route to St. Louis from Florida, with a load of fruit and vegetables. Ray Hardy, 1821 Ohio ave. nue, East St. Louis, an employee of the Cotton Belt Railroad, was seriously hurt today when his automobile went out of control and overturned several times on Highway 61, a mile and a half south of Barnhart, Jefferson county. He was taken to St. Louis County Hospital. A passenger, Samuel Fink, 519 North Forty-fourth street, East St. Louis, suffered minor injuries.

Who'd ever dream coffee so good could be as good to you as Decaf Instant Coffee! You can drink this full-strength coffee to your heart's content—morning, noon and night—without a bit of caffeine worry. Decaf leaves your nerves steady, lets you relax better and sleep better, too. For Decaf is 97% caffeine free. It brings you a new feeling of well-being. With Decaf, you no longer have to count the cups of coffee you drink. So if you love good coffee—full-strength coffee—new Instant Decaf is the coffee for you.

Decaf Proclaimed a Wonderful Breakfast-till-Bedtime Coffee

"Being a cab driver, I love lots of good coffee," says Mr. Ted M. Czelusnick of 1840 W. 47th St., Cleveland, Ohio. "But too much coffee made my nerves jittery until I started drinking Decaf. Decaf's he-man flavor made a big hit with me right off the bat. I can drink as many cups as I want now—Decaf lets my nerves relax. My little wife deserves the credit—she found Decaf!"

"I enjoy every cupful," says Mrs. Charles Knowles of 1540 S.W. 12th Ave., Miami, Fla. "As a mother and a housewife, I'm kept pretty busy. I had to cut down on coffee because too much caffeine gave me nervous indigestion. My friends have noticed I no longer complain. For now, with Decaf, I enjoy as many cups of coffee as I want... without the caffeine that put my tummy on edge."

"Its flavor is great!" says Mr. Sherwood Hughes, business man, of 564 S. Harrison, Kirkwood, Mo. "I've always wanted a caffeine-free coffee that gave me the full coffee flavor I like. Now at last I've found new Instant Decaf. It's really full-strength coffee that doesn't bother me. It's swell to be able to enjoy good coffee and later, be able to sleep like a baby, too!"

"Now I can drink lots of good coffee and feel better, too!" That's what Captain "Red" Miller, a Chief Pilot of TWA International Constellation, has to say about Decaf. If you, too, are one of those people who need steady nerves on the job, and a good night's sleep, like Captain Miller, remember you can get them with Decaf. Decaf gives you full coffee joy and no caffeine nerves.

PERSONAL NOTICE: Ellen—Please come home. I'm a new man now. No more fits of temper... no nerves on edge—and I'm sleeping better, too, since I discovered Decaf! Love, George.

FIRST FULL-STRENGTH COFFEE THAT'S CAFFEIN FREE

People by the hundreds of thousands are happily discovering that Decaf Instant Coffee is real "he-man" coffee. Decaf gives full coffee enjoyment without the ill effects of caffeine. Caffeine contributes nothing to the flavor of coffee. It can be the cause of nervous unrest.

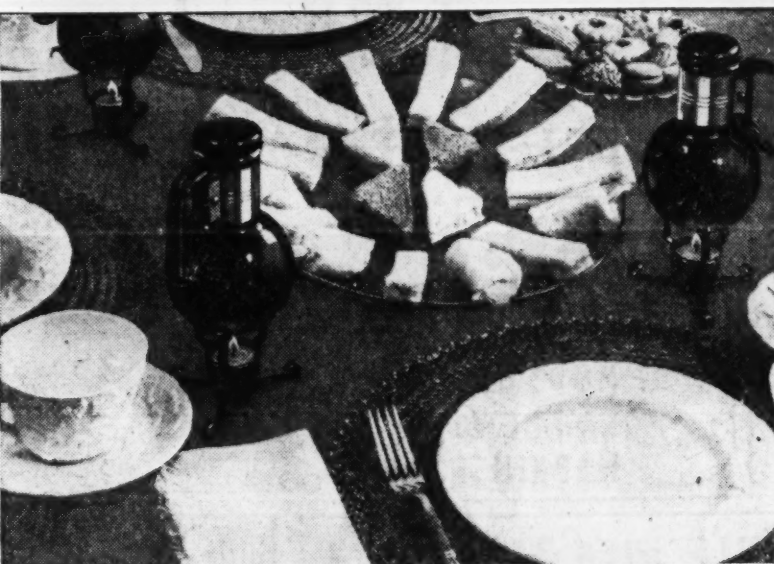

Decaf can give you heart-warming flavor in every cup because the Nestlé Company, world's foremost roasters of coffee, discovered the way to remove caffeine from Decaf BEFORE ROASTING. It's the roasting that brings out the flavor in coffee. By removing the caffeine before roasting, Decaf keeps full-strength flavor from roasting time till coffee time.

So now thousands of people are enjoying full-strength coffee they can drink to their hearts' content—and work better, play better, and sleep better.

LEADING STORES FEATURE DECAF PREMIUM OFFER

Right now, leading grocery stores throughout the city are featuring special Decaf displays. For a limited time, Decaf is offering an individual coffee server as a premium to introduce this new product to even more coffee lovers.

New Decaf Instant Coffee Provides Full Coffee Enjoyment—Without Caffein

FASHION-WISE HOSTESSES DISCOVER ENTERTAINING CAN BE ELEGANT AND SIMPLE. Many clever hostesses have found that an elegant way to simplify serving is by making sure the coffee is at the right place at the right time. To accomplish this small-but-important touch to gracious entertaining, style-smart hostesses serve their coffee in individual coffee servers (like the attractive-Silex Coffee Server offered here by Decaf). And the very wisest of hostesses always serve Decaf Instant Coffee to their guests and family... because they know everyone will enjoy drinking full-flavored Decaf ANYtime without caffeine worry.

Revolutionary New Process
Takes Caffein Out, Leaves Flavor In!

At last... here is a new instant coffee that gives all of the satisfaction a fine cup of coffee can provide, yet imparts none of the nervous jitters ordinary coffees sometimes cause. This sensational new coffee is called Decaf Instant Coffee and it's made by a revolutionary Swiss process that removes 97% of the caffeine but leaves in 100% of the roaster-richness of the world's choice coffees.

With Decaf, everyone can now enjoy as much coffee as they want, without caffeine worry. No more need to count the number of cups of coffee they drink. Coffee lovers everywhere find they can drink Decaf all day—from breakfast till bedtime—and not be concerned about the jitteriness and general upset caffeine can cause.

For steadier nerves—new feeling of well-being, remember new Decaf Instant Coffee—the full-strength coffee that is 97% caffeine free.

$80 HOLDUP OF DRUG STORE

A Walgreen drug store in the Hampton Village medical center was robbed of $80 in cash and $47 worth of narcotics last night.

Ronald Horr, a pharmacist, told police he was alone in the second floor drug department when a man entered, displayed an automatic pistol and demanded money and narcotics. The robber's face was partly covered with a handkerchief.

DRAFT WARREN MOVE GAINING IN CALIFORNIA

Some G.O.P. Leaders
Feel He Is Only Victory Hope if Eisen- hower Is Out.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27.—The conviction is growing in some influential Republican circles here that it will take a draft of Chief Justice Earl Warren to achieve victory in the presidential election next year.

This sentiment, not yet widespread but with the potential sweep of a prairie fire, is particularly significant in California because the state has a virtual corner on all the leading presidential possibilities except President Eisenhower himself. Because of his heart attack Mr. Eisenhower is not expected to run.

No less than four presidential prospects are Californians, and of these Warren, three-time Governor of the State, is the best known nationally and, as Chief Justice and a non-controversial figure, the one with the most prestige. The others are Vice President Richard M. Nixon, Senator William F. Knowland and Gov. Goodwin J. Knight.

So bitter is the intra-party feud here between supporters of the Knowland-Knight faction and Nixon boosters that party leaders would be greatly relieved by a compromise presidential candidate behind whom all factions could unite. Warren is pictured as this ideal compromise candidate. Moreover, party strategists are not unmindful of the recent Gallup poll which indicated that the Chief Justice could win over Adlai Stevenson if the election were held now. Another Gallup poll indicated that Stevenson, the Democratic nominee in 1952, could beat Nixon.

Warren, many Republicans here believe, is the only Republican besides the President who could attract sufficient independent and Democratic votes to win over any Democrat. A Gallup poll also indicated that as of now he could win over Gov. Averell Harriman of New York.

"Warren is our only solution, assuming that Eisenhower will not run again," one Republican source said, declining to be named. "The job is to persuade him to accept a draft. It's true that he was pretty definitive when he said he was through with politics. But what man could refuse an honest draft, especially if Eisenhower made a personal appeal?"

Local Democrats, on the other hand, think that the Republicans are indulging in futile wishful thinking, and that Warren under no circumstances would break his pledge.

Not all of the influential Republicans in southern California take for granted Mr. Eisenhower's unavailability. V. John Krehbiel, chairman of the Los Angeles county central committee, told the Post-Dispatch it is nonsense to count Mr. Eisenhower out of the running so soon.

"Fifty-Fifty Chance." Krehbiel, a life insurance executive, said: "There's better than a 50-50 chance that he'll run, in my opinion. His recovery is steady, and like isn't one to run away from a political fight. Why, I was talking to someone in the White House just two days ago, and I was told that the attack was not a serious one and that the President is feeling quite fit again."

"So far as I'm concerned, he's still the candidate in 1956. I'm convinced he'll run. That's why it's useless to speculate about other possibilities."

Krehbiel, however, is in a small minority in this view. The President's age, considered in the light of his illness, makes it unlikely that he would be permitted by his doctors and family to face the rigors of a new campaign. Warren's age, 64, is also the one factor that his supporters fear may keep him firm against re-entering political life.

By the Associated Press. California Democratic party leaders have started a campaign to unseat Republican Senator Thomas Kuchel.

At the same time another Democrat—in an independent action—announced that he will seek his party's nomination for Kuchel's post.

Sam Yorty, Los Angeles attorney who was defeated by Kuchel in 1954, said at a press conference that he will try again in 1956. He emphasized that his announcement was not co-ordinated with the statement of the Democratic party leaders that they will try to defeat Kuchel on the ground that he is the weakest figure in the United States Senate.

IN DAY SHATTERS COURT'S RECORD

A total of $4084, a record amount of fines in one day, was collected yesterday in the court of Police Judge Robert G. Dowd for violations of city ordinances.

Acting City Marshal Albert Haynes said the highest previous total collected in either of the police courts was about $3600. Judge Dowd had a total of 559 cases on his docket yesterday.

In the court of Police Judge Morris Rosenthal, where 371 cases were docketed, fines collected yesterday totaled $1461. The reason the dockets were heavier than usual was because all traffic cases which normally would have been booked for Columbus day were placed on the docket yesterday.

New Hollywood Studio.
HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27 (AP)—The first major studio addition to the Hollywood scene in 20 years is in the works. Allied Artists Productions Corp. announced plans yesterday for a $6,500,000 plant covering 26½ acres in the San Fernando Valley. It will include 10 sound stages.

FOR ACCEPTING NOV. 11 DUTY

DENVER, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower wrote former President Hoover yesterday thanking him for agreeing to substitute for the ailing President at Nov. 11 Veterans Day ceremonies at Arlington National Cemetery in Washington.

The President traditionally places a wreath at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Mr. Eisenhower's letter disclosed that Hoover also will speak at the ceremonies.

The White House said Mr. Eisenhower personally had invited Hoover to substitute for him, and that a formal request then was made to Hoover by the committee in charge of the ceremony.

SETS PRODUCTION RECORDS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27 (UP)—The Government-owned nickel plant in Cuba has set new production records in the last three months, the General Services Administration announced yesterday.

The plant, known as Nicaro, is operated by the Nickel Processing Corp., owned jointly by National Lead and a Cuban firm, Fomento de Minerales

Cubanos.

During July, August and September, Nicaro produced nickel at an annual rate of 31,215,000 pounds, GSA said. The rate tops the target of 31,000,000 pounds set when the plant was

plant was put on a standby basis in 1947, but started production again in 1952. It is being expanded.

MORRELL DOES IT AGAIN!

Now, it's 100% Sliceable

Lean
Boneless
HAM!

This is it! The first real slice-saver ham!

So easy to serve... so many ways!

PAN-FRY

Brown medium thick (¾") slices in skillet. Serve with eggs or hotcakes for a bountiful breakfast; with hot potato salad for supper.

BAKE

Delicious, baked in-the-piece for Sunday dinner. Looks mighty handsome on the platter... and everybody gets a perfect slice!

BARBECUE

For an impressive feast, cook whole or half ham by rotisserie method. Baste with barbecue sauce, if desired, and serve piping hot. There's no waste at all, and no carving problem for the host.

Morrell makes no bones about this ham! It's all meat... slices like a charm! Even the two ends are perfectly flat to give attractive, uniform slices all the way. There's no waste and no odd-shaped scraps left over. Next time you shop, ask your meat man for Morrell Pride Boneless Ham—by the slice, or by the piece. It's the convenient, new way to enjoy this unusually fine ham for any meal of the day.

Look before you buy!
Ordinary boneless hams have "knobby," rounded ends that are hard to use up.
Only the Morrell slice saver Ham has flat ends for uniform slices all the way.

UNESCO BACKING AFFIRMED BY JEWISH WAR VETERANS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Oct. 27
(AP)—Jewish War Veterans in convention here adopted a resolution yesterday reaffirming their support of the United Nations' Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization.

The group considered sending copies of the resolution to the national commanders of the American Legion, which voted to censure UNESCO at its convention two weeks ago, and other veteran groups but voted against this move.
The J.W.V. declared the Unit-

DESSERT

'orange blossom' cake

1 1/2 cups C and H pure CANE Granulated Sugar
1/2 cup shortening (part butter for flavor)
2 eggs plus 2 yolks 1/2 cup orange juice*
1/4 cup water 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
2 cups sifted cake flour 1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder 1/4 teaspoon soda

Beat together sugar, shortening, and 1 egg with electric mixer at high speed about 3 minutes (or with spoon) until light and fluffy, scraping bowl often. Beat in other egg and yolks one at a time. Mix orange juice, water, and lemon extract. Sift dry ingredients. Alternately add small amounts dry and liquid ingredients, beating just until smooth with mixer at low speed or with spoon after each addition. Bake in 2 greased-and-floured 9" layer pans, at 375° (moderate) 20 to 25 minutes.
Cool on racks, then frost with "Orange Blossom" Frosting.
*Use fresh orange juice plus 2 teaspoons grated peel; or frozen, diluted as usual; or canned.

"ORANGE BLOSSOM" FROSTING
Use this luscious frosting on "Orange Blossom" Cake or on one made with your favorite cake mix.
Sift 1 lb. (4 cups) C and H pure CANE
Powdered Sugar for the smoothest frosting ever. Gradually add about 1/2 of it to 4 tablespoons soft butter, creaming thoroughly with electric mixer or spoon.
Beat in, 1 at a time, 2 unbeaten egg whites. Add dash of salt and 2 teaspoons grated orange peel, or 1/2 teaspoon lemon extract. Beat in rest of sugar and 1 tablespoon orange juice or undiluted frozen orange concentrate. Tint delicate orange with yellow food color plus 1 or 2 drops red, and beat well. Spread on cool cake.
Covers tops and sides of two 9" layers.

REDS REPORTED CONSIDERING HANDLING OF COOK'S TOURS

MOSCOW, Oct. 27 (AP)—An American travel agent said yesterday the Soviet travel agency Intourist has promised to consider and handle tourist routings arranged in the United States by Thomas Cook & Sons. This was reported by John Stanton, Falls Church, Va., a representative of Cook's, after a conference with Sergei Kandaurov, vice president of Intourist. Kandaurov said the Soviet Union is interested in having visitors, especially group tours and "special interest groups" such as cultural and technical delegations. Stanton reported.

9 Mau Mau Killed. NAIROBI, Kenya, Oct. 27 (UP)—Security forces killed nine Mau Mau terrorists and captured seven others yesterday in one of the biggest assaults on the native rebels in several months. Eight additional Mau Maus surrendered.

4 SMALL CHILDREN PERISH IN SAGINAW (MICH.) FIRE

SAGINAW, Mich., Oct. 27 (AP)—Four small children were killed last night when fire swept through their basement apartment in a tenement district of northeast Saginaw.

The victims, all members of the Robert McGlothlin family, were Shirley Ann, 5 years old; Willie Earle, 3½; Billie Ray, 2 and Debra, 14 months.

Their mother, Mrs. Estelle McGlothlin, 25, told Coroner Harold Cederberg she had put the children to bed in one large bed and sent her two other children, Gloria Jean, 8, and Robert Jr., 7, to the store.

She said she had gone to meet the older children and had found flames and smoke rolling from the basement when she returned.

PERON EXPECTS TO REMAIN IN PARAGUAY SOME TIME

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 27 (AP)—Argentina's ex-dictator, Juan D. Peron, says he expects to remain "many months" in Paraguay. He declined to elaborate on his remark made last night to a reporter who visited the ex-president at his home.

FOUND: by Duncan Hines—the one recipe that gives you the forgotten flavor of rich buttermilk pancakes

More and richer buttermilk than in any other mix! 12 ingredients—many you can't find at your grocer's

From a well-thumbed page of an old cookbook, Duncan Hines took the recipe for pancakes as they used to be, when cooks took all the time and trouble to make really fine "eating." He put this recipe into a mix . . . so that now, off your griddle, come pancakes such as you've probably never tasted.

Run your finger down this recipe and you'd find ingredients not on your shelf, or your grocer's. Five—yes, five—different flours, including the finest-milled wheat flour usually reserved for cakes. Special syrup-flavored sugar. And, of course, buttermilk because it tenderizes the gluten in flour. The really rich, butter-flecked kind farm folks know as "churning-day" buttermilk.

Wouldn't you like to sit right down now and taste Duncan Hines buttermilk pancakes? Better get a package today—and enjoy a "forgotten flavor"!

GIVE VIEWS OF JOB

Truman, Barkley and Wallace Agree More Care Is Needed in Choosing Men.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—Three former Vice Presidents of the United States, including one who succeeded to the presidency, said last night that men who fill the nation's second highest office should be more carefully chosen.

The former Vice Presidents—Harry Truman, Alben W. Barkley and Henry Wallace—appeared in filmed interviews on Edward R. Murrow's CBS television show, "See It Now."

Barkley said he long has believed that the President and Vice President should be popularly nominated and that they should be elected by a popular vote rather than by the "outmoded, antiquated" electoral college.

Truman, who became President on the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt, said he did not think that a better way had come up to elect a President and Vice President than the system now in use but said "I hope one may and will."

Wallace called for "an increasing sense of awareness" on the part of the people and the convention delegates in choosing Vice Presidents. He recalled several instances in which "the Vice President stood for one thing in the Senate and the President stood for another thing in the White House."

Murrow pointed out in his commentary that since 1841 the United States has been headed "21 per cent of the time by men never elected as President." He said the selection of vice presidential candidates was "no minor matter."

Truman said the direct primary is "an ideal situation for selecting public officials" but said "there isn't a man in the world with money enough to put on a direct primary President and then run for President."

He said "it would require an immense amount of money in each one of the states, and I am not sure that it would obtain the results that we think about. Primaries in some states have been very satisfactory; in others they have not."

MISSING MEXICAN STEAMER
AND 22 ABOARD FOUND SAFE

COATZACOALCOS, Mexico, Oct. 27 (AP)—Nine passengers and thirteen crewmen of a small coastal vessel reported missing were found unharmed yesterday near here.

The steamer Antonio Sanchez Valdes sprang a leak en route from Chixulub, on Yucatan peninsula, to Veracruz. It was beached on an isolated stretch of coast and passengers and crew were sheltered by local residents. Port officials here had assumed the ship was lost with all hands.

PRESIDENT SIGNS TRANSFER OF 20,000 TO CIVIL SERVICE

DENVER, Oct. 27 (AP)—President Eisenhower yesterday signed an executive order providing for transfer of about 20,000 overseas federal civilian positions to the competitive civil service. Mr. Eisenhower approved the order at Fitzsimons Army Hospital where he is recovering from a heart attack.

The 20,000 positions are held by American citizens working in foreign countries and on certain Pacific islands. Most of them are Defense Department positions.

SH, NAVY COACHES FIGURE TO REPLAY '54 THRILLER

THE SPORTS BEAT

by John P. Carmichael

B.R. and Snowman.

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.

THE branch has saved himself off the baseball tree. The twig remains. This is to say that Branch Rickey has relinquished control of the Cardinals.

Rickey is 74. He has survived the Cardinals, Dodgers and Pirates. . . and he'll still string with the last-named in an advisory capacity. But most of all he has survived some of his own whims, like the day he sighted the brand new snowman on the outskirts of Delaware, Ohio.

Then he saw the snowman, one hand extended in a gesture of welcome. As B. R. sighted this sign of good fellowship, he was seized by impulse. "Arthur," he told the chauffeur, "Stop right here. . ."

The car came to a halt. "Now," said Rickey, his eyes twinkling, "back up, Arthur. Then put her in second and hit that snowman. Hit it hard."

As Rickey chortled in anticipation, the driver spun the car toward the figure at a good 30 miles per hour. But there was no soft, crunching impact amid a flurry of snow at contact.

It seemed that a new generation of Wesleyan boys had built the snowman around a concrete traffic sign.

"Judas Priest," exclaimed Branch, "now I know what Gabby Street meant when he told me that you can't always judge a baseball by its cover."

Tribute to T. Moore.

Rickey was successful at Brooklyn. He has struggled against adversity in Pittsburgh. But he will be remembered as a Cardinal, the progenitor of the Gas-house Gang. . . through Leo Durocher and "Pepper" Martin and "Diz" Dean and Frank Frisch. . . to the days when Johnny Mize and Jim Brown and Terry Moore joined hands to keep tradition alive.

Moore recently has returned as a Cardinal coach under the Frank Lane regime. . . and "Uncle Sam" is glad.

"He was the real Gas-houser," said Rickey. "He burned the fire and determination of a crusader. . . a warrior. He asked no quarter, gave none. He never said much. . . but his mild manner was only a wrap which cloaked a deep-rooted zeal for battle. . . for competition."

There was a constant passage-at-arms between Rickey and Dean, mostly because "Diz" didn't always take Branch seriously. . . and when Dean eventually went to the Cubs for $185,000 and three players, it wasn't because he hadn't been on the block before.

Once Rickey sat down with "Pie" Traynor, then manager of the same Pirates from whom Branch is severing all but a tenuous connection.

"We had agreed on $150,000 for Dean and there was the matter of a few players," said Traynor. "Rickey started writing down names. He listed Paul Waner, Arky Vaughan, Floyd Young. . . up, mind you, to nine."

"Then he pushed the list over to me. I began crossing off names. Branch watched me and said: 'Pie, forget we ever talked. . . I've got a reputation to sustain. . . I'm trading off the incomparable Dean.' Naturally, we didn't come close to a deal."

Mesmerized.

Durocher, who played for Rickey, managed for him and owed him a lifetime of gratitude for rescuing Leo from ragged anonymity, used to sit mesmerized when Branch began talking money.

"The way he handles dough around is something," said Leo. "Especially when it's your money."

"He can say $100,000 like I ask: 'Gimme a nickel' and never moves a muscle, never bats an eye. At least he might wink a little. . ."

But Rickey never winked at anything when he was doing business. Once he said: "If they ever think I can be soft, I'll be old before my time."

FUMBLE BY ACADEMY COST TIE

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 27

(AP)—Navy and Notre Dame coaches are looking for another possible replay of last year's 6-0 thriller when the unbeaten Mid-dies and the once-defeated Irish meet Saturday.

Both told reporters at Navy's weekly football news conference yesterday they regard the other as being as good or better than the 1954 teams and expect another close battle.

Coach Terry Brennan said in a telephone interview from South Bend, Ind., the site of Saturday's clash, that he thinks the odds-makers are mistaken in making Notre Dame a six-point favorite, the same margin they beat Navy last year.

"I don't know how they figure it," the youthful Irish mentor remarked. "I would think we would probably be rated even."

He called this year's Navy team "probably the best they've had in the last 10 to 15 years" and said "records indicate they'll probably be the best we play."

Navy has beaten its first five opponents but in the Irish expect to meet their toughest to date. The Mid-dies have shown the same fire in practice this week they had for the game in Baltimore's muddy stadium last year, when a fumble going into the end zone cost them at least a tie or possibly a victory over the Irish.

Notre Dame has lost only to a good Michigan State team and is plainly regarded by Coach Eddie Ederlatz as the big hurdle faced by his team this season, with the natural exception of an always tough Army game.

"We regard them every bit as tough as last year," Ederlatz said, "but feel the same way about the game. . . Our boys do a better job against a tougher team." Last year he stated he thought Navy had its best chance to beat the Irish in his five years at the Academy.

Frank Foster, the Navy scout who viewed the 21-7 victory by Michigan State as well as Notre Dame's 22-7 conquest of Purdue last week sized up the opposition this way:

"They have terrific speed and depth in the backfield. The line does not have the depth of last year's but the first line is experienced. Pat Basegilla is the best guard I've seen all year. He's a good offensive and defensive player. We're going to have a big job handling him."

'Kick-Off Dinner' for Olympic Fund Drive

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—Leading sports figures and dignitaries from public life will gather tonight for a dinner that will "kick off" the campaign to send a full representative United States team to the 1956 Olympic games.

Major Robert F. Wagner of New York City will be the guest of honor, and General of the Army Omar N. Bradley will be toastmaster. Other speakers include: Sir Percy C. Spender, Australian ambassador; Kenneth C. (Tug) Wilson, president of the United States Olympic committee; Lt. Gen. Emmett (Rosie) O'Donnell Jr., armed forces representative on the United States Olympic executive board, and Rev. Robert Richards, Olympic pool team champion.

Olympic officials estimate that it will require slightly more than $1,000,000 to send approximately 500 athletes to the 1956 winter games at Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy, and the Olympic summer games at Melbourne, Australia.

The "kick-off" dinner, at the Commodore Hotel, is aimed at ideas to stimulate the drive.

HEY! DUCK HUNTERS!

Skies are clear over the Upper Mississippi Valley, the northern Plains and southern Manitoba and partly cloudy to cloudy elsewhere over northern sections, and light rain is falling in southern Saskatchewan. Temperatures range from slightly above 30 degrees in northern Saskatchewan to the middle 40s in the western portions of the Dakotas. No snow accumulations of importance are reported.

Increasing cloudiness and colder weather will overspread all north-central areas this afternoon and light rain is likely, with some in the Black Hills. Precipitation will end tomorrow, and clearing skies will be the rule Friday night. No cold weather is in prospect.

Boardwalk Hits the Boards

Washington Tech Seeks Third Victory, Soldan First Points

By Harold Tuthill

Soldan Coach Tony De Filio hopes his West End Tigers find their scoring punch in time for the game with league-leading Washington Tech tonight at 7:30 at the Public Schools Stadium. Tech will be seeking its third conference victory.

The Tigers have not scored in their two league engagements and that's something of a surprise to those who know the Soldan personnel. The Tigers have enough weight in the backfield, but they just haven't clicked against Southwest and Roosevelt.

Quarterback Bill Long weighs 175; Bob Ashby, the left half, goes 170; Phil Toledo, right half, weighs 160 and Jerry Tecklin, 165. That's a pretty good size for a high school quartet.

Tech Has Lighter Quartet.

Washington Tech, which shares the lead with Central, is lighter than Soldan. Don Herd, the fleet quarterback and sprint star, tips the scales at a mere 125. The Andersons, Lloyd and Nickel, weigh 165 and Jedoda Gaines, also a speed merchant, goes 158.

Herd set up the touchdown which led to Southwest's downfall, 7-6, when he raced 39 yards late in the game. Otherwise, the Longhorns set up a good defense against the Tech sprinter. Southwest defeated Soldan 20-0, which makes Tech about three touchdowns better than Soldan on paper.

Tech, now 4-1 overall, slowly is rounding into one of the formidable teams in the league. After Soldan, however, Otis Finley's Lions must meet Vashon, Sumner and Beaumont and about three touchdowns better than Soldan on paper.

Won One of Five.

Soldan has posted one triumph in a five-game season. The Tigers beat Du Bourg 25-20, which indicates they should be stronger than the "O" after their name in the standings.

Central, co-holder of first place, will try for its third league victory Saturday night against Roosevelt. Beaumont, the 1954 champion and now 1-1, has the game against Cleveland tomorrow to stay in the running.

The usual Saturday afternoon doubleheader will match Southwest with Vashon in the 1 o'clock game and McKinley with Sumner in the 3 o'clock engagement.

Hawks Picked First; Pettit Leads Scorers

By Bob Broeg

The Hawks, St. Louis's new professional basketball team, returned home today from an exhibition series through the northland to learn one source had picked them to win the Western Division championship of the National Basketball Association.

Owner Ben Kerner, preparing for a trip to Buffalo, N.Y., to visit his mother before picking up his team in the East next week had the news for Coach Bill (Red) Holman.

"I don't know whether to be happy or sad," Kerner told the coach, "but the New York Post, doing a pre-season roundup of the N.B.A., picked us to finish first in the West. Red, it's sure great not to be figured last again, but winning a title on paper might be bad luck."

Open With Lakers.

The Hawks, who open their league season a week from Saturday night at Kiel Auditorium against Minneapolis, have impressed so far in nine exhibition games, of which they've won six.

They bowed to the Lakers last night at Eau Claire, Wis., 107 to 102, but finished a seven-game series with four victories. Previously the Hawks had won two contests from the Fort Wayne Pistons, Western Division champions.

In last night's game 7-foot Charley Share, having his best pre-season performance, scored 24 points to tie Bob Pettit for the individual high — Minnesota's Dick Garmaker paced the Lakers with 16—but Pettit continued to lead St. Louis in goal-getting.

The 6-10 former L.S.U. star, the N.B.A. Rookie-of-the-Year last season and their top scorer, has hit for 166 points, an 18.4 average, but his running mate, Furman's Frank Selvy, has been slow to find the range.

Hookie Jack Stephens of Notre Dame and Chris Harris of Dayton have scored at a rate of 10.8 and 10.4 points a contest. Kerner grinned at the mention of Harris, a pre-season sleeper who now seems likely to make the 10-man squad permitted by league rules.

Talks Self Into Tryout.

"I'm really smart," Kerner said, "I didn't think Harris had a chance to make the squad and suggested he make a tryout—and he has done swell!"

The Hawks move down to Jackson, Mo., to play an All-Star team tonight. They'll return here for a clinic to which the public is invited from 10 a.m. to noon Saturday at the North Side Y.M.C.A. Then they'll head East to play the Philadelphia Warriors three games—at Toronto, Buffalo and Hamilton, Ont.—before returning for the Nov. 5 league opener with Minneapolis.

Holman Wallops Smith, Asks for Top Contenders

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Oct. 27 (UP)—Heavyweight Johnny Holman of Chicago, who flattened Boardwalk Billy Smith here last night, began yelling today for a fight with one of the upper contenders next month.

"I'd like to meet Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson or Bob Baker," declared the hard hitter who had floored 34-year-old Smith of Atlantic City, N.J., three times for a knockout at 1:43 in the seventh round of their nationally televised and broadcast bout at the Miami Beach auditorium.

Smith, former top light heavyweight contender who was trying a comeback against heavyweights after nearly 10 months' absence from the ring, said definitely he would N-O-T retire despite his knockout. "But I'll stick to my own light heavyweight class from now on," he added.

Boardwalk Billy, a deputy sheriff at Atlantic City, weighed only 175½ pounds last night, just one-half over the light heavy limit. Holman, 27, scaled 203½. It looked like a man fighting a boy.

Although they went into the ring at "even money," Holman's physical advantage began to tell on old Billy in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-rounder. The tiring Billy was staggered near the end of the fifth by a looping right to the head.

Holman floored him twice in the sixth with left hooks for "nine" and for "seven" of the mandatory eight-count when the bell rang ending the round. A booming straight right to the chin stretched Billy flat on his back for the full count in the seventh.

Smith's two good rounds were the second and fourth. He had Johnny so confused in the second he missed him and hit Referee Eddie Coachman. In the fourth, Billy rocked Holman twice with rights to the head. That was his last stand.

Henry Ford Again Denies He'll Buy Detroit Tigers

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—A spokesman for automobile magnate Henry Ford II says a report here that Ford is interested in purchasing the Detroit Tigers is "an unfounded rumor."

The New York Daily News reported today it had "learned" that Ford would be interested in purchasing the American League baseball club from the heirs of the late Walter O. Briggs Sr., "if he can gain 100 per cent of the stock."

The report was denied by a spokesman for Ford in Detroit. In denying a similar report a week ago, Ford said, "I have a deep interest in baseball and have a box at Briggs Stadium. That's as close as I'll ever come to being an owner."

The Daily News story also said that "two or three other syndicates have expressed a desire to bid. One is a Baltimore brewery, and Bill Vecek, saying he thought his original offer to the young Australian was 'fair'."

Welsh Tops in East.

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—Quarterback George Welsh, who will lead Navy against Notre Dame Saturday at South Bend, Ind., currently is the total offense leader among Eastern College Athletic Conference football stars with 634 yards, although he sat out last week's game against Penn.

Hoad Asking $87,500; No, Says Kramer

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 27 (UP)—Tennis promoter Jack Kramer has turned down Lew Hoad's terms for turning professional and called them "impossible," the Sydney afternoon Sun reported today.

Hoad announced in Melbourne yesterday that he would consider Kramer's offer if the American promoter would raise his offer to 30,000 Australian pounds (about $87,500). Kramer's original offer was for about $45,000.

The Sun quoted Kramer as saying he thought his original offer to the young Australian was "fair."

Football's Greatest Coaches—28 of 'Em

Do you know that Knute Rockne worked with a Notre Dame scientist to develop a synthetic base for rubber? That Frank Leahy once boxed an exhibition with Ace Hudkins? That Pop Warner almost became a race track tout?

If you were unaware of those human-interest items about three gridiron immortals, you'll find "Football's Greatest Coaches" a worthwhile book. It was written by Edwin Pope, executive sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, and published by Tupper and Love, Inc., in the Georgia capital.

The book is entertaining, biographically informative and obviously controversial in its selection of 28 collegiate coaches chosen as the all-time best. But Pope pitched no wild literary lateral. Instead, he cautiously asked 55 of the nation's outstanding sports editors and columnists from coast to coast, border to border to select the outstanding coaches.

The press panel, it developed, chose 10 men who are dead, 10 no longer coaching and only eight still subjecting themselves to Saturday hysteria and Monday morning second-guessing.

The deceased coaches honored were Bill Alexander, Gil Dobie, Percy Haughton, John Heisman, Howard Jones, Jock Sutherland, Frank Thomas, Fielding Yost, Rockne and Warner.

Inactive coaches named among the greatest were D. X. Bible, Bernie Bierman, Fritz Crisler, Andy Kerr, Robert Neyland, Clark Shaughnessy, A. A. Stagg, Wallace Wade, Bob Zuppke and Leahy.

Present-day mentors selected were Earl Blaik, Wally Butts, Bobby Dodd, Lou Little, Red Sanders, Jim Tatum, Bud Wilkinson—and Missouri's Don Faurot.

Couple of Smiles At Faurot's Expense.

AMONG Pope's engaging anecdotes about the famous coaches are the following about Faurot's excitement: "Remember," recalls Ralph (Boots) Stewart, who starred at center for the Tigers and now coaches the Drake University line, "that after Don came back from three years in the Navy, our first game in 1946 was against Texas. It was so hot in Austin that Missouri players dropped like flies. One of our ends was knocked out of bounds and instead of getting up he just crawled toward the bench. Lloyd Brinkman, an All-Six halfback, was sitting there and he yelled, 'Coach, Coach, we need an end!'"

Stewart smiled, adding, "Faurot looked straight at Brinkman and said, 'All right, get in there?' So Brinkman, the All-Conference halfback, went in at end."

Missouri's next start was against Ohio State. Ed Hodges was playing left tackle for the Tigers. Jim Kekeris, a 300-pound left tackle for Mizzou while Faurot was in the Navy, had been switched to right tackle. Hodges' arm was cracked at Ohio State and Faurot yelled down the bench, "Kekeris! Big Jim!"

"Yeah, here!" Kekeris returned. "Can you play left tackle?" "I played it for three years, Coach."

"All right," Faurot blurted. "You—and he pointed to Bernie Pepper—"get in there at left tackle."

A Tale of the Bears.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY'S homecoming game with Washington and Lee sent Marje Susman, the Bears' publicity director, into the yellowed newspaper files to dig up facts about the Hilltoppers' only previous game with the Generals.

It was a homecoming game then at Francis Field, too. The year was 1939 and Jim Conzelman, coaching Washington and Lee, fielded the leader of the Generals, had agreed novely on no scouting.

So conscientious were the folks at Lexington, Va., that when someone volunteered a lengthy report on the Bears, presumably sent by a zealous W. & L. alumnus in the St. Louis area, the Generals returned the package without even opening it. How did they know it was a scouting report? Must have smelled a Conzelman mousetrap.

Washington and Lee owned four victories in five games at the moment while Washington U. had only one victory and a tie in five starts, but the Bears, en route to a Missouri Valley Conference championship, had played the tougher schedule.

Washington won, 12 to 6.

Providence Leading American League

PROVIDENCE, R.I., Oct. 27 (UP)—Thanks to a third-period goal by Bill McCreary, the Providence Reds were in first place in the American Hockey League race today, one point ahead of the Cleveland Barons.

McCreary, who had collaborated with Camille Henry and Paul Larivee to give Providence its first goal, netted the winning goal with two minutes and six seconds remaining last night in a 2-2 decision over the Buffalo Bisons.

The last-place Hershey Bears downed the Springfield Indians, 2-2.

Illinois, Notre Dame and Washington Victories Predicted

Duford Sees 7th Defeat For Mizzou

By Dukes Duford

The football season is at the half-way point and only six major football teams—Maryland, Oklahoma, Michigan, Navy, West Virginia and Holy Cross—remain undefeated. There may be fewer after Saturday, when Navy tangles with Notre Dame, Michigan with Iowa and Holy Cross with Syracuse. In the meantime, Don Faurot's Missouri Tigers journey to Colorado, still seeking their first victory. Illinois will play Purdue at Champaign and Washington is host to Washington and Lee in a homecoming game.

Looking 'em over:

Colorado 21, Missouri 13.—The Tigers could gain that triumph if injured quarterback Jimmy Hunter can be counted upon to play, for the Buffaloes still are bruised mentally and physically from the terrific beating suffered at the hands of the Sooners last Saturday.

Illinois 21, Purdue 14.—The speed of halfbacks Jefferson, Woodson and Bates will outscore the forward passing of Len Dawson, the Boilermakers' great star. Besides, it's homecoming at Champaign.

Washington 27, Washington & Lee 13.—According to reports, the Bears finally found themselves against Western Michigan. With homecoming to spur them on, there should be no letdown.

Notre Dame 14, Navy 7.—This is easily the outstanding game of the day by two great teams. It will be a battle of wits between the Middles' great quarterback, George Welsh, a perfectionist as a ball handler, forward passer and signal caller, and Irish quarterback Paul Hornung. Navy hasn't beaten Notre Dame in seven years.

Michigan 21, Iowa 13.—The Wolverines haven't been impressive since they lost Ron Kramer, their talented end. Coach Evashevski, a former Wolverine great, has been working overtime to spring an upset victory over his alma mater, now ranked No. 1 in the nation by the United Press coaches' board.

Southern Cal 27, Minnesota 14.—The Trojans have improved tremendously since the beginning of the season, and so have the Gophers. But Minnesota has a big problem trying to stop Jess Hill's single wing and varied-T offense, which has been shaking Halfback Jon Arnett loose for many touchdowns.

Michigan State 21, Wisconsin 14.—The Spartans have more overall speed than the Badgers, a dangerous forward passing attack and more team depth. Michigan State right now is one of the best teams in the nation.

Georgia Tech 13, Duke 7.—Flip a coin and call the winner for it will be a real close one all the way. The unexpected defeat suffered by the Blue Devils at the hands of Pittsburgh last Saturday didn't help the morale.

Oklahoma 24, Kansas State 13.—Its the same old story—there's no one in the Big Seven Conference to match the Sooners. This game will give Coach Bud Wilkinson a chance to develop future talent.

Kentucky 14, Rice 7.—The Owls, a preseason favorite to win the Southwest title, have been a disappointment so far. Since this is homecoming time at Lexington, the Wildcats will have their claws sharpened.

Houston 28, Wichita 14.—The Cougars are getting stronger and stronger as the season rolls on, while last year's Valley champion, Wichita, has been finding the road to victories a rough one.

Auburn 21, Tulane 14.—Tulane's convincing upset victory over Georgia last Saturday is a warning to Auburn. This game will be played at New Orleans, where the Green Wave is at its best. The Tigers' overall team balance and strength will be the deciding factor.

Texas A. & M. 21, Arkansas 13.—Those Aggies have been dumping favorites right and left ever since they lost the season opener; they have their eyes set on the Southwest title and there's too much at stake for them to stub their toe in this game.

T.C.U. 27, Baylor 20.—The Baylor Bears are in a bad frame of mind after losing to the Texas Aggies but the Baylor line has lost five players because of disciplinary action. To beat the Horned Frogs, George Sauer will have to devise a way to stop Jimmy Swink, the hottest back in the Southwest.

The rest on the run: Army over Colgate, Cornell over Columbia, Penn State over Pennsylvania, Princeton over Brown, Pittsburgh over Miami, Holy Cross over Syracuse, Dartmouth over Yale, Clemson over Wake Forest, Georgia over Alabama, Mississippi over L.S.U., Maryland over South Carolina, Mississippi State over North Texas State, Tennessee over North Carolina, Vanderbilt over Virginia, George Washington over Virginia Tech, Iowa State over Drake, West Virginia over Marquette, Nebraska over Kansas, Ohio State over Northwestern, Southern Methodist over Texas, U.S.L.A. over California, Washington over Oregon State, Oregon over Idaho and College of Pacific over Washington State.

Three Horses in Dead Heat Matched Again

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Oct. 27 (UP)—Three horses which finished in a "million to one" dead heat will be matched again Sunday, at Agua Caliente Race Track.

Stormorno, Chance Speed and Beaufair will race under identical conditions as they did last Sunday when they finished in the triple dead heat.

A General Who'll Bear Watching

Lambeau Coach Of 1956 'Stars'

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (UP)—Curly Lambeau, who directed the 1955 College All-Stars to a 30-27 victory over the Cleveland Browns, has been named to coach the Stars again in 1956.

Lambeau formerly piloted the Green Bay Packers, Chicago Cardinals and Washington Redskins in the National Football League. He was the first pro coach to be given the job of getting the All-Stars in shape for their annual battle with the professional champions.

The Chicago Tribune, which sponsors the All-Star game, said Lambeau's assistants would also return for the '56 classic. They are Hank Anderson, Steve Owen, Hampton Pool, Tony Canadeo and Charles Hafron.

S.M.U. Star Eidom's Condition Still Critical

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 27 (UP)—Frank Eidom, former Southern Methodist University football star, remained in critical condition today in Brooke Army Hospital from injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

Medical officers reported yesterday a "very slight improvement" in his condition. However, he still was unconscious and has been since the accident Sunday when his automobile ran off the road and hit a tree 20 miles east of Gonzales, Tex.

An Army brain specialist was in attendance and an Army nurse was with the 23-year-old Eidom.

Eidom, now in the Army, had been playing football for the Brooke Army Comets this season.

Illinois Turns To Sharpening Its Offense

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 27 (AP)—After two days of pass defense work against the expected aerials of Purdue's Len Dawson, the University of Illinois varsity devoted most of Wednesday's practice session to offense in a dummy scrimmage against the freshmen.

Coach Ray Eliot still is undecided on a starting lineup against the Boilermakers Saturday. George Walsh has been running on the first team in place of Bob Baletto at left guard and either may start, Eliot said.

Eliot also is undecided about whether to start Hiles Stout or Em Lindbeck at quarterback or Rod Hanson or Gary Francis at left end.

Purdue Is Prepared.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 27 (AP)—Warned by Scout Bob DeMoss about the speed of the Illinois varsity, the Purdue Boilermakers Coach Stu Holcomb devoted an unusual amount of time Wednesday to sharpen Purdue's defense.

"How anyone stops that gang is beyond me," was DeMoss's word to Holcomb.

Purdue is homecoming guest of Illinois at Champaign Saturday.

After an extensive drill on the practice field, Holcomb spent considerable time at the blackboard going over pass protection and inline blocking.

Dismissed Baylor Football Star Says, 'We Got a Rotten Deal'

PORT NECHES, Tex., Oct. 27 (UP)—Dan Miller, Baylor line star dismissed from the team and suspended indefinitely on a charge of breaking training, said today he was through with college football.

"We got a dirty, rotten deal," the six-foot, 200-pound junior guard said of his dismissal—along with four other players—by Coach George Sauer after last week's 19-7 loss to Texas A.&M.

"But I'm not bitter and I speak only for myself," he added. "I didn't break training. I was weak from fever and flu. Coach Sauer knew I had the flu."

Miller denied that he had admitted breaking training. "I'm through with college football, but I have had several pro offers and I'll take the best one, but not until I've finished school somewhere else," he said.

At Waco, Coach George Sauer fired back this reply: "So, Miller now denies he broke the rules, says he did not admit it to us? Well, two other boys admitted that Miller was with them, and not inside the dormitory at 2 a.m. Saturday."

"He was dismissed for repeated violations of the training rules. We had to fire him for the same offense last fall, and he was not a member of the squad for the Gator Bowl game (against Auburn)."

Miller and Jimmy Taylor were dismissed from the squad last fall after the season had ended and prior to the Gator Bowl game which Baylor lost, 33-13. The reason given at that time was "infraction of training rules and failure to co-operate"—the same reasons cited by Sauer in Monday's dismissal of Miller, Taylor and the three others.

Coach Don Faurot kept his convalescent quarterback, Jim Hunter, out of the defensive scrimmage. Hunter looked good in light work, however, and Faurot hopes Hunter may be available for at least brief work against the Buffaloes.

Hunter Is Impressive As Missouri Winds Up Week's Contact Work

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 27 (AP)—The University of Missouri football squad did its last rough work yesterday before tackling the Big Seven's No. 2 team, Colorado, at Boulder Saturday.

Coach Don Faurot kept his convalescent quarterback, Jim Hunter, out of the defensive scrimmage. Hunter looked good in light work, however, and Faurot hopes Hunter may be available for at least brief work against the Buffaloes.

BOULDER, Colo., Oct. 27 (AP)—Bob Stransky, No. 2 tailback for the Colorado Buffaloes, today was pronounced recovered from a sprained ankle and ready for C. U.'s homecoming game against Missouri Saturday.

The injury kept Stransky out of the Oklahoma game last Saturday. The team was put through a 25-minute line scrimmage against the reserves yesterday afternoon, the final hard workout prior to Saturday's contest, expected to draw 32,000 fans.

Squash Racquets Clubs Open Season Nov. 5

The St. Louis Inter-Club Squash Racquets League, meeting at the University Club, voted to open its season on a week from Saturday with the Missouri Athletic Club entertaining the Racquet Club and the Downtown Y.M.C.A. playing host to the University Club.

Howard Bland of the M.A.C. was named chairman and Hugh Seaton of the U. Club was chosen secretary. Bill Schock is the Racquet Club representative and Vince O'Connor for the Downtown "Y."

A five-man team from each club will compete in a schedule calling for the clubs to oppose one another four times each. A point system will be employed to award one point for each match won by the individual players.

Principia Runners Win.

Bud Krogh of Principia took first place to lead his Principia mates to a 23-32 cross-country victory over Ladue High. Krogh covered the two-mile Ladue course in 11:17. Ladue's Don Hudson and Harold Bowerman were second and third respectively.

Thorpe's Grandson Stars on Gridiron

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 (AP)—The athletic heritage of the immortal Jim Thorpe is being carried on by his grandson.

Mike Koehler, a 6-1, 180-pounder, is a senior halfback at Chicago's Mount Carmel high school. Mike's mother, the former Charlotte Thorpe, has started a scrapbook for her son to be kept with the one that relates the feats of her father, Jim, who died in 1953.

Mike has scored seven touchdowns this season and passed for two more. He has carried the ball 70 times for 458 yards, a 6.4 average.

Mike also is on the varsity track team, competing in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and the 880-yard relay.

Bryan Confirms He's Athlete in St. Louis U. Case

LARAMIE, Wyo., Oct. 27 (AP)—Kent Bryan, 6-foot, 8½-inch freshman basketball player at the University of Wyoming, said yesterday he was quizzed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association officials on the incident which led to a year's probation of St. Louis University for violating principles governing financial aid to athletes.

Bryan said he gave the N.C.A.A. investigator all the information concerning the incident and had nothing further to say. The N.C.A.A. and St. Louis University did not identify the athlete involved.

Wyoming University athletic officials said Bryan withdrew from St. Louis University last fall because of scholastic difficulties and enrolled at Wyoming this year.

He will not be eligible for athletic competition this year.

Fishing In the Ozarks

Last-Minute Reports on Conditions in Lakes and Streams

Compiled by Z. Lee Stokely, sportsman and outdoors writer

This will be the final "Fishing in the Ozarks" column for this season as compiled by Z. Lee Stokely after consultation with conservation agents, creel census crews and dependable resort owners.

Stream fishing for game fish closes Nov. 30 but fishing on the lakes listed in this column remains open the year around. Most fishermen desert the streams during November and it is difficult to obtain accurate fishing information on these water courses. With a 70-day waterfowl season opening tomorrow, a promising five-day deer period in the offing and an improved quail and rabbit population over the past several years, most sportsmen are thinking now of gunning instead of angling.

Compiled to Oct. 26, 5 P.M.

Code: E—Excellent G—Good F—Fair N—None

RIVERS

These Predictions Are Based on Normal Water and Weather Conditions.

All rivers are clear except the upper portions of the Osage and Niangua, which are murky but clearing. Our informant on the Niangua reports fishermen so few that an accurate check is impossible. Frosts have filled the stream with fallen leaves and they are handicapping the anglers who use artificial lures. The current river is nearing a record low water level. Catfish are taking cut bait and cheese confections below Bagnell Dam on the Osage. White bass are also hitting well in the same area. Bass and jack salmon are taking deep-running plugs on the Meramec.

Both Bull Shoals and Norfolk are about 12 feet below power pool level. The Lake of the Ozarks is murky but clearing. The Osage arm is dingy to the mouth of the Gravois. The upper Niangua, Glazie and Gravois arms are clear. White bass are being taken in goodly numbers at the Holiday Landing-Blue Springs area. Trollers are also catching black bass in the same area. Channel cat fishing is good at Rockwood Point on Wappapello.

Weekend prediction: Stream float fishing not too favorable. Pork rind and spinner combinations or small white lures are best for white bass on upper Wappapello. Live minnows and deep running plugs seem best allround baits.

Duck Shooting to Begin in Missouri Tomorrow

Prospect Excellent in The North

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 27 (UP)—The longest waterfowl season in recent history opens in Missouri before dawn tomorrow with game experts predicting "excellent" hunting.

The season for shooting ducks, geese and coot will remain open through Jan. 5, a total of 70 full days compared with 54½ last year.

A late survey of North Missouri showed a total of 148,000 Canada geese, 20,000 blue and snow geese and 55,000 ducks in the state.

Conservation spokesmen estimate that more than 500,000 feet and pintail already have passed through Missouri.

A turnout of some 60,000 hunters was expected during the season.

Hunting hours open at one-half hour before sunrise and close one-half hour before sunset. For ducks the daily bag limit is four and possession limit eight, but only one wood duck may be taken.

Limits for geese are five, both bag and possession, not to include more than two Canada or white-fronted geese. Limits on coot is 10 and 10.

At Swan lake in Chariton county, opening for managed hunting the first time this year, Conservation Commission spokesmen report the "highest count ever made." The hunting area encircles the wildlife refuge at Swan lake, north of Mendon, Mo.

M. O. Steen, chief of the Fish and Game Division of the state Conservation Commission, said an aerial count at Swan lake showed 133,500 Canada geese, 5,000 blue and snow geese and 11,650 ducks.

An aerial survey of North Missouri showed the following bird count at other major hunting areas:

Squaw Creek in Holt county—13,000 Canada geese, 15,500 blue and snow geese and 25,000 ducks, mostly mallards. A week ago 95,000 geese were counted.

Fountain Grove on the Linn-Livingston county line—1500 Canada geese, 50 blue and snow geese and 2400 ducks.

Also, a commission count showed 12,000 mallards on the Mississippi river, near Clarksville, a major shooting area in North Missouri.

Game experts said the waterfowl had not penetrated very heavily into Southeast Missouri. But that section, they said, had a large number of coot.

A spokesman said all the Conservation Commission's managed areas, which includes Fountain Grove, Trimble in Clinton county and Swan lake, were completely booked through November and the first half of December.

However, reservations are still available at Duck Creek, located in Wayne, Stoddard and Bollinger counties in Southeast Missouri. Duck creek, which borders the Mingo federal refuge, also is being opened to hunters for the first time this year.

There are about 70 blinds available for shooting of ducks only. Boats and decoys can be rented but there are no eating or lodging facilities available at the hunting area.

Mississippi River Waterfowl Prospects Improve—Bellrose

HAVANA, Ill., Oct. 27 (AP)—A moderate waterfowl flight this week boosted to about 500,000 the number of wild ducks in Illinois, a 40 per cent increase over last week.

Frank Bellrose, Illinois natural history survey warden and expert, said yesterday that mallards make up about 39 per cent of the fowl and bluebills about 29 per cent.

The migration into the area started Sunday night and the moving fowl provided fairly good shooting on the Mississippi river, Bellrose said. Heretofore, most of the opportunities for shooting were on the lower Illinois river valley.

Football's Bad Boy Kilroy Says It Ain't So: Sure, He Was There, but Just Playing

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 27 (UP)—Frank (Bucko) Kilroy, the big bad wolf with the choir boy countenance, turned art critic today and explained that pictures notwithstanding, National Football League games are not devoted to mayhem.

The 250-pound middle guard of the Philadelphia Eagles, who was injured as he played his 101st consecutive league game in the season's opener against the New York Giants, smiled off the photos in the current edition of Life Magazine. "I'd like to see them from the side, or another angle," he said.

There were photos of Kilroy himself apparently kneeling Giants' Quarterback Arnold Galiffa two seasons back, another of Linebacker Wayne Robinson with clenched fist about to maul a Cleveland Brown, and another of Robinson in the air with his foot aimed at the groin of a Brownie.

Come Now, Bucko! "That's one I'd like to see from the side," Bucko told the weekly luncheon of the Philadelphia Football Writers Association. "Everyone knows the trick angles a camera can take, particularly with a man in the air trying to block a pass. How could he aim?"

It was Bucko's second luncheon appearance in 18 hours. He was feasted and feted by Eagles followers the night before. "That one on Robinson with the fist," Kilroy continued. "How many times do you see boxers strike a punch pose as the bell rings? Actually, Robinson is rolling back from a piling on the runner because the whistle blew. Clenched fingers aren't unusual in any fast action."

The big guy, his leg still in a cast from the injury in the Giants' game, explained the Galiffa sequence of photos which show him rushing in to help Mike Jarmoluk on a tackle. The camera is halted with Kilroy's knee apparently digging into Galiffa's back.

"Sure I remember it, because of the row. First of all, Galiffa was hurt on the play

Austin Returns To Texas League After 41 Years

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 27 (UP)—After an absence of 41 years, Austin was back in the Texas League family today, replacing the Beaumont Exporters.

Formal transfer of the franchise of financially-stricken Beaumont was announced last night by league President Dick Butler. But the announcement was expected as Texas League directors said after a meeting in Dallas two weeks ago that Austin would get the team as soon as the transfer could be cleared with the Big State League.

The Class AA Texas League was founded in Austin in 1888 and Austin held a franchise for 15 years. But the city dropped out after the 1914 season.

The franchise move changed the league's alignment for the first time since 1933 when Shreveport took Galveston's franchise. Beaumont had been in the league continuously since 1919, but in recent years attendance declined to such an extent that a move was considered inevitable.

Details of the transfer were "ironed out" at a meeting at Beaumont. Austin has been a member of the Class B Big State League for several years. Butler pointed out the Texas League paid the Big State League $5000 for the "privilege of obtaining the Austin territory."

League directors, at the Dallas meeting, also agreed to work toward obtaining necessary working agreements to insure continued operation of the Big State League, Butler added.

Twenty-four players on the Beaumont roster will be transferred to the Austin franchise. Connie Ryan, manager of the Corpus Christi Big State League team last season, will manage the Austin club which will operate under a working agreement with the Milwaukee Braves.

Hornung Will Start For Irish Against Navy

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 27 (UP)—Notre Dame's football team ran through dummy scrimmage on both offense and defense yesterday in preparation for Saturday's tussle with undefeated Navy.

Quarterback Paul Hornung, though suffering from a bruised thigh muscle incurred against Purdue, worked out with the first team and Coach Terry Brennan said he would start Saturday.

8 Home Wins In Succession For Rangers

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (UP)—The New York Rangers, off to their best start in years and unbeaten on home ice thus far this season, were only one point behind the first-place Montreal Canadiens today in the National Hockey League.

Paced by Ron Murphy, who moved into the league scoring lead by scoring a pair of goals, the Rangers pounced on the champion Detroit Red Wings last night for a 6-2 win—the most impressive this season. Murphy has eight goals.

The victory was New York's eighth straight on Madison Square Garden ice carrying back to the 1954-55 season, and their fifth in eight starts this season. New York has 10 points, while the Canadiens, who dropped a 2-1 decision to the Toronto Maple Leafs in the only other game played last night, have 11 on the same number of wins and a tie.

ENJOY HENRY CLAY'S FAVORITE! OLD CROW-NOW Milder, LOWER-PRICED

Celebrated Americans of a century ago took pleasure in Old Crow. Today, "the greatest name in bourbon" is available to you in a lighter, milder, lower-priced 86 Proof bottling as a companion to the historic 100 Proof Bottled in Bond!

They were great men, thinking men, knowing men—those men who early gave their hearty approval to Col. James Crow's bourbon. Mark Twain was one. Daniel Webster another. Henry Clay still another. The list of America's men of renown who extolled the virtues of Old Crow is as long as their praises were loud. They were leaders, and after them followed millions more who found in Old Crow the finest Kentucky whiskey ever put into glass. You will too, when you call for the bourbon first distilled by James Crow over a century ago, available today in a milder 86 Proof as well as in the traditional 100 Proof Bond.

Mizzou's End in Sight! Burnine Again Leads Nation as Receiver

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (AP)—The University of Missouri football team hasn't been able to catch any of its opponents so far, although the school has the nation's leading catcher. Offense statistics show that End Hank Burnine of Missouri again heads the country's pass receivers, the first time on record that a major college catcher was leading after six straight team losses.

Both Burnine and Wake Forest's Bill Barnes have grabbed 24 passes but the Missouri's margin of 333 yards to 325 gives him the edge.

Pittsburgh's 220-pound Joe Walton has caught only six passes all year, but five have been for touchdowns, giving

Webster Bows Perfect Game

Dick Weber, 26-year-old member of the Budweisers who finished eleventh in the 1955 National Match Game championships, rolled the second perfect 300 game of his bowling career by tossing 12 strikes on alleys Nos. 5 and 6 in the All-Star Doubles League last night at Floriss Lanes. It was the first 300 game registered at Floriss and the third one in St. Louis this season.

Weber, who is automatically eligible to return to the next nationals, started out with the 300 game and then tallied 186 and 268 for 754 series. His Budweiser partner, Ray Bluth, had 237, 216 and 269 for 722 to give the two-man team a 1476 total. They won two games from Strikes for Cash five.

Weber, who has the season's three-game high of 814, rolled his first 300 in Indianapolis.

The Math Hermanns won two games from Budweisers. Jim Petrov had 298-738 and Earl Sterling a 708 for the Hermanns. Don Carter's 674 and Pat Patterson's 682 were the Budweiser scores. Roger Gray had an even 700 and Ray Haefner 279-692 in the league competition.

In the Greater St. Louis Masters' League Dave Thoma bowled 726 series for the individual high three and Don Carter had a high single of 266 in his 723 total. The Budweisers shot 1130 and 3323 for team honors. Carter's 723 gave him a 229 average.

Rockcastle Is Upset Winner In $58,200 Race

BOSTON, Oct. 27 (UP)—Mrs. Joseph A. Leone's Rockcastle fought off the challenges of a group of top-flight New England invaders yesterday to score an upset triumph in the $58,200 Yankee Handicap for three-year-olds at Suffolk Downs.

Rockcastle, who carried only 113 pounds, rallied to take the lead entering the stretch run in the mile and one-eighth test and then pulled away to win by one and one-half lengths.

Dabson and Calthness's Nance's Lad, one of the top sophomores in the East and the 19-10 favorite, came from far back to gain the place, finishing another length ahead of S. G. Babbitt's Speed Houser.

Rockcastle, winner of five of 11 previous starts this year and 10 to 1 in the wagering, completed the middle distance course in 1:50-2/5 and returned course in 1:50-2/5 and returned $22.80, $8.20 and $5.20. The victory was worth $40,100 slightly under the record $42,500 taken down by Better Self in winning in 1948.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH Thurs., Oct. 27, 1955 5 E

Some Jon, This Arnett!
LOS ANGELES, Oct. 27 (UP)—Jon Arnett, Southern California's junior halfback, tops the Pacific Coast Conference in scoring (76 points), total offense (596 yards), kickoff returns (six for a 30.4-yard average) and punt returns (12 for a 19.3-yard average).

INDIAN SUMMER IN FOREST PARK

Pastoral Indian summer scene in Forest Park yesterday as lightly-clad golfers stroll across the course, enjoying their game in perfect playing weather. View is from road on the north side of Art Hill. The temperature hovered at 80 degrees at 4 p.m., 15 degrees above normal for the date, but Weather Bureau Chief Harry Wahlgren predicted cooler weather for Friday. Below, Bill Heyer and Miss Jessie Elliott, visitors from New York City, pause on their walk through the park to inspect the work of Mrs. Nell Duncan, 5329 Cabanne avenue, as she takes advantage of the bright, sunny weather to paint a Forest Park scene near Grand Drive.

YANKEE WINTER

In direct contrast to the warm, balmy weather presently enjoyed by St. Louisans, the bleak hand of winter touched New Hampshire yesterday with a swirling snowstorm, providing realistic conditions for a team of sled dogs in the final stages of training at Wonalancet, N. H. The dogs, part Siberian husky, part Alaskan malamutes, are due to sail from Boston this weekend on the Navy icebreaker Edisto, to join the naval Antarctic expedition Deepfreeze.

A Happy Change of Pace for Berle

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.

THE UNLIKELY combination of Gore Vidal, one of the more literate writers around, and Milton Berle, a reformed pratfall specialist, was teamed up in an hour drama on Berle's latest show, and a very happy occasion it was, too.

JOHN CROSBY

It just goes to show how fast and furious the pace of television is. Here is old Mr. Television graduating from buffoon to comedian to straight—well, fairly straight—actor all in a few years. A guy has just got to keep changing his pitches in this game if he isn't to be belted right out of the league.

It was Vidal's conceit in "State of Confusion" to cast Berle as a sort of comic Huey Long who alternately bewitches and despoils an unnamed Southern state as its Governor. Regrettably, the state has a rule that the Governor cannot succeed himself so Berle, in order to keep his hands in the till, gets his wife (An Sothern) elected Governor. Both husband and wife are refugees from Chicago gangland, their accents as phony as a $3 bill, and that contributes to the confusion.

MISS SOTHERN is an old pro at political satire. I first laid eyes on her when she was known as Harriette Lake in the Chicago company of "Of These Things" many years ago that I think we both like a well drawn over the exact year. Anyhow, Miss Sothern bounces around with refreshing vulgarity, tells a lot of lies about her upbringing ("the log cabin bit," Berle calls it). In Kentucky ("no particular town"), sips champagne from a silver tea service, and advises her Wildflower Girls, a group of petal-fresh subteens, against "smoking and boozing." "If you insist on drinking," stay home. Don't drive.

Actually, Berle on this show almost takes a back seat to Miss Sothern, a reversal of form so staggering that you could have got 10 to 1 against it nine years ago. Still, he's right behind her, serving hog jowls and turnip greens, gushing with a sort of burlesque of Southern charm, and trying to talk his way out of an investigation of a $3,000,000 bridge in a county which has no river.

"Well, how about that?" comments Miss Sothern and straightaway starts to build a river to put under the bridge.

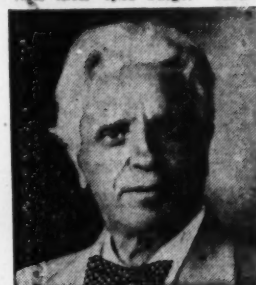

AS AN ACTOR—well, you can still recognize the familiar outlines of Berle underneath the Southern accent, but it was a good solid performance, and I hope Berle tries some other ones. Vidal, whose pen is generally preoccupied with deeply serious matters, is no George Kaufman, and his political satire is broad, very broad. When a couple of Chicago gangsters descend on the phony Governor and ex-Governor and turn the statehouse into a very profitable bookmaking joint, things get a little out of hand. Still, "State of Confusion" was a lot of good clean fun and the ending was hilarious.

The Only One

By Angelo Patri

MARY ELLEN danced before the mirror in high glee. "Isn't it scrumptious mother? My Tyrolean hat. It's darling. I'll be the only girl in the school to have one. Will their eyes bulge?" And she turned her head from side to side in delight at the picture she made.

ANGELO PATRI

"Don't gloat," growled Big Brother. "Such a showoff. You wouldn't have it if Uncle Bill hadn't fetched it for you."

"And so what? I'm the only girl that has an Uncle Bill."

Shortly after this spurge of joyous individuality, Mary Ellen began breaking ground for a request that she felt doubtful about. "The girls are planning a party."

"Yes?" said mother, absently. The chicken was about ready to come out of the oven and the gravy had to be made.

"Mm-m. And they want me to go."

"Yes? Just see that the bread is on the table, dear."

"Yes, and I'd love to go."

"WELL, WHY NOT?"

"Oh, can I? I was afraid you would not let me go."

"Oh, Why?"

"Well, I, you see it's at the Red Rooster and it is in the evening."

Mother straightened up from the gravy pan and said, "How late in the evening?"

"That's just the point. The dancing can't start until 9:30 and—"

"You needn't go on, Mary Ellen. You know right well you are not going to the Red Rooster, nor to a dance that starts after 9 o'clock. Just don't talk about it."

"But mother, I'll be the only one in the class not going. I'll be the laugh of the day. You don't seem to understand how a girl feels when she is the only one out of things. I'm always the one. I hate being kept out of things that everybody else is in." And the tears flooded her face.

"ABOUT A WEEK AGO you were gloating over the fact that you were the only one who had a Tyrolean hat. You loved the distinction didn't you? Now you cry that you are being abused by being the only one. Couldn't you feel distinguished once in a while by NOT going? And I don't believe that John's people will let him go, either. If that is what is worrying you, I am sure it is needless. Now do go and wash your face."

Parents are hard pressed these days by the desires of their young people to take on adulthood before they are seasoned enough to do so. They hear those direful threats, the worn "Everybody else can do it," the angry words denouncing them as "stick-in-the-muds," and their hearts are torn as their good sense demands they stand firmly on their knowledge and wisdom for the protection of their children. It is one of the penalties of parenthood. In time this battle ends as maturity enables the young people to go on their way in freedom. Even then they will keep one foot on the home base.

Meantime they can be distinguished by NOT going.

Olykoek, the Doughnut's Predecessor

Recipe Should Satisfy Fanciers of Rare Dishes—Other Suggestions

By Hoyt Alden

WHEN Capt. Richard S. McCutchen (remember him) hit the $32,000 plateau by describing a half dozen unusual desserts from different countries, we, at the request of some readers, undertook to provide the recipes for the desserts.

We got along all right until we hit the olykoek, or olyocks, (there seem to be several ways of spelling it) which is the predecessor of the doughnut. Then we had to admit defeat.

But now we are saved by Mrs. Lillian Gowell of Calton, N.J., who says she wants to do something in return for the help this column has given her, and for all the good laughs she gets from the cartoons. We doubly appreciate that last part, on account of some people laugh at the recipes.

Anyway just to keep the record straight and complete, and in case any fanciers of rare dishes would like to make some olykoeks, here's how:

Scald two cups of milk and add a tablespoon each of sugar and butter and let it cool until tepid. Soften a cake of yeast in a fourth cup of lukewarm milk and add that. Then beat in three cups of bread flour and a teaspoon of salt and let it rise until the sponge is light.

Then melt three fourths of a cup of butter and stir in a cup of sugar, a teaspoon of nutmeg and four well-beaten eggs. Add this to the sponge, along with a more cups of flour. Let it rise, then stir it down thoroughly. Roll it out and cut it in small, thin rounds. Let these rise a half hour in a warm place and then put in the center of each a teaspoon of the following mixture:

Four good-sized apples chopped fine, a half pound of raisins chopped fine, and three ounces of finely chopped citron. Then moisten the edges of the rounds and press them together like turnovers. Let them rise again until they're very light, and fry them in oil or deep fat at 360 degrees in deep fat. Then roll them in powdered sugar. Mrs. Gowell adds that these will keep fresh for two weeks in a covered crock. Not around my house, they wouldn't. I don't know how they ever came to be replaced by the doughnut.

SINCE I am going through the mail today, here's another interesting letter from Mrs. Renzie Schaefer of Pacific, Mo., who suggests that instead of boiling potatoes for potato salad, we try baking them.

This is a new and somewhat revolutionary idea and may upset a pile in potato salad circles considerably, but we're willing to listen. She says, when the skin is removed there'll be a little would like to make just one suggestion: "Leave it in the oven," he says, "for about 40 minutes, at 425 degrees, and then turn the fire out and leave the pie in the oven for about five hours to gradually cool off."

Mr. Skalla doesn't say just what this does for an apple pie, but we'll try it the very next apple pie we bake.

AFTER reading our recent remarks on some devious things to do with a piece of veal, Miss Nellie George feels moved to tell us something that happened to her. "I know I have a way to fix veal that you will love," she writes. "You can use veal round, veal loin, veal chops or even neck chops. Have them sliced a half inch thick. Dip the whole chop into cooking oil and then into plain bread crumbs. Broil them outdoors or indoors. When the crumbs begin to turn brown, baste the chops with one part water to two parts vinegar in which has been mashed a clove of garlic. Don't turn the meat any more than necessary. I hope you try this."

I hope I do, too.

ANSWERS to hard questions department: Mr. Harry Fleischmann of St. Louis says our latest article on Chinese cooking has him drooling again and where can he get the book we mentioned. Well, this book ("Cooking the Chinese Way," by Kenneth H. C. Lo) was published in England. If it can't be found at bookstores, the publisher is Arco Publications, Ltd., 10 Fitzroy Street, London.

To the lady who complains she can't find any spices called kirsch and maraschino to sprinkle on her Peaches Eugenie, we suggest the liquor counter, not the spices.

To the reader who asks for a recipe for a certain coffee cake with "a gooey butter topping," we can only say we're looking in all our cookbooks under the heading "gooey" but we can't seem to locate it. Don't know what's the matter with people who write cook books. Imagine, no gooey!

Could that be the same stuff some people called "gommy"? If so, I know, and I'll try under gommy.

Words That Aren't in Your Dictionary.

RECENTLY we checked the accuracy of the commonly heard phrase: "If it's not in the dictionary, there's no such word"—and we showed it to be false. There are, in fact, hundreds of thousands of words in the vocabularies of the various arts, trades and professions—words indispensable to workers in these fields, yet not of sufficiently wide popular use to warrant inclusion in the general-purpose lexicons most of us have in mind when we think of a dictionary.

And then there's the wide area of slang and colloquial words—the common currency of our everyday speech which, with a few notable exceptions, is scarcely recorded by the general dictionaries. This is partly because slang is, as a general rule, transient. Who, except a few doddering greybeards, recall "So's yoution" in the general three skiddoo?

THIS IS NOT TO SAY that slang does not have its chroniclers. Indeed, your correspondent is among them, having recently compiled "The Real Gone Lexicon," a glossary of more than 400 items from the slang of today's teen-agers. But such collections are "for the moment," so to speak, and it is entirely understandable that a dictionary designed as a semi-permanent book of reference could not devote space to words and phrases the life span of which, at most, will be about five years.

Then, there are the colloquial variants which somehow escape the attention of the dictionary-makers. One such is the subject of an inquiry from Edward Percardio of North Haledon, N.J., "Can you give me the origin and definition of 'deucer'—if indeed there is such a word," he writes.

WELL, THE DICTIONARY EDITORS all carefully enter "deuce" from the French, deus and Latin duo, both meaning "two" and give its meanings in card and dice playing, as well as in tennis. But they neglect "deucer" which, in the popular tongue, has half a dozen meanings.

Baseball players use "deucer" as meaning either a two-base hit or the second game of a double-header. In vaudeville and circus slang, it's the second spot on the bill and to racing enthusiasts, it's the horse that finishes second. So, dictionaries to the contrary, there most assuredly is such a word as "deucer!"

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. IT IS POSSIBLE TO OVERCOME TRAITS HANDED DOWN FOR GENERATIONS. TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐ 10-27

Answer to Question 1. TRUE, for two reasons: (1) The trait may be due chiefly to imitation. Often bashfulness, shyness, stubbornness, loud talking, good or bad manners are merely family habits—one generation unconsciously teaches them to the next. Whole communities and nations do the same thing. They thus become what anthropologists call "cultural patterns." (2) Even if the trait is due to heredity, it can often be overshadowed or overcome by other traits which are stronger.

Answer to Question 2. Yes. Dr. Paul Witte points out in "The Gifted Child" that children with IQs around 140 and higher want to play games and engage in activities more complicated than those of interest to average children. His classmates and often his teachers don't understand him. Only about one child in 100 has an IQ that high, so it is hard for him to find congenial companionship. Parents of gifted children, also teachers, need help and guidance.

Answer to Question 3. Yes. Sitting too long or too much can be dangerous due to formation of blood clots in leg veins. The clots can break loose and lodge in the lungs with serious results. Riding long hours in planes and automobiles often causes sudden lameness in the legs. Dr. J. Homans advises moving your toes, feet and lower legs frequently or standing up and exercising occasionally if your job requires long hours of sitting.

Cupped Flour Boards.

SOME of us live in homes where the floors are made out of nice narrow strips of hardwood and floors like this seldom cause much trouble. But many of us live in homes where the floors are made out of fairly wide boards, 5, 6, 7 inches and even wider. Now boards like this can be a problem on floors because they expand and contract more than the narrow boards and hence you get cracks between them. We've mentioned before that these cracks can be filled by first cleaning them out and then packing in a plastic type of wood filler, a mixture of sawdust and glue or by gluing in a strip of wood.

Besides having cracks appear between the boards, floors made out of wide boards have a tendency to "cup." This means that the board warps slightly so that the edges are actually higher than the middle. This not only makes cleaning and finishing the floors difficult but it also is tough on carpets, rugs and other types of floor coverings.

It's seldom possible to remove the high points from these boards by sanding because it would mean sanding along a narrow ridge. A better method is to plane off the high edges with a wood plane. If you don't want to go to all this bother, then use heavy underpads under rugs or carpets or else the sharp edges of the boards will cut right through the material in time.

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

CURTAIN-TIME: "No Time for Sgts" (the hilarious smash at The Alvin Theater) won salutes from every Aisle-General. . . . This military maneuver enlisted hearty laughter and won an easy triumph less than 10 minutes after the initial curtain lifted. . . . You never heard such bunched howls. . . . The loud laughs come one after the other so much of the time—you do not always hear what the comedians are saying. . . . Newcomer to Broadway Andy Griffith (a hillbilly from No'th Klina) has a longer role, they say, than Hamlet. . . . He is on stage being entertaining nearly every second. . . . His appealing boyish personality and effortless professional pretending made him a Broadway favorite at first sight. . . . When he came back after intermission the joyous spectators clapped loud and long to prove their deep affection. . . . Shucks, man. We No-thinnas never did see such carryings-on like that be-fo- . . . Roddy MacDowell and the very large cast are all capable people. . . . "A Roomful of Roses" sprouted at The Playhouse earlier last week, starring Patricia Neal and featuring Betty Lou Keim. Not all the reviewers flung bokays at the very entertaining comedy-drama (4 pro, 4 anti) which got a dozen curtain calls opening night. . . . Critic J. McClain assured: "You'll like it."

PATRICIA NEAL...A CANDID ANSWER.

THE CINEMAGIC: Alfred Hitchcock collects chuckles instead of tangles in "The Trouble With Harry." He plays the funnybone instead of the spine. A cadaver, incredibly, is The Straight Man. . . . Too many critics reported that "Headline Hunters" is a yarn that went to press too often. They found "Lucy Gallant" a generally entertaining show. Jane Wyman demonstrates that honey is more valuable than Texas oil. . . . Not many reviewers appreciated "The Girl in the Red Velvet Swing," the saga of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw. The one-time show-gal's life story (her new husband shot and killed a gentleman friend) was laundered so pure, the critics yawned rudely from first paragraph to last. Joan Collins (one of them said) was too saccharine for a show-gal.

STAIRWAY TO THE STARS: Patricia Neal is candid. When an interviewer inquired why she jilted Hollywood to star in "Roomful of Roses," Pat explained: "I wasn't exactly the biggest star out there and my personal life was a mess." . . . Adele Jergens (the Beautifully) is co-starred in the soon-due "Outlaw Treasure" film. She appears in it for nearly five minutes. . . . Not only have The Broadway Angels fallen (one of those peculiar stock promotion things) but Satan is in 3 current shows. "Rock," "Yankees" and "Golden Slippers," the opera. . . . "The Cherry Orchard" (at the Fourth Street Theater) got excellent reviews. . . . Lois Smith, the exciting, young star of Sally Benson's play, "The Young and the Beautiful," is being compared to Julie Harris, Susan Strasberg and Geraldine Page by reviewers. . . . And, as long as they're name-dropping, both Hepburns.

Headed for Break-Up

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

BEFORE their marriage Alice and John never had a quarrel. They agreed on everything. They "just seemed made for each other." But the honeymoon had hardly begun before they began to squabble, and each week the things they said to each other were more cutting. Half the time Alice was in tears when John left the house after breakfast. What had happened?

In many cases two people, before marriage, are more agreeable than they really want to be. Each says to himself, "I think she's running things with a high hand, but I won't make a fuss now. After all, we're going to be married in two months. After that, I'll show her that I'm not going to be pushed around that way!" The first year of marriage, roughly speaking, is given over to a struggle for dominance—sometimes very roughly speaking; after that they work out a pattern of agreement, or else they are headed for a break-up.

HOW CAN THEY PREVENT THIS? There are several common-sense steps that every couple should take: Don't let politeness end at the altar. Before marriage each was accustomed to expressions of appreciation. Continue these—don't abandon them in favor of criticism. Talk things over frankly and fully, especially when you are feeling calm. Make a note of any matter that you want to discuss. Take one evening each month to go out to dinner at some pleasant and quiet place. After the meal, bring out your respective lists of topics for discussion, your complaints and criticisms. By that time you will find that three fourths of them have settled themselves. Others you will now recognize as too trivial to be worth discussion.

WHEN A QUARREL DOES ARISE, stop right in your tracks and ask, "What's the shooting about? What are we really fighting for?" The main difficulty is that a difference of opinion about some point of fact is immediately broadened into an attack on the other person—perhaps on all the other person's relatives and friends as well. Don't let it get out of hand. Focus right down on the point at issue, reach some decision on it, and put the decision into effect. If you do that, you'll clear the air so that particular point won't have to be debated again.

Quarrelling never helps a marriage, and too often destroys it altogether. Don't get the habit.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

READER wants to know: "How can one tactfully curb dinner-table smoking? I am getting very tired of having the time and effort that goes into cooking a party dinner spoiled because of the rudeness of some of our guests. Neither my husband nor I smoke, but do not object to smoking except at the dinner table. If I purposely leave ash trays off the table, these friends go and get them without even asking if smoking is permitted. I have no objection to cigarettes at the end of the meal, but these people whose bad manners permit them to throw a smoke screen around other guests while dessert is being served are intolerable. Have we as host and hostess no jurisdiction over our dinner table other than removing certain friends' names from our guest list? We would rather not lose friends but if there is no other way we will cross them off our list and appreciate all the more those who allow us the courtesy of setting the precedent in our own home."

My sympathy is with you because I feel exactly as you do. The only thing you can do is say, "I hate to have to ask you, but please don't smoke until after dinner because it really makes me sick."

He's St. Louis's 'Mr. Little Theater'

Russell A. Sharp Seldom Plays the Lead but Takes a Leading Part in Many Back Stage Tasks

By Clarissa Start

THE GIRL who plays the heroine gets the biggest share of applause as the curtain comes down. And after her, the leading man, and after that, the comic relief and the bit parts and the walk-ons. But it is often the man behind the coffee pot, the mimeograph machine, the hammer and nail, and the card index file, who is responsible for the success of the thriving little theater group. St. Louis has many successful little theaters; the movement has been growing of recent years, especially in the suburbs. But it has one man who, more than any other, is given the title of "Mr. Little Theater." He is Russell A. Sharp, retired Webster Groves textbook editor, who seldom plays the lead but has been taking a leading part in amateur theatrical activities for the past quarter century.

"To me, there's no one quite like him; I could sing his praises forever," says Irma Schira Tucker, director of the Y Players, who presented him with her Oscar-type annual award, the "Irmy," one year in recognition of his contribution. "He's the dean of little theater here, the one person you can call on to do anything. I even got him away from work one day to come down on his lunch hour, don a Shakespearean costume, and read a part for us."

According to Ruth Vinyard, one of his co-workers at the Webster Groves Theater Guild last year, Sharp's support has been "artistic and financial," and "he's promoted so many people and original ideas, it's impossible to mention them all."

"I don't know of a single thing in the little theater line that he hasn't done," his wife says proudly. "I'm no more theater than a lot of other people around here," Sharp protests, but when pressed for details, will admit his activities have included: reading, acting, casting, directing, properties, stage construction and design, business managing, program, personnel, hospitality, tickets, membership, experimental theater, children's theater, publicity, playwrighting contests, revision of a constitution and renovation of building.

NOR have his activities been confined to one organization. He's been a member of the Webster Groves Theater Guild since 1931 and served as president in 1935-36 and again in 1952. He's a charter member of the Y Players, a past president and member of the Community Playhouse (formerly the Little Theater), and a member of the Ingalls Players of Webster Groves. In past years, he also belonged to the Players and the Kirkwood Little Theater, and has been a season-long patron of the American, the late Empress, and the Little Theater of the Webster Groves High School.

As director of the experimen-

RUSSELL A. SHARP . . . "IT GIVES A PERSON CONFIDENCE TO GET ON THE STAGE AND GO THROUGH A PART."

tal theater of the Community Playhouse, he gave encouragement to playwright William Inge concerning a play he'd written and titled, "Front Porch," which later became "Picnic," a Broadway success.

Sharp was president of the Webster Guild when a Washington University student, Tom Williams, won its one-act play writing contest. Tom is better known now as Tennessee Williams.

"The play was 'The Magic Tower,' and it was a very good one act play," Sharp recalls. "He says now that it wasn't but it was."

Sharp's interest in theater goes way back to his hometown, Charlestown, Ind., a small town about 15 miles from Louisville, Ky. He directed plays there. "Until they got to quarreling as they do in small town dramatic clubs and it broke up," he smiles. "They divided the profits. I think I got 91 cents."

At Indiana University where he and his wife, Eleanor, met, he was a member of the French Club and helped put on plays in French. He taught at the university for several years, then taught high school and did dramatic club directing among students. But his real entry into little theater work came when he and his wife and their son, John, who is now assistant professor of modern languages at Texas Western College, moved here. Sharp became editor for the Webster textbook publishing company, which is not in Webster Groves but downtown.

"I suppose many families run into the same thing we did," he muses. "You get your child to the point that you don't have to spend all your time with him and you realize you don't have many common interests. Theater was the one thing we'd both liked all our lives so we joined the Webster Groves Theater Guild. That was in 1931. By the mere persistence of paying my dues every year, I've now become the oldest consecutive member."

FROM the Guild, the Sharps branched out into membership in St. Louis theatrical organizations, such as the Little Theater and the newly formed Y Players.

"We went out to Kirkwood once," Sharp says, "but everyone we knew there said, 'Oh, spying for the Webster Guild, are you?' So we gave that up." Acting has been only a minor part of Sharp's little theater activities, and most of the time he's spent behind the footlights came about when someone dropped out of the cast on short notice and he was asked to take over.

"On one occasion," he recalls, "one of the men in 'The Male Animal' at the Community Playhouse had to go out of town on business. They had two sell-out performances and had to have someone take the part. That was the only time I ever went on without having had one single rehearsal with the rest of the cast."

"I think the most interesting experience I ever had was when the Y Players did 'Deep Are the Roots,' seven or eight years ago. It was a play about a race problem and three of the characters were Negroes. One night we played to a mixed audience, another to an all-Negro audience and I don't believe I've ever seen such response for an amateur play. It was gratifying in that it was one of the earlier efforts to break down racial prejudice in St. Louis."

Sharp is of the opinion that little theater is less important to the community, however, than to its participants.

"I've always contended that the best thing little theater does is for the people in it," he says, "especially those who have not adjusted socially or whose personality has never been drawn out. That's where the Y does such an outstanding job as many of its young people are new to the city and lonely. It gives a person confidence to get on the stage and go through a part."

Artistically, he thinks a little theater best justifies itself by doing a great deal of experimental work. "A little theater can't exist long without experiments," he says. "Otherwise there's no development or training of new talent. With a three-act play sold out to the public, you don't dare put in people who've never acted before. Also, the experimental one-act gives an opportunity to people who don't have time to be in a three-act play."

W HILE Gordon Sommer was Little Theater director, Sharp handled the experimental theater which had its headquarters in a converted car barn on the Hodiamont tracks. "We had a beehive of activity there," he says. "Classes in make-up, sight reading, radio drama. We did a play by Jack Balch which later had an off-Broadway run in New York and were set to do Bill Inge's 'Front Porch' when the experimental folded."

While he was president of the Webster Guild, that organization acquired its own building and completely remodeled it. "Through I must say I took advantage of my age and did very little work," he says. "I wheeled a few stones in a wheelbarrow, helped scrape old paint, and tried to get a lawn started one year."

"The greatest thing for stability of a little theater is to have its own building," he adds. "The whole attitude changes. Even if you're insecure financially, you have a feeling of security. Also you can have shows run more than one or two nights and don't run into as many conflicts when you're trying to build up an audience."

Now retired from business, Sharp is busy full time with theater projects. He's in charge of personnel for the Webster Guild and keeps a vast file of active members and their abilities. In the charming, family-heirloom furnished home at 214 Parkhurst lane, where the Sharps have lived for 26 years, he also catalogues his collection of one-act plays which now numbers around 300. This library is available to groups which want to put on one-acts, and Sharp spends a day a week at the public library—"my retirement project," he terms it—reading new one-act plays and cataloguing.

In between times, he's rehearsing for the "Pied Piper of Hamelin," which the Ingalls Players will present at the First Congregational Church of Webster Groves tomorrow and Saturday nights. Since the cast includes 15 to 20 children, it's less than restful. Sharp has a characteristically modest explanation as to why he's in the play at all.

"The man I play is a skinny, miserly person and I was the only skinny person who tried out," he says.

The bidding (rubber bridge): North East South West 3 Pass 3N.T. Pass

Even though the North-South bidding resulted in a contract that could have been beaten six tricks, vulnerable, it had considerable merit.

The pre-emptive opening speaks for itself, and as for South's "stab" at three no-trump—well, let's not overlook the point that it kept West quiet when, as a matter of fact, East-West would have been cold for at least five spades. Not that this observation reflects discredit on West—he could scarcely be aware of his side's potential, and any action over the three no-trump was fraught with danger.

Of course South could not know, either, that his response would have such an excellent shutout effect, but that was part of his general idea, the other part being that he might steal the game if he drew a favorable opening lead. He was sure that he could count on seven club tricks—and if the no-trump bid ran up against a double, South could bail out at four clubs.

It is very clear that South would have stolen the game if West had made his "normal" lead, a low spade, but West was not a naively orthodox player. He went into a long huddle, and finally came out with the inspired lead of the diamond ace. Above everything, he wanted to see the dummy and East's follow-suit play to Trick 1—then he (West) would be able to diagnose the situation more accurately.

Well, West got his two-way look, but it didn't do him much good, because East played the diamond seven on the ace. That wasn't good enough for West. He shifted to a low spade—and South ran off the rest of the tricks. (East let go a heart.) It really does seem that East could have spared the 10 of diamonds at Trick 1.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A COUPLE of first-year girls from Hunter College found themselves inside the Museum of Art to escape a sudden shower. They paused before a glass case that contained a well-preserved Egyptian mummy. A display card at the mummy's head read "3353 B.C."

"Wow, is that square all bandaged up!" marvelled one of the frosh. "Wonder what the 3353 B.C. stands for."

"Probably the license number of the car that conked her," said her chum.

SENATOR FORD, a stickler for perfect service in the restaurants he patronizes, flagged a waiter and pointed out angrily, "There seems to be a twig in my soup." "Just like we say, mister," beamed the waiter. "We got branches all over."

A RECKLESS DRIVER, suggests Lincoln Parker, is a so-and-so who passes you on a highway despite every dangerous and dirty trick you can pull to prevent it.

Secrets of Charm Relaxing Hands and Arms

GRACEFUL MOVEMENTS OF THE HANDS AND ARMS CAN BE LEARNED.

GRACEFUL movements of the hands and arms can't be attempted too consciously or deliberately. Results almost always look affected. True grace, either in gesture or in purposeful action, must come naturally. This doesn't mean that you can't teach your hands and arms the ways of grace so well that every move they make is charming. They must simply be taught to relax and to get the feeling of easy movement until relaxed, smooth motion becomes a habit. Here are four exercise ways that this can be done:

1. Sit erect with your elbows resting on chair arms and with your forearms perpendicular to it. Make a tight fist and hold it for a count of five, then fling the fingers outward, hard.

2. Raise your arms in front of you, palms down, thumbs pointing toward your chest and fingers extended. Stretch each finger so you really feel it, one after another, to touch the thumb.

3. Play imaginary piano scales. Keep the hand in a straight line from the wrist to the middle knuckle. Raise the fingers high and rhythmically and lower them with emphasis.

4. Extend your arm forward at shoulder level and describe small semicircles with the hand as if dipping water from a brook. With each dip, move the hand farther toward the opposite shoulder until it touches it. Reverse direction until the arm reaches behind you.

Run through all four exercises, dropping your hands into your lap or at your sides after each one. Try this sometime to see how restful it is when you are tired. You'll be even more convinced of how much good daily sessions can do.

Your Posture.

Achieve grace of the highest degree—make yours the posture ideal—improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes. Read the informative, easy-to-follow book let "YOUR POSTURE." ### Former St. Louisans. Here for Brief Visit

By Kay Moon

MR. AND MRS. J. EDGAR MOSER, former St. Louisans, are here from their home in West Plains, Mo., for a brief visit, and are staying at the home of Miss Vera Shore, 4498 Lindell boulevard.

The Mosers used to live at 2324 South Watson road, Ladue. Their children are widely scattered, with only one son, William Alonzo Moser, living here. He and his wife, who was Miss Caroline Cosalter Gamble, recently took possession of their new home, 151 Linden avenue, Clayton.

A son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Wolfe Jr. (Elizabeth Moser) of Sao Paulo, Brazil, left South America Oct. 10 on a trip to California, going by way of Jackson Hole, Wyo. They plan to spend about a month in San Francisco. The Wolfes' two small children are with their grandparents, Judge and Mrs. John J. Wolfe, 28 Black Creek lane, Ladue.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Funsten Jr. (deLancey Moser) of New York, became the parents, Sept. 25, of their first child—a boy, Edward S. Funsten III—named for his grandfather. Mrs. Funsten's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert deLancey Moser (Ethel Preston Gamble) are in the process of moving from Chicago to Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edgar Moser Jr. (Esther Dill), who formerly lived here at 9914 Litzinger road, Ladue, are building a house in Montgomery, Ala., where they have been living for the past several years. Both Miss Mimi and Miss Floyd Moser now make their home in New York.

Mrs. Lehman Here Visiting Parents.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN CHARLES HARRIS, 27 Picardy lane, Ladue, have as their guests their daughter, Mrs. Richard Lehman (Diane Harris), and her two young sons, David and Michael Lehman. Mr. and Mrs. Lehman and their children arrived in this country Oct. 11 aboard the United States after having spent two years in Cheltenham Spa, England. They were met in New York by Mr. and Mrs. Harris. Before returning to St. Louis the Harrises, Mrs. Lehman and the children visited another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Farnsworth (Margaret Louise Harris), who live in Riverdale, N.Y. Mr. Lehman, who went directly to Washington, is expected here this weekend. Later he and his family plan to return to Washington to live.

Pembroke College Club of St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS ALUMNAE members of Pembroke College of Brown University at Providence, R.I., will hold their first meeting of the season at luncheon today at the Raleigh House in Clayton. The program of activities for the coming year will be submitted for approval to the membership. The proposed program was set up by the executive committee and includes such activities as a program in the arts, reception for the college representatives and interested high school students from St. Louis and an auction to raise funds for the college. Members of the executive committee include Miss Frances Leimkuhler, president; and Mrs. Dudley A. Bragdon, treasurer and scholarship chairman.

Pre-Wedding Parties for Miss Johnson.

SEVERAL PARTIES have been given recently for Miss Dorothy Esson Johnson, whose marriage to Robert F. Rodriguez will be an event of Saturday. Mrs. August Schlafly, 10 Aberdeen place, Clayton, gave a luncheon and shower Oct. 8 at the Missouri Athletic Club in honor of the bride-to-be, who is the daughter of Mrs. Francis T. O'Grady and the late J. R. Wilfley Johnson.

A surprise shower was given Oct. 12 by Mrs. Lawrence Glynn at her home, 7001 Waterman avenue, University City, and on Oct. 19 Mrs. Robert E. Engelbreit, 116 Timbercrest road, Kirkwood, gave a luncheon and shower at the Missouri Athletic Club. The next evening a dessert and bridge party was given by Mrs. Michael Adick. Miss Eunice Brennan, who is to serve as a maid of honor at her cousin's wedding, was hostess at a cocktail party at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Brennan, 6322 McPherson avenue, University City.

Last night Ralph W. Harris, who will be an usher at the wedding, gave the bachelor dinner at Raleigh House in Clayton. The rehearsal dinner, which is planned for tonight, will be given by Miss Johnson's brothers-in-law and sisters, Maj. and Mrs. John M. Desloge and Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Reichardt. The dinner will take place at the Desloge home, 6807 Pershing avenue, University City.

The bride-elect was honor guest last month at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Knipf, 7125 Pershing avenue, University City. At the party announcement was made of the engagement of Mrs. Knipf's daughter, Miss Mary Louise Reilly, to Frederick Zeibig Clifford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Morton Clifford, 11 Hortense place.

Miss Johnson and Mr. Rodriguez will be married in an 11 o'clock ceremony to be performed at the Church of St. Louis King of France (Old Cathedral) by the Rev. Richard C. Hiestor of Denver. Later the reception will be given by Mr. and Mrs. O'Grady at the Missouri Athletic Club.

St. Louis Girls in Wellesley Play.

FOUR ST. LOUIS young women, Miss Susie Berger, Miss Nancy Jones, Miss Kathryn Kiewitt and Miss Katherine Walton, took part in the recent production of "In a Pickle" given by the Junior class at Wellesley College. Miss Berger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Berger, 103 Lake Forest, Richmond Heights, was choreographer of the show and danced in it. Miss Jones, daughter of Mrs. Henry Belz, 53 Portland place, was a dancer and served on the lights and publicity committees. Miss Kiewitt, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Kiewitt, 4 Lindworth drive, Ladue, was a member of the publicity, advertising and scenery committees. Miss Walton, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin E. Walton, 25 Clermont lane, Ladue, was a member of the script committee and of the cast. Miss Berger and Miss Walton are alumnae of John Burroughs School; Miss Jones is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Kiewitt, of Holyton Watkins High School.

Ferguson Families Engaged in Variety Of Autumn Travel

MRS. ROY JOHNSON, Commons lane, Florissant, departed Thursday for Los Angeles to spend several weeks. She will visit her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Skidmore, and the family of Mrs. Dean Hunter, formerly of Ferguson.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Ballman, 7354 Overbrook drive, Pasadena Hills, left Tuesday by motor for San Antonio, Tex., to visit his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ward W. Kelley. The Ballmans will drive later to Clearwater, Fla., to be the guests of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ballman.

The Ferguson Welfare League will hold its annual tea Friday, Nov. 4, from 2 to 4 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. George S. Goding, 220 Royal place.

The Book Club will be entertained at luncheon Monday by Mrs. John D. McCutcheon, 315 Darst road.

The Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church will hold its annual bazaar in the new Education Building Thursday, Nov. 3, from 2 to 9 o'clock. A buffet supper will be served from 5 to 7:30. The theme of the affair is "Old England in the time of Charles Dickens." There will be a Coffee House, food booth and gifts and gift wrappings for the holidays.

The Ferguson Community Players will present two one-act plays Friday, Nov. 18, and Saturday, Nov. 19, in the Education Building of First Presbyterian Church. Both plays, "A Phoenix Too Frequent," by Christopher Fry, and "I'm a Fool," dramatized from Sherwood Anderson's story by Christopher Sergel, will be given in the round. David S. Lewis is directing "A Phoenix Too Frequent," with Mrs. Harold Ostroff, Mrs. John Armbruster and Tom Woods as the cast. Miss Isabelle Denysen is directing "I'm a Fool." The cast includes Robert Powell, Mrs. Max M. Mason, Miss Betty Niehaus, Jack Morris, Arthur Gruenfelder, Mrs. Robert Powell, Mrs. William Bryant and Robert L. Hovis Jr.

My Day

Looking Back On U.N. Day In New York

By Eleanor Roosevelt

ROCHESTER.

LAST Monday there was a ceremony at New York's City Hall, commemorating United Nations day. This was the U.N.'s real birthday, the day on which was observed the organization's tenth anniversary.

I particularly liked the program placed at our seats because it said on the outside: "Observance of tenth U.N. day by the people of the City of New York." That is certainly the spirit in which these observances should take place. The people should be the ones who are really important. Those on hand were, for the most part, the representatives of various organizations and they brought children with them from the public schools of the city who had won prizes in the essay contest on "The Tenth Birthday of the U.N."

THESE ESSAY CONTESTS were inaugurated by the late John Golden, who was the first chairman for U.N. day in New York City. He always gave the prizes for the children's contest, and in his memory the John Golden Fund donated the prizes this year.

John Golden believed that the young people of all countries were important and he did a great deal for the children of our country. When he died he left his home and grounds for the use of the boys who had been playing baseball on his property for many years under the supervision of the Police Athletic League.

His attorney and intimate friend, Newbold Morris, was appointed by Mayor Robert Wagner to work on this year's celebration but, nevertheless, one felt all through the morning, as each speaker spoke of John Golden's contribution, that his spirit must be hovering nearby and one hoped he felt the warm gratitude that the mention of his name brought to so many hearts.

THE Secretary General of the United Nations and the President of the General Assembly and some 20 ambassadors came to these ceremonies, which were presided over by Richard C. Patterson, Commissioner of the Department of Commerce and Public Events.

A tree will be planted in City Hall Park and a bronze plaque was unveiled at the ceremonies, which will mark the dedication of the U.N. tree.

Dr. Charles Mayo, President of the American Association for the United Nations, and J. S. McDonnell, Chairman of the United States Committee for U.N. day, both accompanied Clark Elcheberger and myself to the ceremonies and were impressed by the way everything was done.

MRS. EDWARD P. ZAWADSKI, LEFT, AND MRS. ELMER P. WHEELER GIVE INSTRUCTIONS IN FLOWER ARRANGEMENTS TO THREE PATIENTS AT SHRINERS' HOSPITAL FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN. THE STUDY IS A PROJECT OF GREENBRIAR HILLS GARDEN CLUB.

GREENBRIAR HILLS GARDEN CLUB, Mrs. Elmer Wheeler, president, has undertaken a new project. Through the co-operation of Miss Hulda Gunther, director of the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children, the club members are instructing the young patients in the art of flower arranging and in nature study. Weekly classes are held for the children under the direction of Mrs. Edward P. Zawadski, garden therapy chairman.

Every club member is asked to serve once throughout the year as part of the team of three or four women assisting the children in making flower arrangements. The garden therapy committee hopes to extend this work to other hospitals in the near future.

The following participated in the program this month: Mrs. Anetia Robertson, Mrs. Kirk R. Richtmyer, Mrs. Robert A. Conkin, Mrs. Tracy Patrick Jr., Mrs. Harlan Hashbarger, Mrs. Sylvester P. Sullivan, Mrs. Robert Howe, Mrs. Joseph Moreau, Mrs. Melville A. Ochser, Mrs. Frank A. Martin, Mrs. Elmer P. Wheeler and Mrs. Zawadski.

South Side Day Nursery will give its annual benefit card party tomorrow at 1 p.m. in the lobby of the St. Louis Theater. Mrs. A. W. Lindholm is chairman assisted by the following committee chairmen: Mrs. M. P. Yates, sale of home-made bakery goods; Mrs. Clarence A. tickets; Mrs. J. R. Gadd, tables and R. A. Godlove, publicity. The nursery provides day care for children from three to five years whose mothers are employed. Through the generosity of the St. Louis Variety Club the nursery is housed in a new modern building at 2930 Iowa street.

The Business Women's Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis will have a birthday dinner Tuesday at 6 p.m. at Ivy hall, Grand boulevard and Hebert street. Members whose birthdays are in May, June, July, August, September, October, November and December will be honored.

Martha Carr's OPINION—

Dear Martha:

AM put in an embarrassing position by my husband flirting with every woman who looks at him. How can I trust him? Not long ago, we started riding to work together, but he gets off the bus before I do. There are some women employed in another department of his plant, so in the beginning as he got off, I would see a few of them looking at him, and they wanted to speak to him, but he pretended he never knew them. Now that they have found out who I am they don't look his way when I am around, but every once in a while I see a new face around there, and the same thing happens, so I know he has been flirting around. Also, a woman unknown to me called and told me of his flirtations with another woman. I found I just couldn't trust him, so started flirting myself. Now I have met a nice widower who is getting interested in me, and I like him very much. I would like your opinion on whether you think I should get a divorce, as I don't love my husband anymore and surely don't trust him out of sight.

LILLY.

It's an old saying, but it will always be true: Two wrongs don't make a right. In the first place you don't really know your husband is guilty. You are too anxious to convict him on circumstantial evidence and on the word of some woman who may have nothing better to do than to try to stir up trouble. And even if he is guilty, what right does that give you to go wandering too? As long as you are married, you have no right to let yourself become interested in another man, or let him become interested in you. Put him out of your life and start trying to make something good of your marriage instead of insisting on your "right" to do wrong.

I HAVE BEEN dating a fellow for about two years, not steady but quite often. I love him very much but unfortunately the feeling isn't mutual. We had a little spat and I haven't seen him for a few days. I don't care if he doesn't love me. I'm happy to be with him if it's just for a little while. My friends say if I keep going with him they won't speak to me. Can you help me? DORIS.

Your friends must have good reason not to like him or they wouldn't be so adamant on that score. So maybe in the first place you'd better get down from cloud 13 and see if he's really the dreamboat you think he is. Then you'll have to try to conjure up enough pride from somewhere to walk the other direction if he shows no interest.

What to Wear

By Louise Trescott

I HAVE recently seen exquisite collections of prints for next spring. There is so much to choose from, some women falter. Unfortunately they allow preconceived ideas to influence them. Polly's letter illustrates one:

LOUISE TRESCOTT are both small it fits me, and I know it cost a lot, but I don't know how my sister could have bought such a hideous design.

"Do you think it might be better if I separated the waist and wore it with a gray suit? The colors are all right, as I have prematurely white hair and pink and white skin."

***

DON'T TOUCH the dress. Put it on again and stand before a full-length mirror. Turn around slowly and study your appearance from all sides. Imagine the correct accessories with it—a small shining black hat, bag and shoes, gray gloves and gray baroque pearls. If it really fits you well, you'll begin to accept the beauty and distinction of the unusual print. You will be the best dressed woman at the bridge table or wherever you wear it.

The exceptionally large print, if a truly beautiful one, is most dramatic on a small woman. A large woman would look like a billboard in such an oversized design. So reconstruct your ideas about large prints and I'm sure you will be happy with your new dress.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

IF you are a large woman co-ordinate your figure, your clothes, your hats and your accessories to form a balanced design flattering to the large woman. Work out a basic plan for your figure and your skin tones, choose clothes that are suitable to your activities and your kind of life, and stick to your plan.

Don't wear clothes that look plastered on—easy does it. The fluid line, the softly draped designs are the best becoming to the large woman and will give you good balance.

Watch your skirt length. Choose your shoes with a great deal of thought. Also you must pay particularly good attention to the perfectly groomed appearance of your face and your hair. Often the large woman has a flushed skin, but she can tone it down through her choice of makeup colors. Keep away from pink tones in face powder and choose the softer tones in lipstick.

Don't wear little dabs of hats. Don't go in for lots of ribbons, feathers and bows. Wear real hats. Youngish, of course. You know my opinion of those squatty "matron models." Choose a hat with an irregular brim and one large enough to give balance to your head.

The woman of large design must always be well groomed and she must be careful in all her dressing. Remember, be as neat as a pin—not a hair out of place. Wear a perfect makeup. Practice until it is perfect and always take that backward glance.

She 'Engineers' Knitted Costumes

Dress Patterns by Mrs. Georgeva Gillies Follow Stress, Strain Formula

By Mary Kimbrough

IN HER research into an ancient Missouri-born Georgeva Gillies found that human beings—men even earlier than women, incidentally—learned the fundamentals of "knit one, purl two" before they learned to write. However, she has also discovered that not always have the products of their knitting needles become the glamorous garments they were meant to be, especially after the ladies took up the hobby.

Either the job took too long and the knitting gained 10 pounds by the time the dress was finished, or she got tired of the color after months of labor and wouldn't be caught dead in it—or her husband told her it looked awful.

So Mrs. Gillies, already an established fashion designer and consultant, has in recent years turned her attention to engineering knitted costumes. Her collection of dresses—intended as samples of what could be created with her patterns and the British yarn she recommends—was shown the other day at Stix, Baer & Fuller.

SHE uses the term "engineering" advisedly when she discusses her favorite domestic topic. She has evolved a mathematical formula which her engineer friends have told her isn't too far removed from the principle of stress and strain as used in building a bridge.

"My method calls for shaping the dress—larger at the hemline and smaller at the waistline—by changing needles. Largest needles are used at the bottom of the skirt, then as the skirt progresses, the needles become smaller.

"I didn't want to come up

GEORGEVA GILLIES... "I DIDN'T WANT TO COME UP WITH SOMETHING THAT WOULD LOOK LIKE YOUR OLD AUNT HATTIE."

with something that would look like your old Aunt Hattie, so I have tried to evolve classic styles and have designed eight different necklines that can be used on any dress.

"American women love to knit but most of them loathe the finished product. They're sick of it by the time they get it done. My dresses can be completed in six weeks and they're just as flattering to the heavier woman as to the thin one. In fact, a big woman can look very attractive in a knitted dress."

Mrs. Gillies, who uses only the name Georgeva in her profession, has liberally dotted her own wardrobe with knitted costumes. Attractive and slim with gray hair, she was wearing a navy blue knit dress during our interview, with plenty more to choose from in her collection of vivid and subtle hues.

A native of Clarksdale, near St. Joseph, she was reared and educated in California where she met her husband-to-be at a Christian Endeavor meeting. Her husband, William Macrae Gillies, is an outstanding portrait painter.

After her marriage she and her husband lived in New York where she was a fabric designer and fashion consultant. He served in World War II, then they moved to London where they maintain a studio in Kensington Park Gardens and he is chairman of a major advertising agency. They have two daughters, Nancy Howard, a television actress, of New York, and Mrs. Peter Merrill of Kansas City.

IT was only a few years ago that Mrs. Gillies became interested in knitted dresses as a fashion project and started an 18-month research program to see why women do or do not enjoy wearing them.

"It's an ancient art and my research took me back into the British villages and into the Scottish Highlands," she said. "I found in my studies that people had been knitting before they could even read or write. And now, even little children learn the rhythm of knitting even before they actually start to handle the needles and yarn."

"In the old days, knitting needles were made of sticks or stones before metal came into the picture. And you know men were the first knitters. Back in fifteenth century France there was the Stocking Knit Guild made up of master craftsmen.

"The work was considered far too tedious for women."

The Dean Speaks Up Reflections on Art--and October

By Adele Starbird

THIS OCTOBER, which has been less dramatic than other autumn months, has provided its own subdued charm, with quiet rains, landscapes of faded gold and garnet and cold skies which recall the painting by the English Millais, "Chill October."

It was exhibited in the St. Louis Art Museum 10 long ago, and I went often to see it with my mother. And speaking of painting, I hope that the studio tour arranged by the Artists' Guild for the first Saturday and Sunday in November will be a huge success. The Artists' Guild had done so much for St. Louis that it deserves the warmest support. We need art and artists as we need food and air.

Some people have always known that art was a necessity. Others have supposed that you could take it or leave it—they usually left it. But now we are told by the top echelons in both education and government that we dare not neglect art; we are warned that we must not permit the demand for engineers and managers to devour our manpower in the arts, for "without a vision the people perish."

Thomas Mann quotes Goethe as saying, "Man can find no better retreat from the world than art, and man can find no stronger link with the world than art." BUT I WAS WRITING about autumn when I interrupted myself to speak of the studio tour, because I had remembered an English painting. And indeed, this present autumn does not seem typically American; it has a continental mood, like Richard Strauss' "Allerheiligen" or Albert Samain's October sonnets on Versailles. It reminds me of long walks in the Rhine mists, of the fragrance of ripe pears hanging from a trellised wall, of drenched rose-gardens bordered with boxwood. Something is coming to an end as quietly as the autumn leaves.

It was in such a mood that Alfred Duff Cooper, Lord Norwich, concluded his autobiography. "I am fond of change. . . I shall not be too distressed when the summons comes to go away. Autumn has always been my favorite season, and evening has been for me the pleasantest time of day. I love the sunlight, but I cannot fear the coming of the dark."

THE ARCHBISHOP of Canterbury stated recently in his Diocesan notes that weather is an important factor in the formation of a national character. The unpredictable weather of England has taught the people not to rely upon external conditions, but to be ready for anything. "It has taught us to endure bad weather patiently and to look forward hopefully to better. It has taught us to find comfort in saying, 'Well, it might be worse.' Our life and character would be poorer in many ways without the constant discipline of meeting the unforeseeable vagaries of our climate."

I think the Archbishop has something. If British endurance is the result of climate, American temperament, which so disconcerts our allies, may be the result of extremes of temperature, with greater exposure to sunlight. We are easily upset, and just as easily reassured. With us, one swallow does make a summer. A single Communist can throw us into fits; but let Krushchev smile, and we drop off to sleep. When we are not in a tizzy, we are on top of the world, sometimes even on top of the Milky Way.

What Makes 'Good Wife?'

By Ruth Millett

MARCELENE COX, a light-hearted critic of women and their ways whose observations generally hit the nail on the head, says: "One of woman's most common misconceptions is that because she is a good mother she is automatically a good wife."

I know this is true because over and over again women with husband trouble write me bewildered letters wanting to know why their marriages aren't happy. In summing up their reasons for thinking they have been "good wives" they always mention that they are good mothers.

And usually they throw in the fact that they are good housekeepers, too.

WELL, ANY MAN with common sense wants his wife to be a good mother. And most men expect a wife to be a reasonably good housekeeper.

But a woman can excel at both motherhood and housekeeping and still not be the kind of wife a man is happy living with all the days of his life.

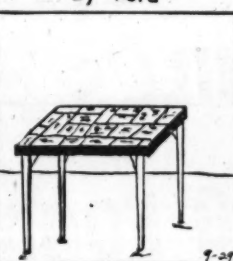

Most men need a whole lot more than just knowing that the woman they are married to is a good mother and a good housekeeper.

A MAN NEEDS a woman who loves and understands him, who makes life more pleasant and more fun, who will help him reach the goals he sets for himself, who makes home a place where he feels needed and important, who either shares his outside interests or at least doesn't discourage them.

It's a woman's duty to her children to be a good mother. It's her duty to her husband to be the kind of wife he needs.

The two aren't the same thing at all, as every woman ought to know.

I'm tickled pink with the smart way my Carol handles her housework. Take wood floors for instance. Most gals complain about all that scrubbing and waxing. But not my Carol! She cleans and waxes them in one easy operation with Bruce Cleaning Wax. It takes her half the time and a lot less elbow grease. And we've yet to have a guest who hasn't commented on our beautiful wood floors. My Carol and her Bruce Cleaning Wax really make easy work of a hard job. I'm mighty pleased with both of them.

Installing Ceramic Tile

By Elizabeth Hillyer

CERAMIC tile grows so fashionable today, and it's certainly attractive and colorful, now that there are more than 200 colors to choose from. But can you install it yourself? That's what Mrs. K.B. wants to know.

The answer is yes, and the job isn't difficult on flat surfaces. On a shaped surface, like this kitchen counter-top, the process is more difficult, and you might want to make sure of perfection by having the work done by a tile contractor.

Briefly, Mrs. B., the do-it-yourself method is this: Stock the tile, adhesive, a putty knife, a sponge, a glass cutter, a corundum stone, and the commercial material called grout to smooth between the tiles.

Apply the adhesive to the back of each tile and press it down with the putty knife. Set all the tiles including those which must be cut to complete a good fit. This is done with the glass cutter, and the edges are smoothed with the corundum stone.

Now wait overnight for drying, then mix the grout with water to creamy consistency, and rub it into spaces between tiles with the sponge.

Wash off the excess grout with a clean wet sponge, and dampen grouted joints several times in the next few days.

MR. D.B. "What color should I paint my kitchen walls? The counter-tops and upholstery covers on the chrome furniture are yellow. Would a yellow paint darkened with a small amount of brown be suitable, or would a pale aqua be better?"

SHAPED SURFACES ARE MORE DIFFICULT.

The floor alternates brown and beige tile.

If the kitchen is small, you might like the unified effect of walls to match the other yellows—there's little reason to alter the shade. In a larger kitchen, however, the contrast of blue might be preferable. Make sure the blue is not too weak for the yellow. A grayed tone toward medium is better for a strong yellow.

Find out what's wrong with a room and you've taken a big stride toward improving it. You can do so easily with Elizabeth Hillyer's booklet "What's Wrong With That Room?"—a quick check list of room faults and tips on how to correct them. For your copy, please send a stamped self-addressed envelope and 15 cents to Miss Hillyer at this newspaper.

Asphalt Tile
Be careful about laying asphalt tile in cold weather. If the tiles have been outdoors where the temperature is low, they will become very brittle and break easily. It's best if you store them indoors in a room heated to at least 70 degrees before you attempt to use them. The same thing holds true of linoleum.

How to Prepare Egg Plant

By Edith M. Barber

WHEN I see a lovely purple eggplant with its garnish of green leaves, I just can't resist buying it. I can enjoy the color of course, only until it is cooked. If you are fond of this vegetable, however, the flavor will make up for the loss of color. While delicate, it is individual, and the texture is such that eggplant lends itself especially for the preparation of rather hearty dishes.

The most commonly used method is sauteing in a small amount of fat. It is even better when the slices are dipped into deep fat after they are dipped in egg and crumbs. Combination dishes of eggplant, tomatoes and green pepper are particularly popular. Practically the same recipes may be called "Creole," "Turkish" or "Armenian."

The Russians and some of the Balkan states prefer sour cream with eggplant. One of my own favorite recipes is topped with this. When I served this recently to guests, they were most enthusiastic about it. Several readers have asked that this recipe be repeated.

Marinating the unpeeled slices of eggplant in a highly-seasoned French dressing before baking in a hot oven is responsible for the special subtle flavor. If I have chives I like to sprinkle the sour cream with these just before serving. Otherwise I am content to use minced parsley.

Baked Eggplant With Sour Cream.

Cut eggplant in half-inch slices. Arrange in shallow baking pan and drench with highly-seasoned French dressing. Let stand an hour or more and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) about ten minutes until tender. Remove from oven, top with sour cream and return to oven for about one minute. Sprinkle with minced chives or parsley.

Eggplant—Creole Style.

Ingredients: One-half cup salad oil, one clove garlic, peeled; one-half cup sliced onions, one-fourth cup minced green pepper, one medium-sized eggplant, pared and diced; two cups chopped fresh tomatoes, one teaspoon salt.

Heat salad oil in heavy frying pan and saute garlic three minutes. Remove garlic. Add onions, green pepper, and eggplant, and cook three minutes. Add tomatoes. (If fresh, peel and chop.) Add salt, and cook slowly over low fire until eggplant is tender, about 20 minutes. Add more salt if necessary. Yield: Six servings.

Note: Canned tomatoes may replace fresh tomatoes. Bacon fat may replace salad oil. If desired, add one cup diced cooked meat with the tomatoes.

White as an Accent

The vogue of white as an accent shade for winter costumes illustrates the elegant trend of fashions. A draped turban made of white panne velvet is a handsome choice for wear with a dark velvet or a jewel-toned tweed suit. White beaver felt that looks like ermine is striking for a bulky hat with a drooping brim. Fur collars of real or imitation ermine, satin vestes and kid gloves are among the accessories that contribute to the impressiveness of the style.

Good Flavor

Give applesauce good flavor by adding sugar to taste, dash of salt, lemon rind and lemon juice, a suspicion of nutmeg. Tastes wonderful over vanilla ice cream.

Luncheon Dish

Leftover vegetables combined with a cream sauce and served over crisp toast will be especially welcomed as a luncheon dish by your family if you add a topping of crisp bacon.

Television Notes and Gossip

OFFICIALS of NBC estimate that 60 times as many people saw the television production of "Cyran de Bergerac" as saw the 1946 and 1953 productions on Broadway. The total audience for the TV version starring Jose Ferrer is estimated at 30,000,000. That's about five times as many persons as saw the 1950 motion picture which won an Academy Award for Ferrer. NBC Vice-President Thomas A. McAvity says the big audience was proof that television viewers want the best in classic fare.

Loretta Young, who has been on the sidelines since last April because of illness plans to return to her television show Christmas night.

Frank Sinatra is searching the ranks of television actors for Western-type performers for his feature movie "Johnny Concho." Sinatra says he wants to steer clear of the familiar screen Western faces.

More than 300 members of the Educational Broadcasters Association are discussing educational TV at a three-day conference now in progress in Chicago.

Vivian Blaine reportedly will be paid $20,000 for a single television appearance in the "Dramatic" color "spectacular" early in December.

CHAPTER TWELVE

HERE was only one lamp burning in Debra's apartment. Far below, in the darkness of the summer night, sparkled the brilliance of millions of lights. Debra was standing on the terrace looking at the view when her brother returned.

"You used your key," she commented. "You haven't done that for a long time."

"A piece of business designated to remind you who is paying the rent," Walter replied bluntly. "See here, Deb, you're not going to pull this woman of mystery stuff on me."

Her amusement did not diminish. A bad sign, Walter decided. "I want to know exactly why H. J. Braden bought you that mink coat. I'm going to stay here until I find out."

Debra yawned. "You bore me, brother dear."

He seized her arm and held it. "I'm not kidding, Deb. I happen to be in love with Molly Braden and if someone is blackmailing her father I want to know why."

"What if I refuse to tell you?"

It was his turn to smile. "You haven't a cent that I don't give you, Debra. You spent your share of our inheritance some time ago. I've given you most of what you have now," he glanced about him. "but if you don't tell me everything you know about H. J. Braden I'll stop your allowance. You might even have to go to work for a living."

"You know I couldn't get a job, Walter, even if I wanted to. What could I possibly do?" She was serious now.

"That's your problem. But it might be good for you to find something else to think about."

"All right. If you're really serious, I'll tell you. His sister was suddenly agreeable. "I didn't want to be in front of Molly because I knew it would upset her."

"Don't give me that, Deb. You're never cared about upsetting anyone."

"The fact is," Debra said with relief, "H. J. is married."

Walter was surprised, hardly knowing whether to believe the sister who had lied to him so many times.

SHOWERS, Cold Front on Way Here

Indian summer, which yesterday was reported letting out vigorous war whoops here, will be ambushed tomorrow by a western cold front reinforced with clouds and an occasional shower or two, Weatherman Harry F. Wahlgren said today.

Low temperature tomorrow morning will be near 50 degrees and the high tomorrow some terrible crime.

"Suit yourself. Maybe you'll tell her. Maybe you won't."

"I'll tell her all right and when I do there won't be any use trying to get mink coats or anything else out of H. J. I suppose you're not even ashamed?"

Debra raised her glass in a salute. "Not in the least. And now that I've been such a good girl and told you the great secret how about a small check. I might even go to South America next month, if you'd give me the money."

"It would be a pleasure," Walter went to the door. "I'll have my secretary make all the arrangements."

As he moved toward the elevator Walter Symington congratulated himself on having solved at least part of the mystery surrounding Molly's father. The idea that Debra might be lying, of course, was always a possibility. But he would hire a private detective—a big agency that had branches everywhere. They could even check with the Mexican authorities. If H. J. Braden had really been married it would be very simple to prove.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

If you speak about the Cree Indians to someone from Alabama, he will suppose (almost surely) that you have made a mistake, and have left off the "k" at the end of an old Indian name. The Cree Indians count Alabama as their chief homeland, but many of them used to live in Georgia, and a strong migration to Oklahoma (then the Indian Territory) took place.

In most parts of the United States, the Creeks are better known than the Crees. In Canada, however, the story is the other way around. Western Canada has thousands of Cree Indians, almost three times as many as there are Creeks in the United States. Alberta used to be the chief Cree homeland, but a big movement to Saskatchewan took place.

Q. Did the early Cree Indians live in forests or on the plains?

A. Mostly in forests. They were woodland Indians, similar to the Chippewa tribesmen. Many of them later took up life on Canada's western plains, and adopted ways of plains Indians. A few hundred Cree Indians live, at present, in Montana, but Canada is their main home.

Q. What kind of homes did the early Cree Indians have?

A. Some of them lived in good-sized teepees. In a Cree village there was likely to be at least one large public building made of birch bark, covering a framework of poles and branches. This building was large enough to hold 40 or 50 warriors who gathered there to take part in a council.

Q. Is it true that the Cree Indians had a calendar?

A. They divided the year into "moons" with special names. One Cree moon, or month, was "Apinacoo-opetin," meaning "Moon When Leaves Fall From Trees." That was a autumn month. Another autumn month had a name meaning "Moon When Birds Fly South." Several other Cree names for moons had to do with birds. One month, roughly the same as our June, was "Moon When Birds Lay Eggs." The next month had a name meaning "Moon When Birds Cast Their Feathers."
